Editors' Note

We should begin with breaking news: Professor Pierangelo Garegnani died last Friday, October 14. It is a great loss to the entire heterodox economics community. He and his work will be remembered and honored for many years to come. May he rest in peace.

We would like call your attention to "Digital impact factors and rankings of English economics journals 2011" carried out by Edward Fullbrook. He concludes, "The digital top 20 includes most of the journals usually found in the top 20 of traditional rankings. But it also contains five outsiders, including two that are neither US nor EU based. This suggests that in the digital age the traditional power structures of the economic profession are strategically vulnerable." Notably, according to this exercise, some heterodox journals ranked high: for example, Real-World Economics Review is ranked 5th; and the American Journal of Economics and Sociology is ranked 23rd out of 307 economics journals. See the rankings here.

The Occupy Wall Street movement has become global as well as national. Many heterodox economists and associations have taken an active part in the movement. Check out a report from an URPE member here and find out various ways to participate in the movement, including signing a petition.

In solidarity,

Tae-Hee Jo and Ted Schmidt, Editors

CALL FOR PAPERS

AHE-FAPE-IIPPE Joint Conference 2012

5-8 July 2012 | Paris, France

"Political Economy and the Outlook for Capitalism"

Organized by Association for Heterodox Economics (AHE), French Association of Political Economy/ Association Française D'économie Politique (FAPE), and International Initiative for Promoting Political Economy (IIPPE)

The collapse of Lehman Brothers on 16 September 2008 has opened a new stage of economic history, ushering in the world's worst recession since WWII. The trajectory of global capitalism has been diverse but, after three years of deep crisis, protracted economic problems persist and are even intensifying, notwithstanding accelerated growth in a number of large developing countries.

In the global North, policies implemented in the aftermath of the crisis of financialised capitalism have neither ended the neoliberal agenda nor curbed the demands of a resurgent financial sector. Instead, after a diluted Keynesian moment centered on "quantitative easing", the governments of the richest countries have launched a new set of neoliberal reforms characterized by harsh austerity measures. From 2009 onwards, this new neoliberal wave has spread progressively from peripheral European countries to the UK, the Eurozone, and now the USA. Along with surging unemployment rates, this economic onslaught, on those who are in no way perceived as accountable for the crisis and slump, promises a period of major social disruption in welfare provision and institutions, pressures on wages and working conditions and, in response across a growing number of countries, multitudes of spontaneous and, occasionally, mass actions as macroeconomic prospects deteriorate.

In the global South, the forces putatively driving catch-up remain limited and highly uneven, with the issue of global imbalances often placed at the forefront in deference to the US's compromised if continuing hegemonic role. In contrast, not least in the face of the ongoing ecological disruption, the idea of a new frontier for social and economic development and thought is being promoted by a large spectrum of actors, ranging from proponents of no-growth or slow growth through to governments, international institutions and corporations who envisage a revival of capitalism thanks to and in pursuit of the green economy. These initiatives are indicative of an intellectual and material crisis but offer little by way of solution for which, as observed, a savage renewal of neoliberalism serves as the default option.

The scientific issues raised by the corresponding range of problems are formidable, but the blindness and reductionism of mainstream economics prevents them from being tackled within the discipline which has scarcely been disturbed by the acute exposure of its inadequacies by the crisis.

Taking pluralism as the means for bringing together the community of critical economists, this joint conference, called by two major international and one of the largest national networks of political economy and social scientists, will breathe fresh air into an otherwise moribund intellectual atmosphere. It is a major event that will bring together scholars from all strands of political economy and heterodox economics in order to discuss their future and the recent developments in the global economy and in economic science following the global economic crisis.

Submissions of individual abstract or panel proposals along the following non-exclusive themes are welcomed.

ASE at the 2012 Eastern Economic Association meetings

March 9 - 11, 2012 | Boston, MA

Please send your abstracts or session ideas by Monday, October 17, to Mark White at profmdwhite@hotmail.com. Also, feel free to ask about possible topics or themes, or about the meetings in general. The Eastern Economic Association meeting have always been very open to alternative approaches and viewpoints, as well as a wonderful forum for innovative ideas.

ASE at the 2012 Midwest Economics Association 76th Annual Meeting

March 30 - April 1, 2012 | Hilton Orrington, Evanston, IL

"Teaching Social Economics in the Real World"

Please submit your affiliation, contact information, paper title and abstract (up to 250 words) to Bruce Pietrykowski, Midwest ASE Regional Director at bpie@umd.umich.edu no later than October 17, 2011.

Please refer to the Midwest Economic Association web site for further information regarding the 2012 MEA Conference: <http://web.grinnell.edu/MEA/>

ASE at the 2012 Western Economic Association International 87th Annual Conference

June 29-July 3, 2012 | San Francisco, CA

All submissions are to be sent to John F. Henry, Department of Economics, University of Missouri-Kansas City for initial screening. Submissions are to be sent via email to henryjf@umkc.edu. Please follow WEAI guidelines when preparing your paper.

All proposed papers must be submitted by November 30, 2011 to allow time to organize panels and submit the information to Joyce Rosendahl, WEAI organizer by December 15. The November 30 deadline is firm.

Critical Perspectives on International Business on "Transnational Corporations, Socio-Economic Change and Recurrent Crisis"

This special issue invites papers which explore the connections between corporate restructuring and financialization, and which propose explanations of these developments. How are TNCs complicit in, or otherwise involved with, the instabilities of contemporary capitalism? How far have the motives and actions of executives in control of corporations been similar to or connected with changes in banking policies and practices, the emergence of hedge funds and private equity groups and their profit-making schemes? How far have government policies – especially those concerned with corporate deregulation and changes in taxation - contributed to or limited such trends? How far can these changes be linked to the changed balance of power between finance and industrial capitalists and the changing composition of elites in both developed and emerging economies?

ESHET 16th Annual Conference

May 17-19, 2012 | St. Petersburg State University of Economics and Finance, Russia | website

The Conference will be organized by the Department of Economics of St. Petersburg State University and the Leontief Centre.

ESHET 2012 welcomes papers and proposed sessions in all areas of the history of economic thought. To submit a proposal please send an abstract of about 400 words for a paper and/or a proposal of about 600 words for a session (together with the abstracts of the session papers) no later than the 15th December 2011.

The Conference will host a special theme: Institutions and Values in Economic Thought

The standard view of economists that economics is a value-free science independent from political and social institutions has changed significantly. Even positive economics is value-laden in choosing its subject-matter, methods, concepts and scientific criteria. "Institutions matter" in economics, and there are many ways of studying institutions in different schools of economic thought. Though mainstream economics has neglected institutions, there remain important questions for historians of economics: What is the place of institutions in the different economic schools (Mercantilism, Classical political economy, the Cambridge school, Marxism, Austrian, Post-Keynesian and Evolutionary economics, and others)? Why were institutions neglected for so long in modern economic theory? What are the accomplishments of institutional thinking in economics? Can bridges be built between Old and New Institutional economics? What are the cultural and national traditions of economic thought regarding institutions?

Topics for discussion could include:

- Institutions in economic thought
- Old and New institutional economics
- National traditions and evolution of economic thought regarding institutions
- Various economic schools on the role of institutions in the economy
- Is economics a value-free or value-laden science?
- Role of institutions in shaping economic thought
- Institutions and economic performance
- Institutions and values in Transitional/Emerging/Developing markets

Keynote Speakers

- Geoffrey Hodgson, Research Professor in Business Studies at the University of Hertfordshire, Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of Institutional Economics
- Viktor Polterovich, Professor at the New Economic School

A selection of papers from all areas of the conference will be published in the Special Issue of the European Journal of the History of Economic Thought.

Important Dates

Symposia

A number of symposia are scheduled for the conference, the names of each and their organisers are provided below.

- Keynes' General Theory After 75 years: Please contact Peter Kriesler for details.
- Economics and Sociology: Organised by Ben Spies-Butcher.

- Valuing Care Work: The symposium aims to explore issues around valuing care work and progress policy debates. We particularly welcome papers with a focus on gender, aged care, and social and community services. Please contact Siobhan Austen for more information.

And a session on Uncertainty, Conflict and History: Sociology meeting Heterodox Economics

- While the GFC has shaken our faith in neoclassical economics, the rise of austerity measures highlights the continued dominance of orthodox policy approaches. In building alternatives to neoclassical economics we suggest a re-engagement with a broader social scientific approach to the economy. Critical social science offers the possibility of addressing some of the most challenging aspects of a new financialised global economy, going beyond developments within the neoclassical tradition that attempt to incorporate limits to rational behaviour and knowledge. In particular we focus on three themes. First, the importance of uncertainty, and the way risk and uncertainty are managed by political and economic institutions. Second, the role of conflict in shaping economic institutions and outcomes. And third, the importance of politics and history in shaping economic life. We highlight the continuing dominance of the finance sector and the imposition of austerity measures as evidence of the need to develop new analyses of the role of government and of social movements in the economy. The workshop aims to open a dialogue between heterodox economists and other social scientists to better inform our understanding of the economy, and to develop more coherent alternatives to neoclassical approaches.
- For further details on this session, please contact: Ben Spies-Butcher ben.spies-butcher@mq.edu.au

14th International Conference of the Charles Gide Association for the Study of Economic Thought

June 7-9 2012 | Nice, France | website

Organized by GREDEG, CNRS and the University of Nice-Sophia Antipolis and with the support of ISEM.

« History of macroeconomics: from the years of « High Theory » (1926-1939) to modern approaches »

- Submission deadline: 15th of January 2012

In the context of the current economic crisis, macroeconomists have great incentives to investigate the founding contributions of macroeconomics as an autonomous field of research. The aim of this conference is to question the nature of those investigations and to analyze how macroeconomics has evolved.

Proposals for communications on the conference theme might fall within one or several of the following topics:

1. Modelling Expectations
2. Financial instability, deflation and debt policy
3. Business cycles theories, cyclical growth analyses
4. The finance-growth nexus
5. Theories of economic growth
6. Accelerator – multiplier models (debates, microeconomic foundations...)
7. Corridor of stability and macroeconomic policies
8. Disequilibrium theories
9. Monetary theories and policies
10. Keynes and Keynesianism
11. Economic theories and policies

Plenary addresses will be given by Kevin Hoover (Duke University), Pascal Bridel (Lausanne University) and Rodolphe Dos Santos Ferreira (Strasbourg University).

The 14th Charles Gide conference also encourages submissions of papers or open sessions in all other fields of History of Economic Thought.

A thematic issue will be published at the Cahiers d'Economie Politique: a specific call for papers will be diffused soon and posted on the websites of the Charles Gide Association for the Study of Economic Thought and of Cahiers d'économie politique.

Proposals for communications, in the form of abstracts of approx. 500 words, specifying whether or not the paper falls under the theme of the conference, should be sent before January 15, 2012, at Gide2011@gredeg.cnrs.fr. The decisions of the scientific committee will be made by February 20, 2012 and final papers will have to be sent before May 21, 2012. For further information, please visit <http://www.gredeg.cnrs.fr/Colloques/GIDE/> or write to the organizing committee at Gide2011@gredeg.cnrs.fr.

CALL FOR PARTICIPANTS

4th Annual Conference of Competition and Regulation in Network Industries

November 25, 2011 | Residence Palace, Brussels, Belgium

We have the pleasure to announce the holding of the Fourth Annual Conference of Competition and Regulation in Network Industries. The conference, organized in partnership with the Center for European Policy Studies (CEPS), will take place on November 25th 2011 in Brussels at the Residence Palace.

The conference takes a multi-disciplinary approach and explores the legal, economic, institutional and public policy aspects of the reform of network industries. In doing so, it highlights dominant current trends and issues affecting various network-based and network-related industries through parallel sessions, including:

- Challenges in network industries
- Liberalization models in network industries
- Smart grids and smart meters
- Various sectors: airline, energy, telecommunications and railways

This edition of the conference will feature more than 60 papers. In addition, it will include a keynote speech by Dr. Jose Luis Guasch (Senior Advisor, World Bank).

Fees

- Member of academic/non-profit institution: EUR 150
- Member of business community: EUR 250

Registration will be open until the 1st of November 2011. For more information about the venue, accommodation or papers from previous editions, please refer to our conference website at <http://crni.epfl.ch/conference.php>.

75 years of General Theory

December 2- 3, 2011 | University of Paris 1 – Panthéon Sorbonne, Maison des Sciences Économiques, 106, boulevard de l'Hôpital, 75013 Paris, FRANCE

The year 2011 marks the 75th anniversary of the publication of Keynes's The General Theory of Employment, Interest and Money. The conference aims at analyzing the influence of Keynes's book on current theories and policies. It will discuss the ways Keynes's ideas fueled the reflection of all economists, whether Keynesians or not, theorists or policy makers, and discuss how The General Theory was used, instrumented or hijacked both by economic theories and by economic policies.

For more information and registration, see the conference website: <http://ces.univ-paris1.fr/75GT.htm>

2011 E.L. "Ted" Wheelwright Memorial Lecture

27 October 2011 | University of Sydney

This year's prestigious public lecture at the University of Sydney will be presented by Professor SHEILA DOW, the renowned post-Keynesian economist from Stirling University in Scotland. She will be coming to Australia specifically for this purpose.

Her topic will be "Policy in the Wake of the Banking Crisis: Talking Pluralism Seriously"

- When: 6pm on Thursday 27 October.
- Where: Eastern Avenue Auditorium at the University of Sydney.

Entry to this event is free and advance booking is not required.

On the following day (Friday, 28 October 2011) Professor Dow will also be a participant in a forum on

What are banks and bank regulation for?

Other panelists with Professor Dow will include:

- Professor Dick Bryan [University of Sydney], Dr Peter Docherty [University of Technology Sydney], Peter Kell [Deputy Chair of the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission] and a representative of the Australian Prudential Regulatory Authority

The panel will discuss the role and design of banking regulation in the wake of the global financial crisis, the nature and purpose of money and banks.

- When: 10.30 am – 12.30 pm, Friday 28 October
- Where: Darlington Centre, The University of Sydney.

RSVP by Friday 14 October is essential if you wish to attend this forum. Please email:

lynne.chester@sydney.edu.au or michael.beggs@sydney.edu.au

Advanced Pedagogy and Course Design Workshop: Cutting Edge Teaching Techniques and Strategies for Pluralistic Economists

January 5, 2012 (A day prior to the ASSA meetings) | Roosevelt University, Chicago

Facilitated by Dr. Geoffrey Schneider, Professor of Economics and Director of the Bucknell University Teaching and Learning Center.

Registration Fee: Note that you must submit the $25 registration fee to be guaranteed a spot in the workshop—space is limited and will be allocated on a first-come first-served basis.

To register, send your name, contact information, and a check for $25 payable to:

Teaching and Learning Center
Bucknell University
123 Bertrand Library
Lewisburg, PA 17837

Scholarships: Scholarships are available for graduate students and for untenured faculty who do not have financial assistance to attend the workshop. Scholarships in the amount of $125 are available to cover conference registration and expenses related to attending the workshop (lodging, travel). Most of these scholarships are being provided by heterodox organizations, including URPE, AFEE, AFIT, and ASE, to their members, although a few scholarships are available to unaffiliated graduate students. To apply for a scholarship, please register for the workshop and include in your submission a letter of application including your name, email address, reason for requesting a scholarship, employment status (year in graduate school and expected date of completion, or year and location of employment) and whether or not you are a member of any of the heterodox associations listed above. Preference will be given to graduate students in their last two years of graduate school and visiting or untenured professors. Note that those receiving a scholarship will receive a check for $125 upon completion of the workshop, but no funds will be available prior to that point.

Overview: Most heterodox economists today end up working at teaching-oriented institutions. Thus, our success in the academy often depends significantly on our ability to teach successfully. This workshop is structured for heterodox graduate students and new faculty to give them a comprehensive background in advanced pedagogical techniques and strategies that will help them succeed in the classroom. Drawing on the latest pedagogical research, the workshop will cover constructing and meeting learning objectives, syllabus design, models for pluralistic teaching, active and collaborative learning techniques, and teaching controversial topics.

8:30-9:00 Registration; Pick up materials; Initial activity

I. Course design

9:00-9:30 Designing first day activities: establishing Customs, Connections, Community and Curiosity.

The first day of class sets the tone for the whole semester, and it is an opportunity to begin building the kind of classroom environment that you want. Participants will engage in a group activity modeling good first day activities, discuss best practices, and work on constructing their own activity that connects with their course material and that facilitates productive classroom interactions.

9:30-10:10 Constructing sophisticated learning objectives for an engaging, well-organized course.

Often the first thing that tenure and job search committees look at is your syllabus and its learning objectives. A well-organized course contains a coherent focus with sophisticated course-level learning objectives. Learning objectives should include the big ideas of the course, they should define what students should learn to do (e.g., solve a particular type of problem; understand the economic issues in a newspaper) and at what depth students should understand things. A course should also be broken down into objectives for major assignments which can be assessed. Participants will hear about best practices in constructing learning objectives and will construct some for their courses.

10:10-10:20 Break

10:20-10:50 Course rules vs. a Welcoming Syllabus

We are often told that a syllabus is our “contract” with the students. If we don’t have an iron-clad syllabus, we open ourselves up to students taking advantage of us. But many syllabi are lifeless and hectoring, written for the few bad apples instead of the many good students. We’ll work on creating a welcoming syllabus that also protects us from problem students. We’ll also consider designing a syllabus that serves as a useful study guide for students. This is important for pedagogical purposes and because constructing a welcoming syllabus can be quite useful for the job market and for the tenure process.

10:50-11:30 Meeting learning objectives: exams, papers and assignments that facilitate learning

We all use exams, papers, assignments and other techniques for assessing how well students meet our learning objectives, but they can be dry and formulaic. We will work on constructing exams and assignments that actually help students learn material, and design rubrics to facilitate learning and to make grading easier and more systematic.

11:30-12:00 Bringing pluralism into the economics classroom I: models for pluralistic teaching

Teaching heterodox material in the classroom can be complicated in that we sometimes face hostile colleagues or students. There are different methods for teaching heterodox economics, such as a heterodox-focused course, a multi-paradigmatic approach, or an implicitly pluralistic approach to the subject matter. Each of these comes with different opportunities and challenges. We will discuss the various approaches and determine which one suits our teaching environment and our personal style.

II. Lunch Roundtable: Teaching environments facing pluralistic economists

12:00-1:30 Invited guest speakers talk about their experiences teaching heterodox economics.

Panelists will include: Bob Prasch, Middlebury College; Martha Starr, American University; Paddy Quick, St. Francis College; and more. Guest speakers will offer advice for new teachers of heterodox economics. They will discuss the challenges they have faced as teachers, both from colleagues and from students, and share some of their most effective teaching strategies. After the panelists finish brief presentations, we will have an open discussion.

1:30-1:40 Break

1:40-2:10 Pluralistic Teaching II: Strategies for Teaching Controversial Topics

There is an art to teaching heterodox ideas in ways that are welcoming to students, even those who are the children of the bourgeoisie! We will discuss some classic strategies for teaching material that may seem quite controversial to many students. It is particularly important for heterodox economists to frame material so that they are seen as open-minded and fair.

III. Classroom interactions 2:00-4:00

2:10-2:50 Active Learning Techniques for Economics Classes

At teaching institutions today, the focus is on active, student-centered learning. We will focus on some classic active learning techniques to make the classroom more lively and to get students more engaged in the course material.

2:50-3:00 Break

3:00-4:00 Collaborative Learning Exercises for Economics Classes

Some of the most exciting and innovative classroom exercises involve collaborative learning. During this part of the workshop, participants will participate in and learn about collaborative learning exercises designed for use in economics classes. They will begin adapting some cutting edge collaborative learning techniques for their classes.

4:00-4:10 Wrap Up and Workshop Evaluation

About the workshop leader: Geoffrey Schneider received a BA from Northwestern University and a Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. He is currently a Professor of Economics and Director of the Teaching and Learning Center at Bucknell University. He has co-authored two textbooks, Introduction to Political Economy and Economics: A Tool for Critically Understanding Society, and authored or co-authored articles in the Journal of Economic Issues, The Review of Social Economy, The Review of Radical Political

Economics, The Forum for Social Economics, and Feminist Economics. He is an award-winning teacher, author of several articles on pedagogy, and guest editor of two special issues of the Forum for Social Economics on Teaching Heterodox Economics.

The Euro crisis: Causes and Remedies

25 October 2011 | JG0001, John Galsworthy Building, Penrhyn Road Econ Club Panel discussion on:

With Dimitris Sotiropoulos, José R. Sánchez-Fung, Engelbert Stockhammer and Nick Butler (chair)

Until two years ago the Euro was considered a big success: inflation was low and the poorer countries were catching up rapidly. But since then the situation has changed dramatically. Greece, Ireland and Portugal are in deep recession and had to request support from the other EU countries, because markets have stopped lending to them. A European rescue fund has been set up, but the crisis is spreading to other countries. What are the causes of the crises? What reforms does the Euro system need?

- Dimitris Sotiropoulos is a Lecturer at Kingston University. His research focuses on changes in the financial sector and their societal implications. He has recently published Rethinking Imperialism (with J. Milios) He has been living in Greece until a few months ago and will give a first-hand report of the situation there.
- José R. Sánchez-Fung is Senior Lecturer in Economics at Kingston University and has been Visiting Researcher at the Bank of Finland in Helsinki. His main research area is monetary economics with particular reference to developing countries. He is co-author, with Subrata Ghatak, of the textbook Monetary Economics in Developing Economies.
- Engelbert Stockhammer is Professor at Kingston University. He is working on the macroeconomics of distribution and financialization. He has recently published A Modern Guide To Keynesian Macroeconomics And Economic Policies (with E. Hein). He will give a Keynesian account of the crisis.
- Nicholas Butler is Head of the School of Economics at Kingston University.

The Econ Club will organise regular extra-curricular events at the School of Economics to further discussion of timely issues in economic policy and theory. We hope for student participation of these events in the future.

International Economic Policies, Governance and the New Economics

Thursday 12 April 2012 | St Catharine's College, Cambridge, UK | website
A conference organised by the Cambridge Trust for New Thinking in Economics

Purpose of conference

The conference will explore further the contributions to new thinking in economics ('New Economics') as the new mainstream. There will be a focus on the international aspects. The New Economics is concerned with institutional behaviour, expectations and uncertainty, as opposed to traditional economics with its emphasis on equilibrium, mathematical formalism and deterministic solutions. Given the financial crisis brought on by the unrestrained pursuit of personal and corporate profit, sanctioned by traditional economics, this is an opportune time to establish a new way of approaching economic understanding, based on new economic theory. It is also a good time to bring forward new ideas on the approach to economic policy across a wide range of areas (for example, macroeconomic and global governance, employment and unemployment, social security and pensions).

New thinking in economics is an interdisciplinary approach to economic problems that acknowledges and respects the insights and analysis from other disciplines, e.g. those from ethics, history and engineering. It also recognises complexity and evolutionary theory as relevant to understanding economic systems and economic behaviour. We want to emphasise the thinking in economics that goes beyond the traditional approach, which is arguably no longer mainstream economics. The conference will concentrate on the international financial aspects of this approach. It will be held under the aegis of the Cambridge Trust for New Thinking in Economics, a charitable body.

London Seminar on Contemporary Marxist Theory 2011-12

The global economic and financial crisis has witnessed a deepening of interest in different forms of critical and radical thought and practice. Following a successful series in 2010/11, the London Seminar on Contemporary Marxist Theory in 2011/12 will continue to explore the new perspectives that have been opened up by Marxist interventions in this political and theoretical conjuncture. It involves collaboration among Marxist scholars based in several London universities, including Brunel University, King's College London, and the School of Oriental and African Studies. Guest speakers – from both Britain and abroad – will include a wide range of thinkers engaging with many different elements of the various Marxist traditions, as well as with diverse problems and topics. The aim of the seminar is to promote fruitful debate and to contribute to the development of more robust Marxist analysis. It is open to all.

2011/12 Seminar Series

12th October, 6pm: King's College London, Strand Campus, Room S-3.18

- Alex Callinicos (King's College, London): Slavoj Zizek and the Critique of Political Economy

9th November, 6pm: King's College London, Strand Campus, Room S-3.18

- David McNally (York University, Toronto): onsters of the Market. Zombies, Vampires and Global Capitalism

14th December, 6pm: King's College London, Strand Campus, Room S-3.18

- Jairus Banaji (SOAS): Retotalizing Fascism: reading Arthur Rosenberg through Sartre's 'Critique'

The schedule for 2012 will be made available at a later date. Speakers will include Susan Marks (LSE)

Seminar Series on the History and Methodology of Economics

Cedeplar-UFMG, through the Research Group on the History and Methodology of Economics, will organize a series of seminars during the second half of 2011. This initiative serves two essential purposes:

- firstly, to further interaction among Brazilian researchers working on the History of Economic Thought and the Methodology of Economics, thus creating a research network connecting several national academic institutions;
- secondly, to establish Cedeplar and UFMG as centers of reference in Brazil for all those involved in both of these research areas - professors, researchers, and students at the graduate and undergraduate levels.

The seminars will be open to the general public, while also attended by an audience of specialists capable of actively engaging in the proposed discussions. Each seminar will be presented by a guest speaker, chosen among researchers with acknowledged expertise in the History of Economic Thought and the Methodology of Economics. Eventually, the thematic scope of the seminars will be enlarged so as to cover related areas such as Economic History and Political Economy.

Our intention is to transform the Seminar Series, once established, in a permanent event within the activities of UFMG, taking place at regular intervals and serving as a point of reference and support for Brazilian researchers who wish to present works in progress in front of a lively and qualified audience.

There will be three seminars during the second half of 2011, organized with financial support from Fapemig. The first session happened on September 15th, when our inaugural guest Prof. Maurício Coutinho, from Unicamp, discussed John Locke's monetary theory. The other sessions are scheduled for October 20th and November 10th.

JOB POSTINGS FOR HETERODOX ECONOMISTS

Connecticut College, USA

A full-time tenure track position in economics (behavioral finance)

The Economics Department at Connecticut College invites applications in the field of behavioral finance for a full-time, tenure track position at the assistant level to begin July 1, 2012. Ph.D. in economics at the time of appointment is strongly preferred, demonstrated excellence in teaching and research required. Heterodox economists are encouraged to apply.

The Economics Department is both dynamic and diverse, and among the largest departments at the College in terms of faculty size and number of majors. The Department maintains strong interdisciplinary relationships with a number of departments including International Relations, Environmental Studies, and Mathematics.

Connecticut College is a private, highly selective institution with a demonstrated commitment to outstanding faculty teaching and research. Recognizing that intellectual vitality and diversity are inseparable, the College has embarked on a significantly successful initiative to diversify its faculty, student body and curriculum. The College seeks creative scholars excited about working in a liberal arts setting, with its strong focus on engaged teaching, participation in shared governance, and active involvement in an institution-wide advancement of diversity.

Tenure-track faculty members teach a 3-2 load (2-2 in the first year). In addition to providing ongoing strong support for teaching and research, the College offers the following resources for pre-tenure faculty: a summer stipend for the first two years, a supplementary research fund, and a semester's sabbatical after a successful third-year review. AA/EEO

Application letters, accompanied by a CV, research paper, evidence of teaching excellence, discussion of teaching philosophy, and three letters of reference should be sent to Dr. Edward McKenna, Box 5552, Connecticut College, New London, CT 06320. On-line applications will not be accepted.

Application deadline: Dec. 12, 2011. The Department will interview candidates at the ASSA meetings in January.

Hamilton College, US

Assistant Professor of Economics

The Economics Department at Hamilton College invites applications for a tenure-track position in financial economics at the assistant professor level beginning July 1, 2012. Applicants should be committed to excellence in both undergraduate teaching and scholarly research. While the successful candidate will teach a financial economics course and seminar on a regular basis, scholarship in related fields will also be welcome. The standard teaching load in the department, which has 12 full-time faculty members, is 5 courses per year, with a course reduction in the first year for beginning instructors. The College provides substantial support for research, including start-up funds. Applicants should hold a Ph.D. in Economics or expect to complete all requirements by Fall 2012.

Applicants should send cover letter, vita, research sample, graduate transcript, and documentation of teaching effectiveness electronically to Prof. Chris Georges at the following email address: econsearch@hamilton.edu. Please also arrange to have three letters of recommendation sent to the same email address. For full consideration, completed applications should be received by November 25.

Hamilton College (www.hamilton.edu) is a highly selective residential liberal arts college located in the Mohawk Valley of upstate New York; for applicants with dual-career considerations, Hamilton participates in the regional Higher Education Recruitment Consortium, which posts additional area employment opportunities at www.upstatenyherc.org. Dual career couples should be aware that Hamilton is located within easy commuting distance from Colgate University in Hamilton, NY and that Colgate is also planning to make faculty appointments in a number of departments. A list of Colgate's openings can be found at <http://offices.colgate.edu/hr/faculty.htm>.

Hamilton College is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer and is committed to diversity in all areas of the campus community. Hamilton provides domestic partner benefits. Candidates from underrepresented groups in higher education are especially encouraged to apply.

The Information Technology and Innovation Foundation, USA

Economic Policy Analyst

The Information Technology and Innovation Foundation—a Washington, DC think tank—is seeking to hire a policy analyst to conduct a research program on the economics of innovation and industrial competitiveness. The ideal applicant is familiar with the scholarly literature around innovation and competitiveness and appreciates the need for active government policies in these areas.

Essential Responsibilities:

- Develop and carry out a policy research program focusing on restoring U.S. innovation-based competitiveness, with a particular focus on tax and budget policies (e.g., analysis of the R&D tax credit and other tax policies)
- Write policy reports, op eds, and other materials on competitiveness policies
- Speak at forums, testify at hearings, and engage in other outreach efforts
- Organize policy conferences, roundtables, and other events on U.S. innovation and competitiveness policy

Qualifications Requirements:

- A doctorate in economics, public policy or related field or a Master's degree with at least 5 years experience
- Understanding of the relevant scholarly literature in the area of innovation and competitiveness
- Excellent writing skills and ability to write for policy audiences
- Ability to communicate results to both technical and non-technical audiences
- An understanding of and appreciation for "new-growth" theory (e.g., endogenous or evolutionary economics) as well as the limitations of the neoclassical economics approach to innovation

ITIF is a growing non-profit, non-partisan public policy think tank committed to articulating and advancing a pro-productivity and pro-innovation public policy agenda. We believe that innovation is central to spurring economic growth and addressing key societal challenges and that public policies should actively work to support innovation, productivity and economic competitiveness. ITIF works to help policy makers understand the critical importance of innovation and innovation policy. We produce publications, hold events, meet with policy makers, speak at forums and engage in other activities to shape innovation policy.

ITIF offers competitive compensation and comprehensive benefits. Send resume with cover letter and writing sample to: Director of Personnel, ITIF, 1101 K. Street, NW, Suite 610, Washington, DC, 20005. Fax (202) 638-4922; or email jobs@itif.org. View our website at www.itif.org.

Sarah Lawrence College, USA

An adjunct to teach a course in the Economics of Health

I'm looking for an adjunct to teach "The Economics of Health" this spring for the graduate-level Health Advocacy Program at Sarah Lawrence College (just outside NYC near the MetroNorth train line). The course, which enrolls primarily older women students with no background in economics, contrasts basic approaches to economic analysis (neoclassical, Keynesian, Marxist, behavioral, and feminist) and ends with an exploration of one or two current-day health-related issues such as health disparities by race and class, analysis of the recent health reform legislation, etc.. Class meets once weekly; pay is standard adjunct pay. Ph.D. preferred; advanced abd considered; teaching experience and evidence of teaching effectiveness required.

I'm currently teaching the course and love both the program and the students. But I'm overloaded this spring and am looking for a replacement. I'm happy to share my syllabus, scanned materials, etc. and discuss the course and the program with interested candidates.

If you're interested, please send me your c.v. And please forward this to anyone who might be interested. Thanks!

Associate or Advanced Assistant Professor, Economics

The University of Massachusetts Amherst Economics Department invites applications for a tenure-system position starting Fall 2012, preferably at the Associate or advanced Assistant level, although outstanding candidates at the beginning Assistant level will be considered. Appointment is contingent on budgetary considerations. We seek expertise relating to: (1) public goods and the common good; (2) economic opportunity; and (3) power, institutions, behavior, and economic performance. Scholars from all fields of economics and closely related disciplines are encouraged to apply. A completed Ph.D. is strongly preferred, though ABD with a firm completion date will be considered. Candidates will be judged on their scholarly research as well as teaching. See <http://www.umass.edu/economics/facjobs.html> for more information. To apply electronically (strongly encouraged), submit cover letter, CV, three letters of reference or contact information for references, a recent research paper, and, if possible, evidence of teaching effectiveness at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/858>. Letters of reference and complete applications also can be submitted by postal mail to Chair, Search Committee, Department of Economics, Thompson Hall, University of Massachusetts Amherst, 200 Hicks Way, Amherst, MA 01003-9277. Review of applications will begin on November 15, 2011. Candidates may interview at ASSA (Chicago) and are encouraged to use AEA signaling. The University of Massachusetts is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer. Women and members of minority groups are encouraged to apply. We are committed to fostering a diverse faculty, student body, and curriculum.

Assistant Professor, W.E.B. Du Bois Department of Afro-American Studies and Department of Economics

The University of Massachusetts Amherst W.E.B. Du Bois Department of Afro-American Studies and Economics Department invite applications for a tenure-track position starting Fall 2012, at the Assistant level. The primary appointment will be in Afro-American Studies with an adjunct appointment in Economics. Teaching, graduate-advising responsibilities, and service will be divided between the two departments. We seek expertise relating to: (1) Stratification Economics with an emphasis on racial stratification and discrimination; (2) Economics of Identity; (3) African American Economic History; and/or (4) Environmental Economics. Scholars from economics and closely related disciplines are encouraged to apply. A completed Ph.D. is strongly preferred, though ABD with a firm completion date will be considered. Candidates will be judged on their scholarly research as well as teaching. See <http://www.umass.edu/afroam/> and <http://www.umass.edu/economics/facjobs.html> for more information. Du Bois Department of Afro-American Studies, 329 New Africa House, University of Massachusetts Amherst, 180 Infirmery Way, Amherst, MA 01003-9289. Review of applications will begin on December 15, 2011. Candidates may interview at ASSA (Chicago) and are encouraged to use AEA signaling. UMass Amherst is a member of the Five College consortium along with Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, and Smith Colleges, and is also a member of the Academic Career Network, a resource for dual career couples. The University of Massachusetts is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer. Women and members of minority groups are encouraged to apply. We are committed to fostering a diverse faculty, student body, and curriculum.

Assistant Professor, Departments of Economics and History

The Departments of Economics and History of the University of Massachusetts Amherst invite applications for a tenure-track assistant professorship starting Fall 2012. Depending on qualifications, the scholar will be appointed to a tenure-track position in either History or Economics with an adjunct appointment in the other department. Teaching and graduate-advising responsibilities will be divided between the two departments. The position requires expertise relating to work and labor relations seen through the lens of South Asia or the South Asian Diaspora. We seek a scholar who can teach about South Asian labor and its interconnections to the globalizing world in ways that capture the effect of these processes on the lives of workers, their families, and their communities and how they have shaped the process of globalization. Candidates will be judged on their scholarly research as well as teaching. Scholars from history, economics, or closely related disciplines are encouraged to apply. A Ph.D. completed by 1 September 2012 is strongly preferred, although ABD with a firm completion date will be considered. See <http://www.umass.edu/economics/facjobs.html> and <http://www.umass.edu/history/> for more information.

To apply electronically (strongly encouraged), submit cover letter, CV, three letters of reference, a recent research paper, sample syllabi, and, if possible, evidence of teaching effectiveness at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/979>. Letters of reference and complete applications can also be submitted by postal mail to Co-Chair, Joint History-Economic Search Committee, Department of History, Herter Hall, 161 Presidents Drive, University of Massachusetts Amherst, Amherst, MA 01003. Applications must be received by 4 November 2011. The search committee will conduct interviews at the AHA and ASSA annual meetings.

The University of Massachusetts Amherst is a member of the Five College consortium along with Amherst, Smith, Hampshire and Mt. Holyoke colleges and is also a member of the Academic Career Network, a resource for dual career couples. The University of Massachusetts is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer. Women and members of minority groups are encouraged to apply. We are committed to fostering a diverse faculty, student body, and curriculum.

FACULTY HIRING INITIATIVE

The Department of Economics at the University of Massachusetts Amherst has embarked on a faculty hiring initiative focusing on three key areas of contemporary economic analysis: (1) public goods and the common good; (2) economic opportunity; and (3) power, institutions, behavior and economic performance. We intend to make multiple appointments; rank and salary will be commensurate with qualifications.

In this initiative, we seek to build on the Department's worldwide reputation as the premier center for research and teaching in heterodox economics. We remain committed to fostering a broad range of analytical perspectives, drawing on diverse paradigms. We aim to respond to the growing openness in the economics profession - and the demand from the public - for innovative approaches to economic theory and policy.

In our teaching, research and public service, we aim to build capacity to meet new economic challenges in an era of transitions. These include the transition from a global economy dominated by a few powers to a multi-polar world; from an economy based on fossil fuels to one based on renewable energy; and from economic philosophies that center exclusively on free markets to broader conceptions of the economy in which the public sphere is again recognized as crucial, and growing inequality is regarded as a problem rather than a correlate of progress.

Scholars from all fields of economics and related disciplines are encouraged to apply, including those engaged in inter-disciplinary work. We are particularly interested in scholars whose expertise involves theoretical or applied work related to the following emphases:

1. Public Goods and the Common Good. The Department seeks scholars who study economic theory and applied economics as these relate to multiple dimensions of human well-being and social welfare. In addition to the growth and distribution of income and wealth, we are interested in analyses of the non-market provision of goods and services. These goods and services include environmental quality, care for children and elders, open-source knowledge, scientific inquiry, and public health.

2. Economic Opportunity. The Department seeks scholars who study how economic opportunities are generated and distributed in society. We are interested in these questions at levels of analysis ranging from the family and the community to the regional, national, and global economies. We seek scholars whose research and teaching interests address such issues as social justice and inequalities; networks and information; education and skill acquisition; immigration policies; the macroeconomics of full employment; and the microeconomics of discrimination based on gender, race, or ethnicity.

3. Power, Institutions, Behavior and Economic Performance. The Department seeks scholars who study how power and institutions influence the economic behavior and the performance of the economy as a whole - and how economic behavior and performance in turn impact the distribution of power and the dynamics of institutional change. We are interested in how people behave not only as individuals but also as members of groups - groups defined, for example, on the basis of class, gender, race, or ethnicity - and in how group identifications affect political economy, the design and implementation of public policies, and propensities for conflict and cooperation.

University of Minnesota, Morris, USA

Tenure Track Opening in Economics

Summary. The University of Minnesota, Morris (UMM) announces an opening for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Economics, with specializations in Macroeconomics and either Economic Development or Regional Economics, beginning fall 2012. Specific responsibilities include Intermediate Macroeconomics, Money and Banking, courses related to either Economic Development or Regional Economics, and other introductory or elective courses in economics or in management. The annual teaching load is 5 semester-long courses (20 credit hours). Salary is competitive with mid-tier liberal arts colleges; both research support (including eligibility for internal grants through the University of Minnesota) and fringe benefits are strongly competitive. Success in both teaching and research are required for promotion and tenure; qualified candidates with an interest in a balanced teaching and research career at an undergraduate liberal arts college are strongly encouraged to apply. Position open until filled; application review will begin on Nov. 1. Candidates will be contacted for interviews at the ASSA in Chicago.

Location: One of five campuses of the University of Minnesota, UMM is located 160 miles west of Minneapolis in the rural community of Morris, MN (population 5,000).

Advantages: Small college life-style coupled with access to the University of Minnesota's research support, libraries and information technology, and excellent students. Salaries are competitive with mid-tier liberal arts colleges, and fringe benefits are competitive with top tier research universities.

Colleagues: The economics and management program is an integrated department with a collegial faculty of seven persons working together to fashion an outstanding student experience centered on undergraduate learning and research. Our faculty includes both heterodox and mainstream economists.

Teaching: UMM places a strong emphasis on excellence in undergraduate teaching, and therefore we are seeking a person who has a genuine commitment in this regard. The standard annual teaching load is five semester courses of four credits each. Classroom and program innovation are encouraged, and excellent opportunities exist for institutional funding of educational innovations.

Research: The pursuit of an active research or creative program is expected of all faculty members at UMM, and in economics the expectation is that faculty will publish in refereed journals. We are particularly interested in faculty who may involve undergraduates in their professional endeavors. Internal funds are routinely available for student research, and Morris faculty have access to the full range of University of Minnesota faculty research funds on a competitive basis, as well as some specific funds reserved for faculty on our campus.

Affirmative Action: The University of Minnesota is committed to the policy that all persons shall have equal access to its programs, facilities, and employment without regard to race, color, creed, religion, national origin, sex, age, marital status, disability, public assistance status, veteran status, or sexual orientation.

Required Qualifications:

- i) ABD, with a plan for degree completion, in Economics or a related field (for appointment at Instructor rank);
- ii) evidence of successful undergraduate college teaching experience;
- iii) evidence of a promising research program.

Preferred Qualifications:

- i) Ph.D. (or an equivalent terminal degree) in Economics or a related field in hand at the position start date (for appointment at Assistant Professor rank);
- ii) interest in and ability to teach advanced undergraduate courses in macroeconomics, and either economic development or regional economics; the additional ability to contribute to the Management curriculum will be a plus;
- iii) interest in working at an undergraduate liberal arts institution;
- iv) interest in and ability to supervise undergraduate research and internships; and
- v) evidence that the candidate's professional research program is viable at a liberal arts undergraduate institution.

How to Apply:

I.) All candidates must apply online at the University of Minnesota online Employment System at <http://employment.umn.edu>. This creates a required central record human resources record, but is not by itself sufficient for consideration. The letter of application and the CV may be submitted through this channel if the applicant prefers.

II.) Then, to create the local records primarily used in evaluating applicants, please send the following items:

- a. A letter of application (also may be placed in the central record),
- b. Curriculum Vitae (also may be placed in the central record),
- c. Three letters of reference,
- d. Graduate school transcripts (unofficial copies are sufficient for initial screening),
- e. Teaching statement and evidence of undergraduate college teaching success (such as supervisor or student evaluations), and
- f. Research statement and a sample of research output.

A History of Heterodox Economics: Challenging the mainstream in the twentieth century

By Frederic S. Lee

Routledge. September 2011. New in paperback: 978-0-415-68197-1 | 2009 in hardback: 978-0-415-77714-8 | website | 20% discount offer

Economics is a contested academic discipline between neoclassical economics and a collection of alternative approaches, such as Marxism-radical economics, Institutional economics, Post Keynesian economics, and others, that can collectively be called heterodox economics. Because of the dominance of neoclassical economics, the existence of the alternative approaches is generally not known. This book is concerned with the community history of heterodox economics, seen primarily through the eyes of Marxian-radical economics and Post Keynesian economics.

Throughout the 20th century neoclassical economists in conjunction with state and university power have attacked heterodox economists and tried to cleanse them from the academy. Professor Lee, his groundbreaking new title discusses issues including the contested landscape of American economics in the 1970s, the emergence and establishment of Post Keynesian economics in the US and the development of heterodox economics in Britain from 1970 to 1996.

The Dissemination of Economic Ideas

Edited by Heinz D. Kurz, Tamotsu Nishizawa, and Keith Tribe
Edward Elgar. September 2011 c 392 pp 978 0 85793 557 1 (hb) | website

This highly illuminating book marks a significant stage in our growing understanding of how the development of national traditions of economic thought has been affected by both internal and external factors.

The Global Financial Crisis: What Have We Learnt?

Edited by Steven Kates
Edward Elgar. September 2011 c 264 pp Hardback 978 0 85793 422 2 | website

The Global Financial Crisis is a unique investigation into the causes of the most savage economic downturn experienced since the Great Depression. Employing wide and divergent perspectives – which are themselves critically examined – this study analyses the measures that have been taken to restore our economies to acceptable rates of unemployment and growth.

Handbook of Alternative Theories of Economic Growth

Edited by Mark Setterfield

Comprising specially commissioned essays, the Handbook provides a comprehensive overview of alternative theories of economic growth. It surveys major sub-fields (including classical, Kaleckian, evolutionary, and Kaldorian growth theories) and highlights cutting-edge issues such as the relationship between finance and growth, the interplay of trend and cycle, and the role of aggregate demand in the long run.

Institutions in Crisis: European Perspectives on the Recession

Edited by David Howden
Edward Elgar. September 2011 c 264 pp Hardback 978 0 85793 211 2 | website

‘The current European recession is being offered as an excuse for a wider, more expansive centralized Europe. Failure to recognize the true causes of the recession – failed institutions that have plagued Europe for years, and will continue to do so if permitted to continue – will prolong the current malaise, and hold Europe back from its new future. Let us hope that the current volume does much to bring this new Europe to us.’

Marx and Alienation: Essays on Hegelian Themes

By Sean Sayers

Palgrave Macmillan 2011. ISBN 9780230276543 (hb) | website

What does Marx mean by 'alienation'? What role does the concept play in his critique of capitalism and his vision of a future society? Marx and Alienation deals in depth with some of the most important philosophical assumptions of Marx's work. It sets Marx's account of alienation and its overcoming in the context of the Hegelian philosophy from which it derives, and discusses it in relation to contemporary debates and controversies. It challenges recent accounts of Marx's theory, and shows that knowledge of Hegel's philosophy is essential for an understanding of central themes in Marx's philosophy. Marx and Alienation explains and discusses Marx's ideas in an original and accessible fashion and makes a major contribution to Marxist philosophy.

Political Economy and Globalization

By Richard Westra

Routledge. October 1st 2011. New in paperback. 978-0-415-69447-6 | website

Based upon distinguishing capitalism from other economic systems, as well as analysis of capitalist change across its stages of development, Richard Westra argues that the economic tendencies we refer to as globalization constitute a world historic transition away from capitalism. Westra forcefully rejects claims from both Right and Left sides of economic debate that globalization embodies the ultimate world diffusion of capitalism. He concludes that the choice facing humanity is no longer between capitalism and socialism but between socialism and global barbarism.

Three volumes on Crisis by Craig Calhoun & Georgi Derluquian

Situates the current crisis in the historical trajectory of the capitalist world-system, showing how the crisis was made possible not only by neoliberal financial reforms but by a massive turn away from manufacturing things of value towards seeking profit from financial exchange and credit. Much more basic than the result of a few financial traders cheating the system, this is a potential historical turning point. In original essays, the contributors establish why the system was ripe for crisis of the past, and yet why this meltdown was different. The volume concludes by asking whether as deep as the crisis is, it may contain seeds of a new global economy, what role the US will play, and whether China or other countries will rise to global leadership.

2. The Deepening Crisis: Governance Challenges after Neoliberalism

Response to financial meltdown is entangled with basic challenges to global governance. Environment, global security and ethnicity and nationalism are all global issues today. Focusing on the political and social dimensions of the crisis, contributors examine changes in relationships between the world's richer and poorer countries, efforts to strengthen global institutions, and difficulties facing states trying to create stability for their citizens.

The global financial crisis showed deep problems with mainstream economic predictions. At the same time, it showed the vulnerability of the world's richest countries and the enormous potential of some poorer ones. China, India, Brazil and other countries are growing faster than Europe or America and they have weathered the crisis better. Will they be new world leaders? And is their growth due to following conventional economic guidelines or instead to strong state leadership and sometimes protectionism? These issues are basic not only to the question of which countries will grow in coming decades but to likely conflicts over global trade policy, currency standards, and economic cooperation

Possible Futures Series 3 volume set

The Possible Futures Series gathers together the great minds of social science to address the significance of the global economic crisis in a series of short, accessible books. Each volume takes on the past, present and future of this crisis, suggesting that the crisis has an informative history, that the consequences could be much more basic than stock declines, and that only fundamental changes – not fiscal band aids – can hold off future repetitions.

HETERODOX GRADUATE PROGRAMS, SCHOLARSHIPS, AND GRANTS

PhD Scholarships at Brunel University, London, UK

The School of Social Sciences of Brunel University has recently announced nine PhD scholarships. Scholarships include fees, a living allowance, and teaching experience. More information is available here.

The Brunel Social and Political Thought Research Group is keen to encourage applications for these scholarships.

The BSPT Group's research explores different traditions and currents in critical social and political thought. Our individual and collective work covers the full range of modern social and political thought, from the Renaissance through to the twentieth century. We have a focus on the European context and tradition.

Particular research strengths include early modern political thought, the critique of political economy, the history of Marxism and theories of war and conflict. We are also engaged in debates in contemporary political theory and European philosophy, including state theory, the critique of security, critical IPE, concepts of the political and notions of monstrosity. As a group we have specialist knowledge of a diverse range of political theorists, including Machiavelli, Spinoza, Hobbes, Burke, Hegel, Marx, Gramsci, Schmitt, Althusser, Polanyi, Foucault and Negri. The Group is particularly keen to welcome research students working in these and related fields.

Key members of the research group in the School of Social Sciences include:

- Dr Gareth Dale, author of Karl Polanyi: The Limits of the Market (Polity Press, 2010)
- Dr Filippo Del Lucchese, author of Conflict, Power and Multitude in Machiavelli and Spinoza (Continuum Press, 2009)
- Prof Mark Neocleous, author of Critique of Security (Edinburgh University Press, 2008); The Monstrous and the Dead: Burke, Marx, Fascism (University of Wales Press, 2005)
- Dr John Roberts, author of The Competent Public Sphere: Global Political Economy, Dialogue and the Contemporary Workplace (Palgrave, 2009)
- Dr Peter D. Thomas author of The Gramscian Moment. Philosophy, Hegemony and Marxism (Brill Academic Press, 2009)

CRC for Remote Economic Participation Scholarship Program

The CRC for Remote Economic Participation (CRC-REP) is now recruiting highly-motivated postgraduates to a range of research projects. These research projects will directly benefit jobs, lives, enterprises and communities of remote Australia. We strongly encourage postgraduate students to apply for CRC-REP research projects. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students are particularly encouraged to apply. The CRC REP provides considerable support to students in addition to the stipends.

The CRC is able to provide a number of scholarships with preference for top-up scholarships rather than full stipends, to ease the financial burden to students of doing a PhD and to increase the number of students we can support. We would like to encourage universities where possible to consider quarantining an APA scholarship for this purpose to increase the potential for students.

Scholarship documents are available online from our website - www.crc-rep.com.au/education. These scholarship documents are for your distribution through your scholarship recruitment channels as an externally funded research opportunity. The contract that we propose to use follow the normal master contracts we use for other purposes.

Should you have any questions regarding available scholarships and the application process please contact Wendy Cowan on 08 8951 8348 or wendy.cowan@nintione.com.au or Jan Ferguson 0401719882. The closing date for receipt of application forms is 31 October 2011.

University of Massachusetts Boston: Master of Arts in Applied Economics

The Economics Department at the University of Massachusetts Boston is pleased to announce its new Master of Arts in Applied Economics. The curriculum offers three distinctive features: focus on urban economic issues; emphasis on practical application of research methods; and insights from both traditional and alternative economic approaches.

The 30 credit program, offered in late afternoons and evenings, is perfect for people currently working and is designed to provide the theoretical, analytical, and practical skills required of economic consultants, researchers, and governmental and non-governmental organization managers.

Faculty members are heterodox economists with expertise in feminist, behavioral, institutional, Marxian, and post-Keynesian approaches as well as applied economic research experience. Students are encouraged to tackle timely economic policy issues including income stratification, economic and environmental sustainability, progressive taxation, gender and racial inequality, financial reform, and urban transformation.

Wright State University: M.S. in Social and Applied Economics

Wright State University's M.S. degree in Social and Applied Economics incorporates a number of heterodox components. In addition to Microeconomics and Macroeconomics, students are required to take History of Economic Thought; Contemporary Political Economy; Economic, Social, and Ecological Systems; Econometrics; Forecasting; and an Economics Problem Seminar. Heterodox elective courses include Political Economy of Women; Comparative Capitalist Institutions; Labor Market Theory and Policy; and Development Economics. Most students complete the program in one year. The program has a good representation of heterodox economists: Paulette Olson; Rudy Fichtenbaum; Barbara Hopkins; Zdravka Todorova; and Sirisha Naidu. Heterodox perspectives include: Feminist; Post Keynesian; Ecological; Marxist; Institutional; and Social Economics. Wright State University is located in Dayton, Ohio. Historically the program has attracted local, as well as international students.

HETERODOX ECONOMICS IN THE MEDIA

A Nobel for Freshwater Economics

By John Cassidy, October 12, 2012

"This week's announcement of the Nobel Prize in Economics got me thinking about the state of the subject, and my thoughts weren't very positive. Three years after the great financial crisis of 2008 discredited the ruling orthodoxy in macroeconomics and finance, the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences has chosen to honor one of the leading creators of that orthodoxy: Tom Sargent, of New York University. And judging from the reactions to the Nobel announcement, most academic economists heartily approved of it."

"This was the central point that the late Hyman Minsky put forward repeatedly, and which economists of the freshwater persuasion resolutely ignored. Unfortunately, Minsky isn't around to collect the Nobel Prize, and neither is Charles Kindleberger, who helped to popularize Minsky's theories. Even if Minsky and Kindleberger were still alive, I doubt the Nobel committee would have invited them to Stockholm. If they had wanted to honor somebody who has done interesting work in the tradition of Keynes-Minsky-Kindleberger, which actually had something useful to say about the financial crisis and subsequent recession, they could have picked out Axel Leijonhufvud, of U.C.L.A., Paul Davidson, of the University of Tennessee, or Jean Pascal Benassy, of the Paris School of Economics."

QUERIES FROM HETERODOX ECONOMISTS

Wanted: English translation of Rudolf Hilferding (1933), "Zwischen den Entscheidungen"

Dear all,

Next year Rudolf Hilferding's (10.8.1877 Vienna - 10.2.1941 Paris) writings enter the public domain. At present his "Finance Capital" (1910) is already available on the Net in English as well as in French but not in German. There is some hope that the BDIC at Nanterre (www.bdic.fr) is going to digitalise the German version.

Hilferding was a leading figure of the German social-democratic party. About his life: W. Smaldone: Rudolf Hilferding: the tragedy of a German Social Democrat. DeKalb: Northern Illinois University Press; 1998.

He wrote a very important article "Zwischen den Entscheidungen" (Between Decisions) which was published in 'Die Gesellschaft' January 1933.

If you are able and prepared to translate the article into English please contact me.

Yours,

Klaus Hagendorf

Pierangelo Garegnani (1930 - 2011)

We are very sad to report that Professor Pierangelo Garegnani died on Friday October 14. Riposi in pace.

“““ Pierangelo Garegnani (Milan, 1930 - Lavagna, 14th October 2011) was an Italian economist and professor of the Università degli Studi Roma Tre. He was the Director of the Fondazione Centro Piero Sraffa di Studi e Documenti at the Facoltà di Economia "Federico Caffè", and also the literary executor of the works, documents and papers left by the eminent Italian economist Piero Sraffa to the University of Cambridge's Wren Library. Professor Garegnani has been one of the leading theoretical critics of neoclassical economics. He has published several books and articles concerning the classical economic theory, from Ricardo to Sraffa, as an alternative theoretical foundation to analyse the capitalist economy. (from Wikipedia)

“““ Falleció ayer a los 81 años. Una enorme pérdida para la teoría económica de uno de los principales teóricos económicos de los últimos 50 años.

Vaya nuestro recuerdo y homenaje de nuestra parte que tuvimos la fortuna de conocerlo en Uniroma tre. Nos hemos quedado con el enorme bagaje de trabajos, y con la posta de continuar con su garra teórica, aunque no sea de su enorme nivel nuestro humilde caletre.

Digital impact factors and rankings of English economics journals 2011

"Welcome to the first digital ranking of economics journals. As research and its dissemination become increasingly digitally based, a digital impact ranking of journals seems overdue – hence this undertaking, which includes 307 English economic journals... The digital top 20 includes most of the journals usually found in the top 20 of traditional rankings. But it also contains five outsiders, including two that are neither US nor EU based. This suggests that in the digital age the traditional power structures of the economic profession are strategically

URPE supports Occupy Wall Street: a report from New York

People participating in Occupy Wall Street shared their experience at the URPE “War on the Working Class” conference in Brooklyn on Saturday October 1, and a group of 9 people also attended Sunday’s Membership Meeting. URPE members applauded the activists and the discussion turned to ways in which we could cooperate in working for our shared goals. It is clear that the activists will succeed in continuing the occupation for a long time, and also that the fledgling movement will grow. Already there have been occupations in 45 states, and increasing numbers of people are openly challenging “the system.” Two of the popular chants are: “They got bailed out, we got sold out” and “We are the 99%.”

The activists are eager to discuss their own perspectives and are open to a wide range of ideas. There is a general recognition that the economic system has failed to provide for the people and that the political system does not provide for their representation. Several URPE members have already visited “Liberty Park” where informal discussions are continually taking place. The occupants come from a wide variety of backgrounds. Young people who have never held regular jobs mix with students from both public and private universities and are joined by unemployed people from “Main Street” to “Wall Street.” There is a daily “General Assembly” each evening at 7 where decisions are made by consensus with scrupulous attention to democratic procedure, including a policy for preferential recognition of speakers from groups who are under-represented in traditional discussions. (This resembles URPE’s own “affirmative action” policy for recognition based on gender and race/ethnicity/nationality, but includes preference for GLBT people.)

URPE members also participated in the New York October 5th demonstration of 20,000 people which brought more than 30 trade unions, many community organizations and students walking out from several universities to march in solidarity with Occupy Wall Street. It is hard to describe the ways in which the possibility of a broad-based, unified movement in opposition to “the system” generated a welcome sense of optimism about the future, in place of the despondency which has been an all too common a response to the increasing attacks we have been experiencing for a long, long time. On a small scale, the participation of Occupy Wall Street people in Sunday’s URPE Membership meeting was a terrific experience for URPE members, and the activists were delighted to be greeted with such enthusiastic support.

The activists are committed to a long-term struggle. They know that it will be hard to continue the actual occupation in New York in its present form in the cold months of winter, and there is ongoing discussion of how to build the movement into the future. New York activists talked, at Sunday’s URPE meeting, of setting up a “free university” which would allow for more structured learning, and URPE offered to help in this. Sunday’s discussion included ways in which we could share out experiences on how to ensure transparency and accountability among our members/participants. In the meantime, please note the following:

- Email message from Sid Gurung gurus655@newschool.edu:
Occupied Wall Street Journal (a newsletter produced by Occupy Wall Street) is taking in submissions from everyone at occupymedia@gmail.com. If you could pass this info around with the people in URPE, that would be great.

Higher Education Faculty support the OCCUPY WALL STREET protest. We see the impact of the economic crisis in our classrooms and on our campuses each day. Our students are burdened with crippling student loans as they face a bleak and depressed job market and an economic recession with no end in sight, while our institutions increasingly rely on adjunct and part-time faculty. We teach more and more for less and less, and our students suffer as we lose our ability to mentor because of our own lack of time and financial insecurity. The OCCUPY WALL STREET movement is a step towards a better and more just future for our past, current, and future students and for higher education faculty. We stand in solidarity with Occupy Wall Street.
