Issue 260 — March 09, 2020 — web¹ — pdf² — Heterodox Economics Directory³

As an open-minded heterodox economist one should always try to be aware of interesting or noteworthy developments in mainstream economics. This task is not easy - simply because of the vast amount of literature produced - but nonetheless important for two reasons: first, one should have some informed intuition about where the larger part of the field of economics is heading. Second, one should be able to identify and utilize contributions that complement or relate to heterodox perspectives.

In this vein, I wanted to make you aware of an upcoming book by Anne Case and Angus Deaton on „Deaths of Despair“⁴ (and the future of capitalism). In this book Case⁵ & Deaton⁶ emphasize two tenets that I closely associate with Veblen, Myrdal, Polanyi and other proponents of the idea that economic actions and outcomes are „socially embedded“: first, that subjective well-being depends on one's relative position in society. Second, that economic inequality is mutually related to social inequality in other dimensions as, e.g., health, resource-use or political influence. Touching on these topics Case & Deaton argue that economic polarization in the US is increasing, that this economic polarization translates into a divergence of life-expectancy between the rich and the poor (which actually even reduced average life-expectancy in the US between 2014 and 2017) and that this change in life-expectancy is partially driven by ”deaths of despair”, that are, suicides and deaths related to the use of drugs.

Case & Deaton support their arguments with an impressive and informative analysis of the available data and argue, in concluding, that the rent-seeking and discriminatory practices inherent to the US health care system are among the root causes of this development. For me the key quote (taken from this video/presentation⁷, which I highly recommend) has been that „life expectancy is falling in the US not in spite of what we spend on healthcare [which is far above what other developed countries spend], but because of what we spend on health care.“ That's a strong statement indeed and given that it comes from the economic mainstream and not from Bernie Sander's recent campaign video is a sign of hope for the profession.

29th IAFFE Annual Conference on: "Sustaining Life: Challenges of Multidimensional Crises" (Quito, June 2020)

25-27 June 2020 — Quito, Ecuador

Sustaining life requires inclusive and resilient economic and political systems and the sustainability of our environment. Feminist economics continues to offer a vital set of intellectual perspectives and methodologies with which to analyze these issues. Our economic and political systems are failing to address human needs and ecological fragility, particularly with the growing rise of illiberal democracies. Our societies face pressures to divide along lines of race, religion, nationality, gender, and sexual identity. Borders are increasingly shutting people out and walls are being built. Globally, women face threats to their livelihoods and bodily integrity. Against this backdrop, new economic visions and tools are needed and feminist approaches are essential. Feminist economics has long looked beyond the simplifications that are embedded in the categories, methods, and models of mainstream economics and welcomes insights from other disciplines. Our approaches look at activities within the socially constructed categories of households, firms, communities, and the state; we consider economic activity both inside and outside markets; and we seek a more integrated understanding of human well-being in which productive and reproductive activities are valued. The IAFFE 2020 Conference will provide a forum for scholarship and inquiry that recognizes the methodological pluralism of our field. We define our field broadly and welcome research that brings a feminist lens to topics both micro and macro, local and global.

Submissions

Abstracts (400 words max.) must be submitted online via the IAFFE website⁸. The submission software is available in English and Spanish and submissions may be made in either language. It will be assumed that the language of the abstract will be the language of the presentation. Submissions can be made for individual papers, sessions (3-5 papers), or panels/roundtables. Participants are limited to one paper presentation and one roundtable/panel appearance. Additional co-authored papers are allowed only if they are presented by the co-author. These limitations allow maximum participation by all members wishing to participate. Please see the IAFFE website, www.iaffe.org, for more submission guidelines.

Please find further information on the website⁹.

Submission Deadline: 15 March 2020

7th International Degrowth/16th ISEE International Joint Conference: "Substainable Welfare beyond Growth" (Manchester, Sept 2020)

1-5 September 2020 — Manchester

Come to Manchester in September 2020 to meet with other activists, artists, policy-makers and scholars. We'll explore how we might meet our needs in ways more relevant to the worsening ecological, climate and social crisis: “alternative livelihoods”.

Survival will mean an urgent transformation of the ways we organise, produce and consume. That means a society that knows when to slow down and stop its relentless expansion of production and consumption. In place of economic growth it would value sufficiency: enough, but not too much, for everyone.

How can social and political momentum best be mobilised to bring about those changes democratically and with justice? This conference will discuss these many challenges. There will be workshops, debates and discussions, artistic performances, walking tours and installations on the themes of the conference. It will also seek to contribute to the local political debate. It will strive to demonstrate and explore cutting-edge thinking and practice and also encourage political mobilisation amongst academics, activists, artists and policy practitioners.

Key topics to be explored include:

⁸<http://www.iaffe.org>

⁹<http://www.iaffe.org/annual-conferences/2020-annual-conference/>

- Activist
- Arts
- Alternative Economies
- Alternative Livelihoods, well-being and ways of living
- Communication, Education and PEdagogy
- Feminism
- Green New Deal
- Law, Governance, Policy and Politics
- Materials, Energy, Waste and Climate
- Organisation and Business
- Rural/Agricultural/Food
- Theoretical Perspectives
- Transitions/Designs for the Future
- Urban and Spatial Planning

Please find further details at the Conference website¹⁰ or contact the organizing committee via email.¹¹

Formats of academic submissions

- Individual papers that will be grouped into sessions by the conference organisers.
- Participatory sessions encourage reflection on a particular topic using an open format (e.g. discussion workshops, dialogues/reading/planning sessions, walks etc).

Format of activist sessions

- degrowth in practice events might involve, for example: organising swaps; workshops on making/repair, agricultural initiatives, technology commons, publishing, waste reduction, reuse, sustainable and just energy; degrowth workshops for kids and elderly people.

¹⁰<https://tinyurl.com/Degrowth2020Mcr>
¹¹<mailto:degrowth2020@manchester.ac.uk>

- meetings of social movements and grassroots initiatives, especially meetings that stimulate dialogues between different groups.
- co-consultancy sessions where groups seek help from other groups re diagnosis, organisation, communication, tactics and strategy.
- conference live-streaming and other media support.
- proposals for public-facing events, including a demonstration or similar mass event in public space on the closing day.
- we also invite local groups to get involved as partners in coordinating the conference.
- logistics on the ground (e.g. via organising crash-pad accommodation, transport, volunteers etc).

Artistic Sessions

All forms of artistic expression are welcome (e.g. visual art, theatre, dance, music, poetry, performance art, etc etc etc etc). A connection to degrowth is not a requirement, but we would like some of these sessions to engage with it or have a political aspect more broadly. Participatory formats are most welcome. We invite local groups to get involved as partners in organising artistic events such as:

- exhibitions on degrowth or related themes in Manchester parallel (& prior) to the conference.
- film showings on degrowth or related themes - within the conference or in venues around Greater Manchester.
- theatre events on degrowth or related themes in Manchester before or parallel to the conference.
- artistic programme for children during the conference.

Submission Deadline: 15 March 2020

Review of Economics and Economic Methodology (REEM): Special Issue on "Inequity, Inequality, Insecurity"

Special issue: Inequity, Inequality, Insecurity (Volume V, Issue 1, November 2020)

There is absolutely no doubt that the homo economicus have set their foot in, or to be more precise returned to, the age of inequality. Massive concentration and centralization of wealth, growing capital-labor antagonism, soaring core-periphery division, expansion of interpersonal inequalities and inequalities of opportunity, restricted inter-class mobility and assortative mating, unequal taxation and across-the-board decline of worker's living standards, are a few dimensions indicating that inequality has gone awry. There are ample reasons why 2019 can be seen as the year when economic inequality continued to dominate the mainstream theoretical landscape. Besides the deluge in academic writings and public debates, the fact that economic inequality became a matter of general public concern is self-evident once it is acknowledged that the Nobel Prize in Economics was awarded to Banerjee, Duflo, and Kremer, for their experimental approach to poverty. Moreover, the previous laureate, Krugman confessed that the international trade and growth models vastly underestimated the effects on jobs and inequality. Additionally, this year was permeated with numerous works on inequality which can justifiably be labeled as seminal studies. These are, inter alia, Milanović's "Capitalism Alone", Piketty's "Capital and Ideology", Stilwell's "Political Economy of Inequality", Saez and Zuckerman's "The Triumph of Injustice", Pistor's "The Code of Capital", Cope's "The Wealth of (Some) Nations", and Boushey's "Unbound". In light of this, it comes as no surprise that our special issue is devoted to the continuation of efforts in raising the awareness of the role that the inequality phenomena has in relation to the "ordinary business of life" and sustainable societal provisioning.

We welcome all contributions within the domain of inequality that question whether the past inequity is the root cause of present-day inequality, and how present-day inequality is determining future insecurity. In addition to the traditional research of outcome and opportunity, a focus will be on work that presents a novel approach to the study of inequality. Accordingly, the editors encourage applications providing an outlook related to the historical development, value theory, property and ownership considerations, environmental issues, social media and technology, and surveillance capitalism. The final objective of this special issue is to furnish a painfully necessary departure from the marginalist narrative which predominantly justifies the excessive inequalities on the grounds of incentives. This volume seeks to investigate the previous shortcomings, analyze the present theoretical frameworks, and propose innovative solutions for tackling the existing, detrimental inequalities. In this sense, the prime concern of this number is to make a case for the pluralist approach to economic inequalities that will confirm and deal with the analytically well-established axiom that extreme inequalities render dysfunctional societies.

15th Forum of WAPE - Rethinking Economic Analysis, Political Economy vs Economics (Athens, August 2020)

31 July - 2 August 2020 — Athens, Greece

The 15th WAPE Forum will be held 31 July - 2 August 2020 at Panteion University, Athens, Greece. It is co-organised by WAPE (World Association of Political Economy¹⁵) and GAPE (Greek Association of Political Economy¹⁶) and hosted by the Panteion University of Social and Political Sciences¹⁷. The broad theme of the conference focuses on the controversy between the two main alternative traditions in economic analysis, Political Economy and Economics. Economics (with their myopic understanding of the economy as simply market relations, neglect of social and political factors and class struggle and their almost overt support for capital against labour) has been historically proved incapable of grasping how economies work and forecast and confront competently economic crises. On the other hand, Political Economy (offering a social understanding of the economy, focusing on the sphere of production, linking economic analysis to social and political factors and to class struggle) has been more successful in comprehending the actual workings of the economy and in analyzing economic crises. However, despite their long-standing failures, Economics continue to dominate academia and policy-making centers, especially in the West. Even after the last global economic crisis and its blatant failure to foresee and to resolve it, its dominance remains unwavering as it is supported by strong vested class interests. Nevertheless, there is growing unrest within both the academia and the society with this failed dominance. Political Economy is the main approach towards which all those dissatisfied with Economics turn. This conference aims to juxtapose Political Economy and Economics and contrast their positions on the various fields and areas of economic analysis. Within its broad theme, WAPE 2020 invites all contributions that enrich the perspective of Political Economy and expand the ground for further discussion. Indicatively but not exclusively, proposed papers can touch upon the following issues:

1) Historical anniversaries:

- Friedrich Engels' 200th anniversary: his legacy in Marxism and Political Economy
- V. I. Lenin's 150th anniversary: his economic writings

21) Political Economy of European integration and the Eurozone crisis²²⁾ Development studies at an impasse

- Developmental state after the Post-Washington Consensus
- Role and policies of international organizations (IMF, WB, WHO, UNHCR, UN etc.)

23) Country case studies The official language of the Forum is English. All accepted papers will be published as an e-book with ISBN before the conference. Best papers will be considered for publication in the World Review of Political Economy¹⁸ and the International Critical Thought¹⁹ after passing the peer refereeing process

How to apply Send a paper abstract (500 words) and your full curriculum vitae in English to both politiceconomy@gmail.com²⁰ and wapemember@vip.163.com²¹. Acceptance letters and instructions for registration will be sent out by 1 April 2020. The structure and the schedule of registration fees are detailed below. Full papers must be submitted by 1 June 2020. Both individual papers and complete panels on the main theme and proposed topics are welcome. You are also welcome to propose other topics on the theme. There is also the option to apply to attend the forum without a paper. In that case, you will be sent an invitation letter for visa purposes etc. upon registration and payment of registration fees.

WAPE Awards

The Distinguished Achievement Award of World Political Economy of the 21st Century, established by WAPE, has been granted annually since 2009 to recognize outstanding books and articles in political economy published since the year of 2001. It is intended to promote research of modern political economy around the world by granting this award to those who have made important innovations in the theories or methodology of political economy. The Marxian Economics Award, established by WAPE in 2011, is given to recognize an outstanding lifetime record of achievement in political economy. Its purpose is to promote the development of research of Marxist economics around the world by granting this award to those who have made important innovations in the research of theories, methodology, and application of Marxist economics. The 2020 WAPE Awards will be granted at the opening ceremony of the 15 th WAPE Forum. Nominations and

18th International Conference of the Charles Gide Association on 'Co-operation' (Lausanne, Sept. 2020)

10-12 September 2020 — Lausanne, Switzerland

The 18th international conference of the Charles Gide Association will be held at the University of Lausanne (UNIL), 10-12 September 2020, under the auspices of the Centre Walras Pareto d'études interdisciplinaires de la pensée économique et politique (CWP). The theme of the conference will be on 'Co-operation'.

'Co-operation', i.e. 'acting hand-in-hand with someone else' has been, for centuries, central to the way economic and political societies operate. The question of co-operation arises in the 1820s in a number of important and converging ways: in Robert Owen's shadow it was understood as a way of organizing the economy in such a way that it was rooted in co-operative societies, which were constituted on the basis of collective decision making and an equitable distribution of wealth. From the 1820s onward, many thinkers who were influenced by Charles Gide's 'co-operativism' and the Nîmes School considered the idea of co-operation to be at the centre of their reflections. This gave birth to numerous social and economic experiments. In the British case, these ranged from the Rochdale Society of Equitable Pioneers to the Preston Model.

The topic of co-operation raises many questions, especially, for example, in relation to reciprocity and exchange, oscillates between distinct poles. As a 'Third Sector' it differs explicitly from capitalism, liberalism, and socialism. But the boundaries between co-operation and other political ideologies are far from being clearly demarcated – see Marx for a discussion on the relation between capitalism and co-operation. In a broad constellation of concepts, co-operation can be situated next to 'associationism' and 'mutualism', and gave rise to a Theory of Commons, as well as a social-economy of solidarity. Situated between the spheres of individual actions and transactions and state intervention, it co-ordinates and orientates actors in the political and social spheres.

A number of economic theories today have developed out of the concept of co-operation. It can be deployed in game theory in order to account for modes of social organization, shedding light on how social institutions, which are emerge out of competing private interests, might be made stable.

²²<mailto:wapemember@vip.163.com>

It is therefore worth studying co-operation's theoretical foundations, its changing, and many meanings, the debates it has generated in the field of economic, social, political, and philosophical thought, and its numerous historical forms.

Some of the issues raised by co-operation in various fields may provide for fruitful avenues of reflection:

- How were social institutions designed to achieve co-operation and co-ordination theorised and established?
- To what extent does the history of thought shed light on the reasons underlying individual and group co-operation?
- Is co-operation the result of a political will to transform society, or, is it, more prosaically, a good way to do business

As in previous years, this Gide conference will also host papers on all topics related to the history of economic thought and philosophy of economics. Proposals by doctoral students are highly encouraged as practical research workshops and sessions useful for the pursuit of their careers will be organised for the conference. Please apply on the conference website,²³ for a communication (max. 500 words) and for a session (max. 800 words, collecting 3 communications separately submitted).

Association for Evolutionary Economics (AFEE) @ ASSA: "Returning Realism in Economics" (Chicago, January 2021)

3-5 January 2021 — Chicago, IL, USA

Returning Realism to Economics

To quote Bill Dugger, “Realism is the touchstone of institutionalism. Institutionalists may differ over many particulars, but on this we agree: economics should be realistic; it should deal with the real world, the world as we find it, not the world we must assume in order to build determinate models. This does not mean that institutionalists wish to be atheoretical. Institutionalism is not opposed to theory. Instead, the quest for realism

²³<https://wp.unil.ch/gide20/>

²⁴<mailto:gide2020@unil.ch>

²⁵<https://wp.unil.ch/gide20/>

means that institutionalism starts with history, with human economic experience. It is from experience, not a priori first principles, that institutionalists try to theorize, and we criticize those who take shortcuts that avoid the messy details of the human experience.”

Recognizing the world as we find it is the first step in constructing theories, policies, and institutions to mitigate the problems we find. We are at a turning in the evolution of capitalism, whether we continue the reactionary policies of Trump or move beyond to address the problems at hand, economics must be rooted in the real world. Of course, all papers that fall within the traditions of Veblen, Commons, and Polanyi will be considered. Papers that address the following, however, will receive special consideration.

- Modern Monetary Theory: Returning Realism to Macroeconomics
- Financing Progressive Programs
- Theories, Policies, and Institutions to Mitigate Climate Change
- Technological Innovation and Corporate Power: Returning Realism to Microeconomics
- Strengthening the Social Safety Set
- The Failure of Neoliberalism

AFEE at ICAPE: AFEE will continue to sponsor additional panels held in conjunction with the International Confederation of Associations for Pluralism in Economics (ICAPE). These sessions will begin at 3:30 pm on Tuesday, January 5 at Roosevelt University, finishing up Wednesday, January 6 by 12:30 pm. Submitters should indicate if they would be available to participate on an ICAPE panel on January 5TH or 6th. Papers presented at the AFEE-sponsored ICAPE sessions will be eligible for publication in the June 2021 issue of the Journal of Economic Issues. AFEE sponsored sessions must be approved by the Committee on Regional and International Conferences (CRIC).

Submission Requirements and Procedures

Membership Requirement: At least one of the authors of any paper must be a member of AFEE by the submission deadline. For registration information, browse to the AFEE website²⁶ or contact Eric Hake (AFEE Secretary-Treasurer) at erhake@catawba.edu²⁷

Submissions: Please send your proposal as an email attachment to John Watkins (program chair) at jwatkins@westminstercollege.edu²⁸ and include the following informa-

- Title of the proposed paper
- JEL code(s) (browse to <https://www.aeaweb.org/econlit/jelCodes.php?view=jel>²⁹).
- Abstract of no more than 400 words.
- Please indicate your willingness to serve as a panel chair or discussant (specify fields).
- Be sure to indicate if you are available to present, chair, or discuss on January 5th and 6th at the Roosevelt University for ICAPE.

Conference Proceedings: Papers presented at the AFEE meeting in Chicago are eligible for publication in the June 2021 issue of the Journal of Economic Issues. To be considered for publication, the text of your paper cannot exceed 2,850 words, with no more than four (4) pages (total) of double-spaced endnotes, references, tables, and figures. The deadline for submission to the JEI is December 14, 2020. JEI submission details will be circulated to authors whose proposals are accepted. Papers should be sent as an email attachment to William Waller³⁰, Editor of the JEI.

Edinburgh Studies in Urban Political Economy: Call for Book Proposals

The Edinburgh Studies in Urban Political Economy series seeks to publish – on a bigger and more ambitious scale – the kinds of research that appear in journals such as Forum for Social Economics, African Review of Economics and Finance and Journal of Australian Political Economy. Edinburgh Studies in Urban Political Economy (Series Editor Franklin Obeng-Odoom³¹) reassesses the urban political economy from transdisciplinary and marginalised perspectives:

- Platinum Open Access

²⁹<https://www.aeaweb.org/econlit/jelCodes.php?view=jel>

³⁰<mailto:waller@hws.edu>

³¹<https://edinburghuniversitypress.com/franklin-obeng-odoom.html>

- Provides a platform for marginalised voices to critically engage with, and ultimately transcend, conventional urban economics
- Intervenes in disciplines including Economics, Geography, Sociology, Anthropology, Planning, Urban Studies, Development Studies and Political Economy
- Socially relevant economics addresses the fundamental weaknesses of mainstream economics and improves how other fields understand cities
- Real-world, problem-based and problem-solving scholarship aims to bring about not just change but a just change
- The series editor, editorial board members and reviewers are a blend of high-profile scholars and practitioners from both the Global North and the Global South to ensure serious engagement and respectful treatment of all topics
- Forms a resource for course leaders, students and policy makers to revisit and rethink urban economies beyond ‘growthmania’

Our world is characterised by cities: their disproportionate share of problems as well as prospects. Seeking to overcome the limitations of mainstream urban economics, this series will help us to better understand, and to address, the challenges posed by cities. The Global South is of particular interest, but it is by no means the only focus. The series emphasises social sustainability of urban transformations, encourages transdisciplinary political-economic approaches to urban economics and welcomes books that are both heterodox and pluralist. Striving to both engage and transcend mainstream urban economics, it places its insights at the disposal of the wider field of urban studies.

Submit your book proposal for the series

Both monographs and coherent edited collections will be considered. Books should be 75–90,000 words in length.

Proposals should be sent to the Series Editor, Franklin Obeng-Odoom, in the first instance: franklin.obeng-odoom@helsinki.fi³²

You can find our book proposal guidelines here³³.

History of Economics Society (HES) @ ASSA: Call for Session Proposals (Chicago, January 2021)

3 - 5 January 2021 — Chicago

The History of Economics Society (HES) will sponsor four sessions at the Allied Social Science Associations (ASSA) meetings. The ASSA offers historians of economic thought an opportunity to present high-quality historical research to a wider audience of professional economists. Given this, preference will be given to proposals that are most likely to interest the broader community. Please remember proposals are invited for entire sessions, rather than single papers.

Please submit session proposals to Ross Emmett³⁴, including:

- abstracts for each proposed paper
- key words,
- the name
- e-mail address and affiliation of each paper presenter and of the chair of the proposed session

Submission Deadline: 1 May 2020

International Critical Thought (ICT): Special Issue on "the birth anniversary of Engels and Lenin"

International Critical Thought (ICT), an English language quarterly hosted by the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences and published by Routledge, is now calling for papers for two special issues to be published in 2020. These issues will commemorate the 200th anniversary of the birth of Friedrich Engels (November 28, 1820–August 5, 1895) and the 150th anniversary of the birth of Vladimir Lenin (April 22, 1870–January 21, 1924). As revolutionists and theorists, Engels and Lenin through their praxis and writings exerted a profound influence on the historical process of their times, and even transformed it. Although the world may have evolved into a “3.0 version” of the reality they dealt with, the issues we face today are not in essence different, involving human beings and nature; technological progress and social development; the expansion of capital and rebellion by the oppressed; alternatives to capitalism and socialism; roads to revolution and the future of humankind; and so on. In our troubled times we need to reflect more fully on the experiences and ideas of Engels and Lenin, not only to ensure that we are invigorated and kept going, and inspired to seek new directions and tactics, but also to achieve the best possible commemoration of the lives and work of these great figures.

³⁴<mailto:Ross.Emmett@asu.edu>

We welcome contributions dealing with, but not limited to, the following topics:
For the special issue on Engels:

- Engels as a historian
- Engels's contribution to the editions of Marx's Capital
- Engels's critique of religion
- The Origin of the Family, Private Property and the State, its significance and the subsequent evolution of the ideas it pioneered
- Anti-Dühring, its contribution to Marxism
- Critical assessment of Engels's Dialectics of Nature
- The young Engels and his contribution to the beginnings of Marxism—particularly his Outlines of a Critique of Political Economy
- Engels's relations to Marx and his contribution to Marxism
- Engels's sociology of the working class and its contemporary relevance
- An updating of Engels's ideas in the light of current conditions
- Engels's understanding of dialectical materialism
- Engels's political thinking and its evolution
- Important philosophical issues raised by Engels's approach to science and method

For the special issue on Lenin:

- Lenin's relation to Hegel
- The relevance of Lenin's State and Revolution
- Lenin's Imperialism: The Highest Stage of Capitalism and contemporary neo-imperialism
- Lenin's concept of the unbalanced pattern of economic and political development among capitalist countries and its contemporary relevance

- Lenin's ideas on the State and Party
- An updating of Lenin's ideas to current conditions
- Lenin's understanding of dialectical materialism
- Lenin's political thinking and its evolution
- Lenin's ideas on culture and their contemporary relevance

To submit a manuscript, please create your ScholarOne account for online submission here³⁵. The desired length of your manuscript is 8,000–10,000 words (excluding references and tables/figures). Submissions should follow the Chicago Manual of Style for in-text citation. Aims and scope, guidelines for submission, and a sample issue of International Critical Thought are available online³⁶. For further information, feel free to contact the editorial office via email at ict@cass.org.cn.

Workshop on „Postcolonial Perspectives on Protest and Reform in the Global Political Economy“ (Kassel, Sept 2020)

15-17 September 2020 — Zierenberg/Kassel, Germany

In response to the worldwide protests in the 1990s against the fatal effects of neoliberal globalization, the policies of international organizations such as the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Trade Organization (WTO) have been under closer scrutiny by activists and researchers alike. Social Science research – in part counterhegemonic – has endeavored to examine the global protests as well as the incipient reform processes in international organizations.

However, an explicit postcolonial perspective on the contested global political economy and its institutions is largely lacking in spite of the proliferation of postcolonial studies in recent decades. Postcolonial studies are united by their focus on colonial continuities and thus on the question of how North-South asymmetries continue on material, institutional, epistemic and discursive terms. While it is clear that international organizations play a central role in these asymmetries, postcolonial concepts such as "othering", subaltern representation and hybridity can open up a different, (self-)critical perspective on global protest, reform processes and the role of the World Bank, IMF, WTO, etc. At the same time, the lack of systematic consideration of both institutional and political-economy contexts has often been the Achilles' heel of postcolonial studies.

³⁵<http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rict>

³⁶<http://www.tandfonline.com/rICT>

We take this complementary deficit of political science and postcolonial studies on one hand as a starting point to substantiate the possibilities and limits of postcolonial protest and reform research and on the other hand, to discuss its political relevance. For it is precisely against the background of the current movement for global climate justice -as illustrated by the "Decolonize!" campaign for example- that postcolonial questions are being asked with renewed vehemence.

We are therefore looking forward to contributions in a variety of creative formats on (or around) the following topics:

a) The contested relation of protest and reform:

- Which protest (form of protest, location, strategy, etc.) led to institutional reforms and which one(s) did not? Why?
- Whose demands were responded to by the reforms and whose were not? How? What role did
- North-South and gender issues play in these reforms?
- How did the reforms affect the global protest movement?
- Are substantial reforms of the institutions of the Global Political Economy even possible – and, if so, what would they look like (from a postcolonial perspective)?

b) (Subaltern) representation in global protests and reforms

- How "global" or how "white" was the protest movement of the 1990s?
- What role did colonial/racist stereotypes play in the protests and (how) were they reflected?
- What role did colonial/racist stereotypes play in the reform responses of the international organizations?
- What does this mean for current political struggles?

c) Silencing, Appropriation, Cooptation in the Reforms of Global Political Economy

- What is the role of the subaltern and subaltern Knowledge in the institutions of the global political economy - and what has changed in this respect as a result of the protests and reforms of the 1990s?
- Which concepts can be used to critically understand the hegemonic access to subalterns and their knowledge (e.g. silencing, appropriation/expropriation, cooptation, commodification, depoliticization or epistemic violence)?

- What role do (social) scientists play in institutional reform processes, e.g. in relation to subalterns/social movements and their knowledge?
- Can institutional reforms also be appropriated "from below"? If so, how and by whom?

d) Colonial continuities of the Global Political Economy and its institutions

- Which colonial/imperial heritage characterizes the structures and institutions of the Global Political Economy?
- What does this mean for institutional reforms?
- To what extent do colonial power relations refigure in current debt crises?

e) Possibilities and obstacles of postcolonial political science

- How can a postcolonial study of institutions in the global political economy draw from the experience of social movements without being extractive?
- Must postcolonial political science give up the "privilege of the last word" (Charter for Decolonial Research Ethics)?
- Postcolonial political science for whom and with whom? What is the political goal?
- Which theoretical and methodological possibilities and obstacles face postcolonial political science?
- How to make postcolonial political science (more) relevant?

Contribution Types:

Please send your contribution ideas on a maximum of one page by April 15, 2020. In addition to articles, short contributions, posters, comics, poems, essays, videos, performances, etc. can also be presented. Your contributions can be ideas, approaches, reports from current research or your practice as well as advanced and completed contributions or research projects. Please keep in mind that the workshop is premised on your participation over the entire duration to make the mutual exchange as productive as possible.

We are making every effort to provide childcare on site. If you would like to bring your children with you, please let us know as soon as possible – with your registration at the latest. The working language of the workshop will depend on the registered participants. Abstracts can be submitted in German or English.

YSI@INET: Workshop on "International Circulation of Economic Ideas throughout History" (Eichstätt, July 2020)

29 - 31 July — University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt, Eichstätt, Germany

Young Scholars Initiative, History of Economic Thought Working Group³⁹ and Africa Working Group⁴⁰, Zentralinstitut für Lateinamerikastudien (ZILAS)⁴¹, Katholische Universität Eichstätt- Ingolstadt and Network for Latin American and European Political and Social Studies (REDLAE)⁴², Alexander von Humboldt Stiftung are organizing a Workshop on International Circulation of Economic Ideas throughout History.

Ideas do move. People travel, books travel, networks are built, international meetings are held. And they always have. Historians of economic thought have always, sometimes unconsciously, analyzed these movements. Who reads whom? Who learns from whom? Where do the attendees of a meeting come from? What do they do when they return home? But, more importantly, how does the reception of a foreign text take place? How capable are the ideas of moving, adapting, departing and arriving? We usually think that, under a center-periphery way of seeing the world, the ideas depart from the center and arrive untouched in the periphery. Is it always so? Or can it be the other way around? The history of knowledge and the history of circulation of knowledge have made lots of contributions regarding how general ideas are actually born, move and eventually die.

But, has there been an analysis of the circulation of economic ideas from non-institutional frameworks? It seems that economists and historians of economic thought have a lot to learn from historians of knowledge who specialize in other disciplines. But the question remains: What is specific in the history of economic knowledge? This workshop takes a functional instead of an institutional approach to the history of economic thought. An institutional approach to economic phenomena focuses mainly on the outcomes of processes, and is prone to the mistake of “post hoc, propter hoc”. A functional approach, on the other hand, focuses on the evolution of a process and how certain solutions are offered to certain problems. Applied to the history of economic thought, the workshop aims to focus on the processes of interaction across scholars, intellectuals, institutions and policy-makers over irreversible, historical time - hence, emphasizing largely ignored lock-in effects of knowledge transfer in the methodological, theoretical and conceptual spheres of economics.

This project intends to gather young scholars who have been dealing with issues of circulation, reception, translation, influences, networking and decolonization of economic thinking, ideas and knowledge, even when the core of their researches may not be precisely circulation, but a wider concern on history of economic thought issues. We will gather some historians of knowledge, who will provide a theoretical and methodological background on how to do research on circulation issues with young scholars working on topics related to the history of economic thought or economic history that somehow include the analysis of international circulation of economic ideas.

Application

In order to apply for the workshop, young scholars are expected to submit an extended abstract of their current research. Circulation of economic ideas does not have to be the main topic of the project, but there have to be concerns regarding this issue. They should also submit a short motivation paragraph, explaining why they think the workshop will be useful in their ongoing research projects. Selected young scholars are expected to submit before July 10th 2020:

- a paper, working paper or draft of their current research project (it may be published or unpublished).
- a separate document (max. 1 A4 page) in which they point out which issues of circulation of economic ideas they have approached, in which they find questions or problems or which conclusions regarding this issue they have arrived to.

Please visit the YSI Project Website⁴³ for further details or contact the organizing committee via circulation.economic.ideas@gmail.com⁴⁴. For Application, please use the application form⁴⁵.

During the conference, selected young scholars are expected to comment on other young

YSI@INET: Workshop on "Pluralism and Global South perspectives in economics" (Milton Keynes, July 2020)

2-4 July 2020 — Milton Keynes, UK

The current historical juncture has exposed the need for alternate ways of thinking about several economic issues. In this regard, the community of heterodox scholars have been playing a key role in offering alternative frameworks of analysis for engaging with these issues. On the one hand, there is an increasing need to engage with these alternate frameworks in order to develop a more holistic understanding of various economic issues and how they interact with other aspects of the society. On the other hand, the dominant heterodox traditions also often fall short of engaging with the heterodox strands and insights from a Global South-centric perspective. These strands that use the lens of the Global South offer important insights that either inform and enrich the existing heterodox frameworks or, at times, depart significantly from these to provide an alternate understanding of various economic phenomena, particularly in the field of economic development.

In this context, we invite Young Scholars interested in the History of Economic Thought, mainly with focus on heterodox economics and pluralism, and in the issues of Economic Development from Global South-centric heterodox perspectives to submit their papers on these themes for our YSI (Young Scholar Initiative) workshop. The workshop is being organised during the Association for Heterodox Economics Conference, which will take place at Milton Keynes, England, July 2-4, 2020. We aim to organize a workshop that will include five sessions within the Conference, which will focus, although not be limited to, these sub-topics:

- The contributions of pluralist, eclectic, mixed and transdisciplinary economists, institutes, doctrines and schools of thought in the past.
- The history of academic, political and theoretical struggles among and between economic theories.

- The history of economic teaching and learning and the conflicts regarding pluralism in economics curricula.
- A Global South lens to understand the issues of economic growth, development and structural transformation.
- Global south perspectives regarding precarity, informality and exclusion.
- Decolonization, Global South perspectives and dominant heterodoxy: to what extent does heterodox economics escape from decolonizing critiques.

Interested Young Scholars may submit a 1000 to 2000 word long extended abstract.. Apply here⁴⁶ ! Each selected young scholar will be required to submit full papers, which they will be presenting at the workshop, before June 10th 2020. Each young scholar will discuss the paper of a fellow young scholar and senior scholars participating at the Association for Heterodox Economics Conference will be invited as discussants.

YSI will provide partial funding for travel expenses and accommodation for the selected participants. The Association for Heterodox Economics (AHE) Conference will be covering the conference registration fee for the YSI participants. However, if a YSI participant presents their paper at the AHE (outside of the YSI workshops), they will need to independently register at the Conference's website⁴⁷. The activities will be coordinated by Ian C S Almeida, Nicolás Dvoskin and and Surbhi Kesar, members of the History of Economic Thought Working Group and Economic Development Working Group of the Young Scholars Initiative. If you have any questions, please contact us het@youngscholarsinitiative.org⁴⁸ or development@youngscholarsinitiative.org⁴⁹.

YSI@INET: Workshop on "Rentier capitalism: contemporary forms of rent and its effects on capital accumulation" (Paris, June 2020)

10-11 June 2020 — Paris, France

The States and Markets and Keynesian Economics working groups of the Young Scholars Initiative of the Institute for New Economic Thinking (YSI/INET), together with the Centre d'Économie de Paris Nord (CEPN), are glad to announce a workshop on rentier capitalism to be held in Paris at the Maison des Science de l'Homme – Paris Nord. aim of the workshop is to discuss the increasing role of different types of rents (ground, intellectual, financial) on contemporary capitalism, bringing together both young and senior scholars working on these topics. Thus, there is two application process, one for young scholars and a second one for seniors.

Motivation

The rise of intangible over tangible assets, real estate bubbles and financialisation are among the stylized facts of what has come to be called rentier capitalism. An era within capitalism in which rent-seeking and predatory capital drive increasing inequality and hamper productive investment and innovation. Everywhere in the economy we see various forms of rents becoming increasingly prominent: from ground rents in urban areas and cities, to intellectual and property-rights rents in pharmaceutical and ICT industries (among others) and, to a greater extent, the so-called financialisation of the economy that has relocated the old financial rentierism at the center of the stage. Coming ahead of the resilience of traditional natural resources rents, the expansion of these rising rents considerably drag on the trajectory of capitalism.

What are the overall effects of these rents on global and national economies? Can we clearly differentiate rents from traditional profits? Are these forms of rent changing the nature of contemporary capitalism? What are the similarities and differences with other moments in history? What type of legal measures and policies could revert rentier capitalism? What are –if any– the differential effects of rentier capitalism between core and peripheral regions? These and other questions motivate the organization of this workshop on rentier capitalism. Not only contemporary analysis will be welcomed but also explorations on how the concept of rent has evolved throughout economic thought and in economic history.

This workshop aims at gathering young and senior scholars working on the aforementioned topics in order to present our findings and, by using knowledge stations, build a joint research agenda that will be followed up with a webinar series after the workshop.

9th Post Keynesian Economics Society Summer School: Introduction to Post-Keynesian Economics and Political Economy

23-26 June 2020 — London, UK

For the 9th time the Post Keynesian Economics Society is organising their summer school on Post Keynesian Economics and Political Economy. We have extended the scope of the summer school by an additional day and added two sessions on stock flow consistent modelling and one on endogenous business cycles.

The general purpose of the summer school is to provide an introduction to Post Keynesian Economics. Key assumptions of Post Keynesian models are that individuals face fundamental uncertainty about the future; there is a central role for ‘animal spirits’ in the determination of investment decisions; inflation is the result of unresolved distributional conflicts; money is an endogenous creation of the private banking system; unemployment is determined by effective demand on the goods markets; financial markets are prone to periodic boom-bust cycles.

For the detailed programme and the different ticket options please visit the website⁵⁸.

EAEPE: Young Scholars Pre-Conference on: “A Critical Assessment of the Faces of Inequality” (Bilbao, Sept. 2020)

1-2 September 2020 — Bilbao, Spain

The European Association for Evolutionary Political Economy (EAEPE) seeks to institutionalize and deepen the involvement of and exchange with young scholars and student initiatives at the association’s annual conference. One of the key forums for young scholars at EAEPE is the annual pre-conference, a series of workshops by distinguished scholars, accompanied by social space to interact and network. Organised by a team of young scholars, pre-conference was first launched in Genova (2015). This year, we invite young scholars to join the 6th pre-conference. The workshops aim at generating interactive discussions and, therefore, the participants are expected to actively contribute to the discussions. This year we will have the honour to host the following invited speakers to discuss various faces of inequality:

- Miriam Rehm (University of Duisburg-Essen) – “Income and Wealth Inequality”
- Susan Himmelweit (Open University) – “Gender Inequalities and the Economy”
- Franklin Obeng-Odoom (University of Helsinki) – “The Political Economy of Global Migration Crisis”
- Giulia Zacchia (Sapienza University) – “Accounting for Diversity and Measuring the Faces of Inequality”

Registration to the Pre-Conference 2020

Please register for the pre-conference workshops through the EAEPE website by June 25, 2020. To register, you need to be a paid up EAEPE member. Membership for students and young researchers is €25/year. In order to avoid last minute cancellations and to cover part of the costs (catering, social dinner, conference material and rooms etc.), there is a registration fee of €90 payable upon web registration. This fee gives you access to both pre-conference and main conference. In case of attending only pre-conference (excluding main conference), the registration fee is €30.

Financial support

There is a fee waiver policy for a limited number of students and young researchers without other funding opportunities. Applicants must provide a written statement of their supervisor or a faculty member of their study or PhD program (or similar) confirming that they do not have financial support. In addition, participants with a paper presentation at the main conference need to upload their full paper. Fee waivers will be awarded according to the quality of the papers. Students without paper presentation need to submit a motivation letter, explaining how participation could potentially benefit their academic development. Fee waiver applications are submitted through EAEPE website where you will need to select ‘Young Scholar’ from a drop-down menu by June 25, 2020. In addition, a limited amount of travel stipends will be granted based on a max 200 words motivation letter that indicates affiliation, place of residence, and the reason for lacking financial support from home institution. Please send the letter per email⁵⁹.

Please note that application for pre-conference, fee waiver, and travel stipend imply three separate applications but with the same due date: June 25, 2020.

We are looking forward to your participation and lively discussions in Bilbao! Please check our website⁶⁰ for more detailed information and updates about the conference.

Rethinking Economics 2020 Conference: "Salvage the future" (London, March 2020)

28 March 2020 — London, UK

The future is uncertain. From ecological breakdown to precarious work, many people feel that business as usual is leading us towards a dead end. However, despite all the pessimism and fear, young people across the globe are demanding change - on the streets and in the classroom.

While dissenting students in economics have raised an unlimited number of questions about the future, answers from the mainstream remain scarce. Is our economics education fit to meet the challenges of the coming decade? What economic issues are behind this sense of decline? And do we need systemic change to salvage the future?

On March 28 2020, Rethinking Economics Greenwich (REG) will host a festival of ideas to tackle these questions. REG is a student society associated with Rethinking Economics, an international network of students, academics and professionals building a better economics in society and the classroom. As a movement of predominantly young students, the questions raised above are not simply academic but existential.

KU Leuven, Belgium

job title: Postdoctoral Researcher on the research project "The Geography of Corporate Financialization"

The Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences, Division of Geography & Tourism at KU Leuven (Belgium) is looking for a full-time Postdoctoral researcher for up to 22 months (or up to 26 months at 0.8 fte). Together with a PhD candidate and partners at the NGO www.somo.nl you will work on the research project "The Geography of Corporate Financialization", which is part of the "Real Estate/Financial Complex" (REFCOM) research group, coordinated by dr. Manuel B. Aalbers. REFCOM is an internationally comparative and transdisciplinary research group looking into the increasing interconnectedness of real estate and finance, and the role of states, politics and institutions. This particular research project is funded by Research Foundation Flanders (see fwo.be).Responsibilities

The financialization of the economy is widely discussed in the literature, especially outside mainstream economics. For several countries, there is evidence of a shift towards finance at the level of the economy at large as well as regarding the financialization of households, but the literature on the financialization of traditionally non-financial firms is less conclusive. The problem is that our understandings—and our statistics—of manufacturing firms versus financial firms are becoming increasingly outdated and new data sources and conceptualizations are needed to understand the contemporary economy. Our first aim is to show to what extent non-financial corporations in different economic sectors across the globe exhibit different signs of financialization in their financial accounts. Our second aim is to arrive at an understanding of the reasons for as well as the workings and the consequences of financialization in non-financial corporations.

Profile

⁶⁵<mailto:wasiq.khan@aun.edu.ng>

⁶⁶<https://www.aun.edu.ng/>

- A PhD degree in Geography, Sociology, Accountancy or Political Economy;
- Proficiency in English is a prerequisite, proficiency in other languages an advantage;
- Affinity with quantitative and to a lesser extent qualitative research methods is necessary; good statistics and computer skills;
- The candidate is willing to move to Belgium, but also willing to travel to other places for fieldwork, research cooperation (e.g. Amsterdam) and conferences;
- A small part (no more than 20% of your time) may be allocated to teaching or general research, teaching and management assistance tasks;
- Candidates who are familiar with the financialization literature will have an advantage, so will candidates that have finished a PhD thesis in economic geography, economic sociology, critical accountancy or political economy. If you are trained as an economist, it is important you are familiar with heterodox and other non-conventional critical approaches.

Offer

- A fully funded Postdoctoral fellowship for 6 months, extendable to a maximum of 22 months (or 26 months at 0.8 fte) after positive evaluation;
- Funding for workshops and conferences during this period;
- A dynamic research group at the forefront of financialization studies / financial geography;
- Starting date: at earliest June 15, 2020; at latest October 1, 2020.

How to apply

Please upload your CV including publication list and teaching experience, a cover/motivation letter of 1-2 pages including three references (you don't need to provide references letters yet), and two writing samples (e.g. a published/submitted paper or a dissertation chapter).

Positive Money Europe, UK

job title: Senior Researcher

Positive Money is a fast-growing organisation that combines the activities of a think-tank, pressure group, and international movement. Our mission is to reform money and banking so that it enables a fair, democratic, and sustainable economy. The current money and banking system causes a wide range of economic, social and environmental problems; most notably house price bubbles, high levels of debt, and rising inequality.

Positive Money is a recognised thought-leader on central banking, monetary policy and banking reform. Our work is regularly featured in the FT, Times, Telegraph, Guardian, City AM, and Daily Mail. We run high-profile campaigns grounded in rigorous research, and the senior researcher will work to ensure credible policy positions are formed. As a member of the research team, the senior researcher will contribute to an ambitious research agenda which covers topics from accountability of the Bank of England to sustainable economics. The researcher will help to identify how to broaden Positive Money's analysis of the dysfunctional money and banking system, and of the role of central banking in a fair, democratic, and sustainable economy.

Profil

You'll have a strong research background, including some economics research. You will have published work demonstrating research and writing ability. You are a clear, creative thinker with developed influencing skills, who can build relationships with and influence key players across academia, private and public sectors. You are able to work in an open-minded way, understanding the complexity of the money and finance system, and being open to different schools of thought. You are innovative and able to think outside of the box to help Positive Money keep ahead of the curve. You are able to learn quickly and understand the core issues behind a range of economic and monetary debates. Ideally you would have some knowledge or be keen to learn in the areas of central banking, banking reform, and digital currencies. You enjoy working in a collaborative and dynamic environment where team members bounce ideas off each other. You want your research to have impact and are able to work with others to make that happen. You have strong project management skills, and understand the importance of working to deadlines. You are happy to take advice and direction from colleagues working in other work programmes, such as influencing/advocacy or supporter network/grassroots organising, in order to see how your work can contribute to our policy and campaigning work.

Key responsibilities

- Work with the Executive Director to develop Positive Money's research strategy

- Be accountable for the management and delivery of research projects from start to finish
- Write research reports & briefings on a range of money and banking reform topics, as well as other research outputs
- Write blogs, and input into Positive Money's other programmes such as policy briefings or newsletters
- Represent Positive Money externally –to a range of different audiences and stakeholders, including to our grassroots supporter network and within policy and academic communities
- Identify relevant trends in UK and global economic affairs
- Collaborate with other members of the team to write funding proposals when required
- Monitor developments in the banking industry and in monetary policy
- Ensure that the Positive Money's proposals remain relevant to external changes in the economy, policy, regulation, technology, and politics
- Engage external researchers in our research agenda (including university academics, PhD candidates, central bankers, regulators and professionals within the financial sector)
- Ensure we have an active and engaged Advisory Panel.
- Person specification Experience and skills
 - #Minimum of 2 years experience working as a researcher or economist
 - Masters or PhD desirable but not essential if other evidence of research ability can be demonstrated
 - Strong quantitative and analytical skills
 - Excellent communication skills, especially the ability to write in a concise and persuasive style using formats appropriate to the audience
 - Knowledge and understanding of current UK economic policy
 - A passion for alternative thinking and problem solving
 - High degree of initiative

- Proven project management skills. Experience in managing multi-stakeholder research projects is desirable
- Attention to detail
- Commitment to a genuinely open minded approach to economics and economic policy and a keen interest in how changes to the structure of the banking system and monetary policy could help to address a wide range of economic, social, and environmental problems
- Excellent interpersonal skills to work with external researchers
- Values and behaviours
- Be self-reflective with a high degree of empathy and self-awareness
- Be committed to our vision for a fair, democratic, and sustainable money system
- Enjoy working with a high level of autonomy, trust, and open-mindedness
- Be committed to working in an innovative and collaborative way
- Friendly and professional manner
- High degree of maturity and able to respond positively in pressured situations
- Ability to work well alone or within a team, as required, and be self-motivated
- Ability to multi-task and manage interruptions
- Ability to work in time-pressured situations and to meet deadlines

Terms and Conditions Salary

Depending on experience £30,000 -38,000 gross pro-rata + 8% pension contribution; 28-35 hours per week (4-5 days) with some flexibility; the post holder would be expected to work the occasional evening or weekend for time off in lieu. 2 –4 weekends a year may be affected; 25 days per year in addition to statutory holidays. The role is for an initial fixed term of 1 year with a 6-month probationary period. After a year if the contract is extended, a permanent contract will be offered.

Reporting to: Executive Director, Positive Money

Location: The role is based at 303 Davina House, 137-149 Goswell Road, London, EC1V 7ET with occasional work away from home and outside normal office hours.

How to Apply

Please download and fill out the Application Form in full (find the website with a link to download here⁷⁰). Please email your completed application form to: recruitment@positivemoney.org.uk

In the ‘Section 4: Personal Statement’ section of the application form please ensure you answer the questions below: Why do you want this role, and why do you want to work for Positive Money? What skills and experience do you have that make you suitable to apply for this role? (please pay particular attention to the skills and experience listed in the person specification) Please note that due to our recruitment practices we cannot accept CVs, or applications received after the deadline. Interview dates: 7th and 8th April Positive Money is committed to providing equal opportunities for everyone regardless of their background. We welcome applications from everyone irrespective of gender, sexual orientation, disability and ethnicity but, as women and Black, Asian and minority ethnic people are currently under-represented within the Positive Money network, we would encourage applications from members of these groups. If you have any queries about the role and would like to have an informal chat – we would love to talk to you. Please contact Positive Money’s Fran Boait, fran.boait@positivemoney.org.uk, 020 7253 3235. Please note that Positive Money can only accept applications from individuals with the right to work in the UK.

Technical University Chemnitz, Germany

Job Title: Professor in Economics - Macroeconomics

The W3-Professorship "Economics - Macroeconomics" (m, w, d) at the Faculty of Economics is to be filled as of April 1, 2021.

The future candidate should represent the subject "Economics - Macroeconomics" in research and teaching. In addition to relevant scientific publications, appropriate professional, methodological-didactic and foreign language knowledge and experience are expected in order to convey macroeconomic issues, especially fiscal policy, in the various Bachelor and Master programmes of the Faculty of Economic Sciences and across faculties. A focus in research on applied macroeconomics is desirable. The future position holder should be involved in the core competence of the University "People and Technology" as well as the research lines of the Faculty "Work" and "Sustainability".

⁷²<http://www.mpifg.de>

⁷³<mailto:SASEinCologne@sase.org>

⁷⁴<https://sase.org/>

Active participation in the promotion of young researchers (PhD students and postdocs) is expected.

The professorship is jointly responsible for the Master's program "Economics". This results in an active participation in the design of the course of studies as well as the teaching offers with corresponding lectures, exercises, projects and seminars and the supervision of master theses. In addition, the professorship is involved in the Bachelor's programme in Economics with lectures, seminars and projects as well as in the professional field of "Associations/International Organisations/Political Consulting" and in the Bachelor's and Master's programme in Industrial Engineering and Management. Furthermore, participation in further interdisciplinary courses of study, especially European Studies, is planned.

Requirements

- Activities and experience in the field of research (ability and willingness to acquire third-party funding, strong publication and lecture activity, promotion of young researchers),
- Activities and experience in the field of teaching (in particular the ability and willingness to take on courses in English),
- activities and experiences in the field of transfer, and
- the willingness to take on tasks in academic self-administration.

Further desired are

- international activities and experience in teaching, research and/or transfer,
- special evidence of qualification in teaching,
- the ability and willingness to engage in further training,
- the ability and willingness to use new forms of teaching and learning and
- the ability and willingness to engage in public relations.

The additional scientific achievements required for the position must be proven by a junior professorship, a habilitation or an equivalent scientific activity. The Chemnitz University of Technology assumes that the future holder of the position will relocate the centre of his or her life and that of his or her family to the city/region of Chemnitz, and is willing to provide support. Chemnitz University of Technology aims to increase the proportion of women in research and teaching. Qualified female scientists are therefore explicitly encouraged to apply. Applications from severely disabled persons or persons of equal status will be given preferential consideration if they are equally suitable.

Interested parties are requested to send their application with the usual documents (curriculum vitae, scientific career, list of publications, list of courses, results of teaching evaluations, overview of lecturing activities, of third-party funds acquired and of supervised doctorates as well as, if applicable, copies of habitations, proof of qualifications, etc.) in both paper and electronic form to

Technical University Vienna, Austria

Job title: Assistant Professorship in the field of “Social Infrastructure Research and Planning”

The Faculty of Architecture and Planning at TU WIEN invites applications for an Assistant Professorship - Tenure Track for a Female Researcher in the field of “Social Infrastructure Research and Planning” in form of an initially fixed-term (6 years) tenure track position starting from July 1, 2020. The candidate and TU Wien can agree upon a tenure evaluation, which when positive, opens the possibility to change the position to Associate Professor with an unlimited contract. The tenure-track position is affiliated to the Institute of Spatial Planning. According to TU Wien’s Plan for Advancement of Women, this announcement invites applications from women only.

Tasks

Social, economic, demographic and spatial developments are affecting social infrastructures (SI) significantly whilst digitization may rapidly change the planning, provision and governance of services. Given the large variety of social infrastructure, the researcher will deal with at least one of the following fields: education (all levels from child care to adult education), health care, social services, and/or (social) housing. While the basic disciplinary backgrounds of the researcher are open (e.g., spatial planning, architecture, social sciences, economics, management, regional sciences, cultural/urban studies), the successful applicant will show a strong foundation (theory and methods) in one of these disciplines, combined with a proven urban/regional and spatial research perspective at an internationally competitive level, and a clear linkage to spatial (urban/regional) planning. The appointee is expected to carry out research in the above-mentioned fields at an internationally competitive level, develop her own distinctive research record, teach at graduate and undergraduate levels, supervise bachelor and master theses, and generally contribute to research at the Faculty's Institute of Spatial Planning. Applicants should possess strong academic credentials, academic leadership capabilities, and proven experience in conducting externally funded research projects.

⁷⁵<mailto:dekanat@wirtschaft.tu-chemnitz.de>

Applicants are expected to have the following essential or desirable qualifications in relation to the above-mentioned fields of research:

Essentials:

- A completed university education with a doctorate (Phd) degree or equivalent;
- an excellent research and scientific record for the relevant field of research (such as international peer-reviewed publications).

Desirables:

- Proven capacity to raise funds (or secure research scholarships) on a competitive basis and manage scientific research projects;
- experience in teaching at a university and supervising students;
- research experience in different research institutions is an advantage;
- as the main language of teaching is German, language proficiency of German will be an asset, but may be acquired at a later stage.

The employment starts as University Assistant with a minimum salary of EUR 3.889,50 (14 per year) according to the collective bargaining agreement for a PostDoc. After signing the qualification agreement, the employment is as Assistant Professor with a minimum salary of EUR 4.599,60. (14 per year).

Applications should include:

- A letter of motivation; • detailed curriculum vitae (CV);
- Certificates of doctoral and diploma degrees (copies)
- list of publications;
- copies of the three most relevant publications for the research field;
- research statement (brief summary of past research activities, as well as a convincing outline of planned research activities, and an explanation of the applicant's contribution to the scientific profile of the Faculty of Architecture and Planning; max. 5 pages including a short abstract);

- short summary of teaching experience, and an outline regarding teaching and instructing students including future perspectives;
- statement on raising research funds/projects (past experience and future plans).

We look forward to receiving your application! The applications (in German or English) should be sent to the Dean of the Faculty of Architecture and Planning, Prof. Rudolf Scheuvens, in digital form (a single pdf file to: socialinfrastructure@tuwien.ac.at). Please find the full call here⁷⁶.

Economic Philosophy: Complexities in Economics

edited by John B. Davis and Wade Hands — World Economics Association, 2020

This book offers a pluralist exposition on multiple meanings and levels of complexity, shedding light on the normative and practical implications that various approaches to complexity involve. We hope that this title will inspire a sustained interest in exchanging ideas and looking for new interconnections between different debates. This is important for academic and practical reasons. As many contemporary problems such as climate change or inequality involve unprecedented levels of complexity, they pose a challenge for both economic theories and methodologies.

Open Marxism 1-4

edited by Werner Bonefeld — Pluto Press

'Open Marxism' aims to think of Marxism as a theory of struggle, not as an objective analysis of capitalist domination, arguing that money, capital and the state are forms of struggle from above and therefore open to resistance and rebellion. As critical thought is squeezed out of universities and geographical shifts shape the terrain of theoretical discussion, the editors argue now is the time for a new volume that reflects the work that has been carried out during the past decade. Covering topics such as political economy, historical materialism, dialectics, state theory, class and fetishism, the authors 'emancipate Marx' from the determinism and positivism of the 20th century and in doing so work towards freeing the human spirit from the control of capital. Emphasising the contemporary relevance of 'open Marxism' in our moment of political and economic uncertainty, the collection shines a light on its significance for activists and academics today.

Openness to Creative Destruction: Sustaining Innovative Dynamism

by Arthur M., Jr. Diamond — 2019, Oxford University Press

Life improves under the economic system often called "entrepreneurial capitalism" or "creative destruction," but more accurately called "innovative dynamism." Openness to Creative Destruction: Sustaining Innovative Dynamism shows how innovation occurs through the efforts of inventors and innovative entrepreneurs, how workers on balance benefit, and how good policies can encourage innovation.

The inventors and innovative entrepreneurs are often cognitively diverse outsiders with the courage and perseverance to see and pursue serendipitous discoveries or slow hunches. Arthur M. Diamond, Jr. shows how economies grow where innovative dynamism through leapfrog competition flourishes, as in the United States from roughly 1830-1930. Consumers vote with their feet for innovative new goods and for process innovations that reduce prices, benefiting ordinary citizens more than the privileged elites. Diamond highlights that because breakthrough inventions are costly and difficult, patents can be fair rewards for invention and can provide funding to enable future inventions. He argues that some fears about adverse effects on labor market are unjustified, since more and better new jobs are created than are destroyed, and that other fears can be mitigated by better policies. The steady growth in regulations, often defended on the basis of the precautionary principle, increases the costs to potential entrepreneurs and thus reduces innovation.

The "Great Fact" of economic history is that after at least 40,000 years of mostly "poor, nasty, brutish, and short" humans in the last 250 years have started to live substantially longer and better lives. Diamond increases understanding of why.

Property, Institutions and Social Stratification in Africa

by Franklin Obeng-Odoom — 2020, Cambridge University Press

In this book, Franklin Obeng-Odoom seeks to carefully explain, engage, and systematically question the existing explanations of inequalities within Africa, and between Africa and the rest of the world using insights from the emerging field of stratification economics. Drawing on multiple sources - including archival and historical material and a wide range of survey data - he develops a distinctive approach that combines key concepts in original institutional economics, such as reasonable value, property, and the distribution of wealth, with other insights into Africa's development and underdevelopment. While looking at the Africa-wide situation, Obeng-Odoom also analyzes the experiences of inequalities within specific countries. Comprehensive and engaging, Property, Institutions, and Social Stratification in Africa is a useful resource for teaching and research on Africa and the Global South.

The Elgar Companion to John Maynard Keynes

edited by Robert W. Dimand and Harald Hagemann — 2019, Edward Elgar

The most influential and controversial economist of the twentieth century, John Maynard Keynes was the leading founder of modern macroeconomics, and was also an important historical figure as a critic of the Versailles Peace Treaty after World War I and an architect of the Bretton Woods international monetary system after World War II. This comprehensive Companion elucidates his contributions, his significance, his historical context and his continuing legacy.

The Mobilization and Demobilization of Middle-Class Revolt

by Daniel Ozarow — 2019, Routledge

Adopting Argentina's popular uprisings against neoliberalism including the 2001-02 rebellion and subsequent mass protests as a case study, The Mobilization and Demobilization of Middle-Class Revolt analyzes two decades of longitudinal research (1995-2018), including World Bank and Latinobarómetro household survey data, along with participant interviews, to explore why nonpolitically active middle-class citizens engage in radical protest movements, and why they eventually demobilize. In particular it asks, how do they become politicized and resist economic and political crises, along with their own hardship?

Theoretically informed by Gramsci's notions of hegemony, ideology and class consciousness, Ozarow posits that to affect profound and lasting social change, multisectoral alliances and sustainable mobilizing vehicles are required to maintain radical progressive movements beyond periods of crisis. With the Argentinian revolt understood to be the ideological forbearer to the autonomist-inspired uprisings which later emerged, comparisons are drawn with experiences in the USA, Spain, Greece UK, Iceland and the Middle East, as well as 1990s contexts in South Africa and Russia. Such a comparative analysis helps understand how contextual factors shape distinctive struggling middle-class citizen responses to external shocks.

Heterodox Graduate Programs, Scholarships and Grants

Levy Graduate Programs in Economics Theory and Policy

Designed as preparation for a professional career in economic research and policy formulation, the Levy Economics Institute Graduate Programs in Economic Theory and Policy offer an alternative to mainstream programs in economics and finance.

Our students come from around the globe and are focusing their research on topics as diverse as children's time use in Tanzania, banking crises in Turkey-Cyprus, racial and ethnic inequality in Major League Baseball, Big Pharma's role in access to HIV medication, and fiscal disparity in the US. To find out more about our innovative programs that combine a rigorous course of study with exceptional opportunity to participate in Applications for fall 2020 are now open. Interested students should contact the program recruiter, Martha Tepepa (mtepepa@levy.org²⁸⁴), to discuss their options. Scholarships are available. We are pleased to announce that both our M.A. and M.S. program are now accepting international students for fall 2020.

Berlin School of Economics and Law: MA in International Economics

The Master in International Economics provides students with a critical understanding of current debates in economics, including heterodox economics in particular. The programme has a strongly international approach and aims to integrate an understanding of theoretical controversies, historical developments and contemporary policy disputes. It also contains an interdisciplinary component reflecting the importance that social and political institutions play in shaping economic developments, and offers several options for specialisation. The programme is accredited and it will equip students with the skills to pursue internationally oriented careers with government and non-government organisations, research institutes, think tanks, trade unions, international organisations and international businesses, as well as to apply for PhD programmes. Courses are taught entirely in English.

The application period for the winter term starts on 15 April. For more information please visit the website²⁸⁵.

Economics at Roosevelt University (Chicago, USA)

The M.A. Program in Economics at Roosevelt University is housed in one of the oldest departments in the world with a Heterodox/Pluralist orientation. Over the years we have been home to many distinguished heterodox economists, including, Abba Lerner, Walter Weiskopf, Fred Lee, Sam Rosenberg, and Steve Ziliak. Our graduates go on to careers in government, business, non-profits, and academia. Twelve of our recent graduates have gone on to Economics Ph.D. programs. We offer supervised internships to all students who want them. We regularly place interns with social service agencies, state and local governments, labor unions, and businesses. New MA students can start in Spring, Fall, or even Summer semesters. Our admission process is a rolling process, meaning that students can expect to hear about acceptance four to six weeks after applying. Our location in downtown Chicago's vibrant south Loop education corridor makes it easy to find student housing and kindred spirits. Follow us on Twitter @RUEcon.

PostDoctoral Fellowship at the International Center for Development and Decent Work, Germany

Job title: Short-term postdoctoral fellowship on Authoritarian Competition
States: Global Perspectives from the South

²⁸⁶<http://www.hwr-berlin.de/en/study/degree-programmes/detail/30-political-economy-of-european-integration/>

²⁸⁷<mailto:glander@roosevelt.edu>

A call for applications for short-term postdoctoral fellowships from the Rosa-Luxemburg-Stiftung and the International Center for Development and Decent Work, Kassel, Germany.

The Global Scholarly Dialogue Programme is an initiative of the Rosa-Luxemburg-Stiftung (RLS) aimed at supporting critical research in and from countries of the Global South, and strengthening dialogue between critical research on authoritarian capitalism from the Global North and South. To achieve this, together with the International Center for Development and Decent Work (ICDD), the RLS is inviting applications from postdoctoral researchers for a visiting fellowship of up to six months, with a starting date in October 2020. As a visiting scholar in Kassel, Germany, the fellow will be able to establish a dialogue with local researchers and explore possibilities of collaborative research and projects. She or he will be able to use all ICDD facilities, such as the library, as well as enjoy the academic environment at the University of Kassel. We also strongly encourage applicants to engage in teaching and outreach activities at the ICDD (details can be discussed at a later stage). The ICDD hosts two Master's programs, the academically oriented MA in Global Political Economy and Development and the MA in Labour Policies and Globalisation. The latter is part of the Global Labour University network, which trains trade unionists and labour activists from around the world on labour-related policy issues. The core of the ICDD is its Graduate School of Socio-Ecological Research for Development. The fellow will be part of the RLS's International Research Group on Authoritarianism & Counter-Strategies. As such, she/he will have the chance to collaborate with the RLS and participate in the group's activities. The fellowship explicitly aims to contribute to a global dialogue between scholars seeking to better understand the rising and seemingly global spread of authoritarianism and advance a path towards a just, democratic society. We are particularly interested in approaches that propose a global perspective for and from the Global South on this issue. To what degree can (historical and contemporary) experiences of authoritarian practices in the Global South contribute to a global understanding of the phenomenon today?

Submission

Please direct any queries and submit your application in one single PDF file (5 MB max; please name the file "SurnameName_application.pdf") to gsdp.application@rosalux.org.

Your application should include:

- A letter of motivation
- An outline of the project you would like to carry out and present while in Kassel, consisting of- abstract (max. 250 words);
- research proposal (max. 2,500 words);

- project timeline (please include your proposed start date); and
- proposed publication outcomes.
- Curriculum vitae, including a publication list. The publication list should be divided into publications in peer-reviewed journals, book chapters, and conference papers. If available, please provide a digital link to the publication.
- Brief description of political, social, and/or cultural engagement As a political foundation in the tradition of the workers' and women's movements, as well as anti-fascism and anti-racism, the RLS places strong emphasis on candidates' political, social, and cultural engagement. We ask you to provide some information on this.
- Referee's report on the candidate. The report can be written either by an academic expert or by a person involved in leftist political projects, movements, or initiatives. In both cases, the report should provide information on the candidate.
- Copy of your passport
- English language skills
- You should have at least a CEFR C1 level of English. If you do not have a certificate to prove this, please provide written information regarding your language skills.
- Certificate of your highest academic degree (generally a PhD).

Unless the document is issued in English, French, Portuguese, or Spanish, please provide an English translation (a certified translation is not required). Please find further information here²⁸⁸.

Two PhD candidates on the research project "The Making of Havana's Property Market – Homeownership, Tourism Property and Transnational Investment" (Leuven, Belgium)

Two PhD candidates (fully-funded) on the research project "The Making of Havana's Property Market – Homeownership, Tourism Property and Transnational Investment"

²⁸⁸https://www.rosalux.de/fileadmin/rls_uploads/pdfs/Studienwerk/Call_Authoritarian_Competition_State_RLS-ICDD.pdf

The Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences, Division of Geography & Tourism at KU Leuven (Belgium) is looking for two full-time PhD candidates for 4 years. Together you will work on the research project "The Making of Havana's Property Market", which is part of the "Real Estate/Financial Complex" (REFCOM) research group, coordinated by dr. Manuel B. Aalbers. REFCOM is an internationally comparative and transdisciplinary research group looking into the increasing interconnectedness of real estate and finance, and the role of states, politics and institutions. This particular research project is funded by Research Foundation Flanders (see fwo.be). Project

This study aims to reconstruct Cuba's economic transition with a particular focus on the making of the property market in the country's capital city of Havana. The emerging literature on the globalization of real estate has addressed how internationally circulating capital has increasingly found its ways into the property markets of the 'Global South'. The restrictions of underdeveloped financial and real estate markets in these countries have been turned into frontiers in the global urbanization of capital. We propose to study market making practices that shape and reshape the Cuban property market following the regularization of private property in 2011. We focus on: 1) the emerging homeownership and tourism property markets; 2) the transnational flow of investment, especially from Cuban expats in Miami and elsewhere in the US; and 3) how households (small entrepreneurs) use opportunities in the tourism property market. Together these processes are constitutive to Havana's emerging property market. The practices of local entrepreneurs and the inflow of capital from Cuban expats in Miami into Havana's (tourism) property market are an entry into understanding Cuba's socio-economic transition towards market socialism. As such, our study also responds to the call to develop more multipolar and cosmopolitan modes of urban theory construction in an age of globalized and financialized capitalism. The first PhD candidate will focus on homeownership whereas the second PhD candidate will focus on property tourism.

Profile

- An MSc/MA level university degree in Geography, Sociology, Tourism, Urban or Development Studies or another social science (you can apply if you are planning to finish your degree by July at latest – if so, please include a one-page, realistic planning as an additional page to your cover/motivation letter);
- Proficiency in English and Spanish is a prerequisite;
- Affinity with qualitative and to a lesser extent quantitative research methods is necessary; experience with interviewing people is an advantage;
- Affinity with developing countries, and good intercultural and ethical skills to work respectfully with people in the Latin Caribbean;
- The candidate is willing to move to Belgium, but also willing to travel to other places for fieldwork (Cuba and possibly Miami) and conferences;

- A small part (no more than 20% of your time) may be allocated to teaching or general research, teaching and management assistance tasks;
- Candidates who are familiar with either the housing studies or tourism property literature will have an advantage, so will candidates that have finished an MSc/MA thesis in urban/economic geography or urban/economic sociology

Offer

- A fully funded PhD scholarship for one year, extendable to four years after positive evaluation;
- Funding for fieldwork, workshops and conferences;
- A dynamic research group at the forefront of urban studies with links to economic geography and tourism studies;
- Starting date: ideally September 1, 2020 but somewhat flexible.

How to apply

Please upload your CV, a cover/motivation letter of 1-2 pages including two or three references (you don't need to provide references letters yet), proof of Spanish and English language skills (if no proof is available, please describe your competencies in the letter), and one or two writing samples (e.g. a term/course paper or a thesis chapter).

For more information, please e-mail both manuel.aalbers@kuleuven.be and g.wijburg@uu.nl. You can apply for this job via the online application tool²⁸⁹. KU Leuven seeks to foster an environment where all talents can flourish, regardless of gender, age, cultural background, nationality or impairments. If you have any questions relating to accessibility or support, please contact us at diversiteit.HR@kuleuven.be.

Application Deadline: 04 May 2020
