

20% Discount Available

The Coming of Age of Information Technologies and the Path of Transformational Growth

A long run perspective on the late 2000s recession

Daive Gualerzi, University of Padua, Italy

In this book, Davide Gualerzi employs the concept of transformational growth to explore the investment-driven cycle of expansion of the 1990s in the US economy and the role played by the ICT sector.

September 2009: 176 pp / HB: 978-0-415-48268-4: ~~£75.00~~ £60.00/ ~~€84.00~~ € 67.00

This book is part of the series:

Routledge Advances in Heterodox Economics

Routledge Advances in Heterodox Economics promotes new scholarship by publishing innovative books in heterodox economic theory, policy, philosophy, intellectual history, institutional history, and pedagogy. Syntheses or critical engagement of two or more heterodox traditions are especially encouraged.

Series Editor: Frederic Lee,
University of Missouri, Kansas City,
USA

The book articulates a view of demand-led growth in which the focus is on effective demand, the composition of the growth process and the link between changing composition and expansion.

Contents: Part I: Demand-Led Growth and Structural Change 1. Growth Theory from a demand-side perspective 2. Transformational growth and the structural dynamics of market creation 3. Growth, effective demand and the composition of output Part II: The 1990s expansion: Technology, investment and new markets 4. The 1990s: the boom and the bust of the "New Economy" 5. Information and Communication Technologies: Productivity and structural change 6. The technology, investment, new markets relationship: the forward and backward linkages 7. The Transformation of the consumption sphere and market creation Part III: Two decades of structural transformation in the US economy: The path of transformational growth 8. From the recovering 1980s to the booming 1990s 9. Innovative investment and long term development: Questions from the 1990s 10. The path of transformational growth

 Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group

For more details, or to request a copy for review, please contact:

Gemma Walker, Marketing Co-ordinator
Gemma.Walker@tandf.co.uk

+44 (0) 207 017 6192

