Lecturer in Business Economics
Business School
Auckland University of Technology

Auckland University of Technology (AUT University) Business School has a reputation as a leading provider of innovative undergraduate and postgraduate business education, with strong links to business, employers and professional bodies. The School has over 6000 students and 210 academic staff and our degree courses include a very successful Bachelor of Business, Master’s degrees (by research and course-work), MBA, and a growing PhD programme.

The Department of Economics is currently seeking to appoint a Lecturer (equivalent to Assistant Professor in the US) in Business Economics who can make a valuable contribution to curriculum development, teaching and research. We are particularly interested in receiving applications from colleagues with expertise in one or more of the following fields: business economics, international trade economics, microeconomics, macroeconomics, labour/human resource economics, applied econometrics.

You will have excellent communication skills and a passion for research and teaching. You should have experience in teaching on undergraduate and/or postgraduate degree programmes. We are looking for a colleague who has, or is likely to gain, an excellent research background in applied economics.

A doctoral qualification (or evidence of being in the final stages of completion of a doctoral qualification) in Economics or affiliated areas is required.

- Work with colleagues and teaching team/s to:
  - Contribute to the development and delivery of undergraduate and, where appropriate, postgraduate programmes consistent with faculty educational philosophy
  - Share experiences, new ideas, teaching / learning strategies or materials
  - Ensure the curriculum is current and new developments in the field are integrated effectively into teaching and learning approaches
  - Ensure deadlines are met

- Co-supervise, or where appropriate, supervise honours or post-graduate research projects within field of expertise

- Develop students’ research capability through mentoring, collaboration and involvement in research projects

- Plan classes systematically and deliver them in a way that ensures:
  - Students are provided with the best possible learning environment for achieving the learning outcomes
  - Students are clearly aware of paper learning outcomes and assessment requirements
  - Teaching plans follow the order and reach the deadlines agreed to by the team
  - Learning objectives are set for each class
  - A variety of student-centred teaching and learning strategies are used to encourage students to take responsibility for their own learning and to develop their capabilities and skills
  - The progress of students is monitored and regular feedback is given
  - Students with learning or behaviour problems are referred to AUT services for assistance and advice
  - Set time aside regularly to enable students to seek assistance and provide help and/or access to help for those with learning difficulties.

RESEARCH AND SCHOLARSHIP

- The lecturer will contribute to research by:
  - Planning, developing and conducting an active research programme as agreed with the Chair of Economics
  - Producing research outputs from this research, with a focus on peer-reviewed journal outlets
  - Contributing to the preparation of research proposal submissions to internal and/or external funding bodies
  - Collaboration in the research effort of other academics in Business Economics and affiliated areas as appropriate
• Promoting the outcomes of research activities undertaken and contributing to the capacity of the Economics team in the Business School to critique and debate relevant issues
• Discussing, debating and critiquing, where appropriate, the research of other staff in Business Economics and affiliated areas
• Being involved, where appropriate, in the promotion of research links and with external bodies
• Contributing, as appropriate, to research teams and/or research projects
