

Heterodox Economics Newsletter

Hooray, hooray, here are some fantastic news: starting with this issue the Heterodox Economics Newsletter is back! We are up & running again and this is how it should be and, honestly, it's a good feeling to do such a comeback ;-)

As many of you might have noticed in the past months, our technical facility for distributing emails was down due to a ransomware-attack on my home institution, the University of Duisburg-Essen. While many of the university's IT-facilities are not yet restored, some admin finally decided to put the service for mailing-lists, on which we rely, back online. This is truly relieving as (contrary to what you might believe about the supposedly high standards of diligence in Germany) our administration has not shared much details with us, so we were totally in the dark for some months and could not form any estimate with regard to when, exactly, we will get our mailing-list back.

As our remaining services – like our email address as well as our website⁴ – remained operational, we have continued to publish issues of the Newsletter (although not in the usual frequency) and distributed these issues via alternative mailing-lists as well as on social media. If you want to check back on past issues you might have missed, you can always peek into our archives⁵, in which all past issues of the Newsletter are documented.

As every crisis also brings some opportunities, this emergency strategy had the unintended positive consequence that our follower-base on social media showed a significant increase – we are thankful for this considerate reaction of the heterodox community on social media, but still more thankful that we are now in a position to return to a normal mode of operations. In doing so, we will also return to the usual policies – like sending out a Newsletter every three weeks or writing a short editorial that does say a little more than noting that some emergency is happening ;-)

Hence, we will return to the tradition to provide some key pieces of information at this point – information that typically relates to cool digital tools (like this interactive website⁶ on the history of macroeconomics), progress in heterodox economics (as exemplified by the impressive Encyclopedia on Post-Keynesian Economics⁷ or the fantastic recent special issues published in the *Cambridge Journal of Economics*⁸ and the *Review of Social Economy*⁹) or the mishaps of the mainstream (like this recent piece in the *Journal of Economic Literature*¹¹ that tracks the assimilation of the concept of hysteresis within the mainstream with only minimal reference to heterodox traditions). So, stay tuned for our upcoming issues – we hope you will eventually enjoy our comeback at least as much as we do!

All the best,

71th Annual Conference of the Japan Society of Political Economy (JSPE) (Japan, November 2023)

4-5 November, 2023 — Tohoku Gakuin University, Japan

General Theme of the Annual Conference: “How to Understand Contemporary Price Fluctuations: Their Structure, Reality, and Impact”

The Japan Society of Political Economy celebrated its 60th anniversary four years ago. Over the six decades, the JSPE has endeavored to expand the scope of explorations, from the basic theory of capitalism to the analysis of contemporary capitalism. The JSPE has committed to a critical standpoint against capitalism and mainstream economics and directed its theoretical investigations toward elucidating various issues of capitalism. Nowadays, Marxian economics and the other schools in the heterodox political economy attempt to exert ever more influence in building analytical frameworks to address real-world issues of contemporary capitalism, such as the financial crisis, globalization, and the analysis of class and inequality.

After the outbreaking of the pandemic COVID-19 and in particular, since 2021, a general increase in prices has been observed around the world: the revival of a high inflation problem after a long period of progressed economic globalization and the low inflation prevailed in the advanced countries since the 1990s. Even Japan cannot be exceptional, though it has been recognized as being suffered from long stagnation and deflation during the recent 30 years. Indeed, the consumer price index grew by 4.0% in December 2022, which is the highest growth since the 2nd oil crisis. As these trends in prices are significant and had never been observed before in nearly half a century, they have attracted great attention from both mainstream and heterodox economists.

It was also over the half-century that the great transformation of the capitalist economy has been observed, such as the regime shift from Keynesianism to neoliberalism; globalization; and informatization and financialization of capitalism. Nowadays, the worldwide supply chain conducted and operated by multinational corporations becomes dominant in major sectors of production, which has been supported by the significant development of information and communication technologies, including the Internet. Moreover, the economic transactions in financial sectors are much more significant and expand faster than those in the real economy, which leads to economic crises frequently occurring due to financial shocks. Correspondingly, new idiosyncratic policy schemes, such as Quantitative Easing and expansionary physical policy, have been regularly applied to rescue such crises and even the recent shocks of the global pandemic of COVID-19 and the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

Given this recent transformation of the capitalist economy, one of our goals in the 71st Annual Conference of JSPE is to promote the analysis of the present worldwide high inflation from the perspective of political economy, which would encourage a comprehensive understanding of the present regime of the capitalist economy. We aim to deepen discussions about the price fluctuations in the contemporary capitalist economy, in particular, regarding the real features as well as the structural mechanism of these price movements, and their impacts on citizens' lives, from both theoretical and empirical perspectives.

Proposals

JSPE invites proposals for its international sessions – topics relating to the general theme for the plenary session and reflecting the tradition and analytical perspective of JSPE which includes:

- (a) Critical accounts of the current situations of “deadlocks” of capitalism: neoliberal globalization, the global financial crisis, economic development, inequality, socialism, gender, environment, and global climate change;
- (b) The future of the capitalist system and alternatives to capitalism: major conceptual challenges for critical political economy
- (c) Critical analysis of current political-economic problems and policy challenges,
- (d) Basic theories of political economy

*Proposals of other topics are also welcome

The international session(s) will be held in a hybrid of face-to-face and on-line.

Language

International sessions will be held mainly in English.

Submission Procedures and the Deadline

Proposals should reach the JSPE International Committee at the latest by May 8, 2023, by e-mail¹² .

When submitting your proposal, please include:

- (a) The title of the proposed paper;
- (b) Your name and academic affiliation;
- (c) Your e-mail and postal address;
- (d) An abstract (up to 500 words).
- (e) Desired language other than English, if any.
- (f) Desired style of participation: online or face-to-face.

* Notification of acceptance will be sent by 30 June.

Deadline for the full paper

The full paper and the extended abstract (A4, 1 page) must be submitted by September 19, 2023 via e-mail to: jspeintl\(at\) googlegroups.com¹³

Participation Fee

The way to pay a fee for participation will be announced later on our website¹⁴ .

13th Annual Conference of the International Initiative for Promoting Political Economy (IIPPE) (Spain, September 2023)

6-8 September 2023 — Universidad Rey Juan Carlos, Madrid, Spain Conference
Theme: The Chronicles of Multiple Crises Foretold

The 13th Annual Conference of the International Initiative for Promoting Political Economy (IIPPEE) is taking place from 6-8 September 2023 at the Universidad Rey Juan Carlos in Madrid, Spain. More information about the Conference will be available soon on the official website.¹⁵ In the following, please find the calls from several Working Groups:

1) Social Capital Working Group

Theme: Institutions of Citizen Engagement in the Economy and Public Policies: Networking and Mobilising for Social Change

- Asimina Christoforou, Panteion University, Greece.
- Luca Andriani, Birkbeck, University of London, UK.

We are living in an era of global financial, health, and energy crises, complemented by the chronic impacts of environmental degradation and military conflicts, authoritarianism and oppression, inequalities and injustices. Institutions of citizen engagement in the economy and public policy can play a critical role in tackling current societal challenges, including socio-economic development, environmental sustainability, and social justice. Across the globe we witness attempts to enhance citizen involvement in shaping public policies and economies, such as institutions of participatory budgeting at the local level.

Factors such as power relations, clientelistic and paternalistic networks, discrimination, and the unequal distribution of wealth, can weaken the opportunity for citizens and civil societies to engage more actively in public decision-making at different government institutional levels. Citizen participation enables societies to collectively determine values of social and environmental protection to which markets and states become accountable. It fosters participatory and deliberative democracy, and the use of alternative methods to solve problems, beyond the standard calculative, technocratic techniques of cost-benefit analyses. Finally, it creates a participatory public space where people learn how to trust one another, to mobilise and organise collectively, and to create governance networks where all those affected by economic investments and public policies are invited to actively, openly, and equally take part in decision-making processes. In this respect, they can become sources of social transformation and social progress.

¹⁵<https://iippe.org/>

Thus, the question is: How can we strengthen the potential of democratic participation and deliberation for social and environmental protection and confront the obstacles posed to citizen participation? We invite contributions that examine these questions and suggest alternative institutions and networks where all those affected can partake in decision-making processes to collectively transform their society and their future.

We also encourage contributions that generally address the topic of social capital. We welcome works that derive from various social science disciplines and use different units of analysis (individual, regional, country or cross-country level), methodologies and techniques (theoretical, empirical, qualitative and quantitative). Participants can submit individual papers or organise sessions.

To submit a proposal, please use the “Submit proposal” button at <https://iippe.org/>¹⁶, and carefully follow the instructions. You will need to select “Social Capital” from the list to submit a proposal to our sessions. As usual, submissions may be made as (a) proposals for individual papers (which IIPPE will group into panels), (b) proposals for panels, (c) proposals for streams of panels, or (d) proposals on activism. The electronic submission platform will open February 15, 2023.

For queries and suggestions, you may contact Asimina Christoforou¹⁷, Coordinator of the Social Capital Working Group.

Please find more information on the official website¹⁸.

2) Neoliberalism Working Group

Theme: The Chronicles of Multiple Crises Foretold

The IIPPE Neoliberalism Working Group brings together researchers interested in the material basis of neoliberalism, its national varieties, and alternatives to it. As the contemporary form of global capitalism, neoliberalism is based on the systematic use of state power to impose a hegemonic project of recomposition of the rule of capital in each area of economic and social life, under the ideological veil of ‘non-intervention’. This is guided by the current imperatives of the international reproduction of capital, with the financial markets and the interests of US capital to the fore. Politically, by insulating markets and transnational investors from popular demands, and through the imperative of labour control to secure international competitiveness, neoliberalism also severely curtails democratic possibilities. Neoliberalism has also created an income-concentrating dynamics of accumulation that has proven resistant to efforts at Keynesian and reformist interventions

¹⁷<http://a.christoforou@panteion.gr/>

¹⁸<https://iippe.org/cfp-conference-2023-social-capital-working-group/>

The neoliberal transition in the world economy has been closely associated with ‘globalisation’ and with it, new modalities of imperialism. Yet despite these global drivers, the neoliberal project has reconstituted economic and social relations differently in distinct countries – rather than being globally homogenising. This calls attention to the national and local specificities of actually existing forms of neoliberalism, and to the form(s) of the emerging crises in the system of accumulation.

The Neoliberalism Working Group invites paper and panel proposals that fit in with the general theme of the IIPPE conference and the working group’s research agenda. Topics may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- What are the main tensions, contradictions and fragilities in neoliberalism, and how to they relate to the emerging crises in the system of accumulation?
- Can neoliberalism address the social crisis, the economic crisis, the political crisis, the climate crisis, and the other crises unfolding at this moment in time?
- How should we understand the degradation of the environment and climate change in the context of contemporary neoliberalism?
- Can neoliberalism be sustainable, and can it build a sustainable economic and political system?
- What are the implications of neoliberalism for the current crisis of social reproduction?
- How should we theorise and defeat racial neoliberalism and racial capitalism?
- What are the specific features of neoliberalism’s regional formations e.g. in Western and Eastern Europe, Latin America, sub-Saharan Africa, East and South Asia, and the Middle East, and what are the features of their crises?
- To what extent have left governments managed to transcend neoliberalism?

Contact the convenors of the WG: If you have any questions about being part of this stream please email Alfredo Saad Filho¹⁹. Important: please select the Neoliberalism Working Group when submitting your proposal. dens of adjustment are increasingly being consolidated and/or shifted upon those who are already worst placed to live let alone survive the volatilities that have derived from the unprecedentedly inegalitarian tendencies attached to contemporary capitalism. Such developments have been complemented by corresponding vulnerabilities and oppressions, especially where deriving from authoritarian populism, in political and cultural spheres, the severities of which have been disproportionately experienced on the basis of nationality, race, gender, disability and sexual orientation.

All this continues to reinforce the long-standing world condition that we could do better than capitalism, and with increasing urgency it is becoming a necessity for humanity that we do so. All members of IIPPE will have seen the two general Calls for the Conference that went in December and January. This is a reinforcing Call for submissions to the Moving Beyond Capitalism WG of either individual papers or pre-formed panels, on any topic concerned with moving beyond capitalism, that is, with building a better world.

It is projected that the portal for submitting proposals and abstracts to the Conference will be opened about February 15, and the deadline for submitting these will be March 15. A further Call giving details for submitting will go out around mid-February.

IMPORTANT: In the process of filling out the small amount of information asked for, when it asks for what Working Group that you are submitting to, indicate Moving Beyond Capitalism in order to submit to present in this WG.

If you have any questions about submitting anything to the Moving Beyond Capitalism Working Group, please contact the working group coordinator Al Campbell, at al@econoincs.utah.edu²¹.

PS: For those interested in doing so (not at all required), to promote discussion where desired we have now built the structure so that people who want to can post their Power Point presentation, their notes or (edited) transcript, or an article the presentation may be derived from or related to. They can do this before or after their presentation (by sending the material to me), and if before, then they can change it after the presentation if they want to, to reflect new or changed ideas coming out of the discussion at the presentation. Please find more information on the official website.²²

4) Political Economy of Industrial Development (PEID) Working Group

Theme: Industrial Development and the Socio-Ecological Crisis

The Political Economy of Industrial Development (PEID) Working Group invites proposals for individual papers or panels on themes related to Inclusive and Sustainable Industrial Development, Green Transition and Green Industrial Policy. Proposals ad-addressing the political economy implications of the Socio-Ecological Crisis, and including views from the Global South, will be particularly welcome.

Specifically, we would welcome papers and panels focusing on the following issues:

- Heterodox perspectives on industrial development and policy
- Resource-dependency, war and shifting industrial strategies
- Theories of the state and state capitalism
- GVC-led Industrialisation and the global south
- Green transition and sustainable industrialisation
- Resource extraction and land use in the light of the socio-ecological crisis
- Industrialisation, de-industrialisation and de-growth
- Agrarian transition, structural transformation and resource-dependency
- Industrial challenges of commodity exporting economies in the context of the “green transition”
- ‘Green Industry’ and the future of work – social, political, and economic impact of the ecological transition
- The political economy of the energy crisis and alternative forms of production
- Crisis, GVC disruptions, re-localisations and re-shoring
- Local industrial strategies and sustainable development

To submit a proposal, please go to the following link, and carefully follow the instructions there:

IMPORTANT: Please indicate INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT when you complete the electronic form. For further information please contact the organisers: Lorenza Monaco, Pritish Behuria and Tobias Franz or visit the official website.²³ ual papers or panels on Urban and Regional Political Economy at the IIPPE Conference, September 6-8, 2023, following the successful streams at IIPPE conferences since 2010. We seek papers on any aspect of the political economy of localities and regions (sub-national territories), both rural and urban, and both Majority and Minority Worlds. Papers may be either purely theoretical or theorised empirical studies. We seek papers both on processes/relations within localities and regions and on processes/relations linking these scales to national and international scales. Possible fields include:-

- the roles of the local and national state in urban development, including new forms of urban entrepreneurialism, new municipalism, financialisation, the roles of the state
- how crises play out in and through urban space, including housing bubbles, switching crises, pandemics and how urban space is being transformed by climate change
- climate adaptation and local state restructuring, including climate change mitigation strategies for cities, green financing of urban development
- the interactions between production and social reproduction within localities, and the production of class, gender and racial/ethnic relations and of working class cultures between these two spheres
- the political economy of municipal financial mechanisms: new financial mechanisms and tools (i.e. municipal bonds, green municipal bonds, social bonds, land value capture)
- debtfare states at the local level: municipal debt, financialisation of infrastructure (i.e. transportation, water, and other public services)
- the production of the formal and informal city, and the relationship between the two
- struggles of the working class, social and territorial movements around any of the above issues

Papers should be within Marxist or critical political-economy, and approach the issues from the point of view of the labouring classes, peasants and/or oppressed people. We invite paper that address the Global South, the Global North or both.

It is projected that the portal for submitting proposals and abstracts to the Conference will be opened about February 15, and the deadline for submitting these will be March 15. A further Call giving details for submitting will go out around mid-February.

If you have further questions related to the Urban and Regional Working Group, please contact the coordinators by sending an email to:

6) Africa Working Group

The Africa Working Group invites proposals for individual papers or panels at IIPPE's 2023 Annual Conference (Madrid, Spain, 6-8 September). The Africa working group regularly contributes to the annual conference to bring together activists and scholars of Africa, and those in other IIPPE working groups, who share an interest in radical approaches to political economy, acknowledging the social relations in capitalism and often with a critical Marxist perspective. Visit here²⁷ for more information.

The conference this year focuses on 'The Chronicles of Multiple Crises Foretold'. We particularly welcome papers directly related to the core themes of this year's conference, with particular attention to:

- Africa in the global environmental crises
- Africa, global conflict and imperialist competition
- Africa in the economic crisis and the role of international financial institutions
- the state, authoritarianism and democracy in Africa
- emerging alternatives and popular movements for sovereignty

As always, presentations on all aspects of political economy are also welcome. The Africa Working Group is supported by the Review of African Political Economy (RoAPE), whose contributions are based on politically engaged scholarship from a range of disciplines. The journal pays particular attention to the political economy of inequality, exploitation, oppression, and to struggles against them, whether driven by global forces or local ones such as class, race, community and gender. It sustains a critical analysis of the nature of power and the state in Africa in the context of capitalist globalisation. Visit roape.net²⁸ to see some of the Review's more fast-moving analysis on the climate crisis, critical agrarian studies, 21st century imperialism, popular protest and class struggle, debt and poverty.

To submit a proposal, please go to this link.²⁹ The link will take you to the submission page on our conference platform, Whova, which administers the proposals in the form of issuing a 'ticket'. On the first page, please change the quantity of ticket to 1 and then

7) Financialisation Working Group

Coordinators: Bruno Bonizzi, Philip Mader

We welcome proposals for individual research papers, panels and other presentations that relate to the interests of the Financialisation Working Group at IIPPE’s 2023 Annual Conference. Research on financialisation has significantly grown in size and scope in the last fifteen years. The emergence of financial markets and logics has been tracked and assessed across different scales, spaces, and institutions. From broad macro trends such as the rise of large asset managers and de-risking financial investors’ portfolios, to the financialisation of welfare and remittances, to the assetisation of public goods and the financialisation of daily lives, there is no shortage of evidence of the pervasiveness of finance in modern economies and societies.

At the same time, these processes are now confronted with a profoundly mutated global environment. The resurgence of inflation and interest rates, the return of explicit state-backed protectionist strategies, military conflicts backed by authoritarian politics and the ever more impactful effects of climate change have significantly disrupted the global economy. How will the varied processes of financialisation change in response to what some call “the polycrisis”? Financialisation research must be able to answer this question to show the demonstrate the usefulness of the concept in years to come.

The Financialisation Working Group welcomes contributions to these issues, especially as they relate to the broader themes of the conference. We are looking for empirical and theoretical contributions and we are especially keen on receiving proposals for organised panels. Electronic submissions will open on 15 February, and details will be confirmed shortly. When submitting please indicate you are submitting to the financialisation working group stream. For any questions please contact Bruno Bonizzi at b.bonizzi@herts.ac.uk³².

8) Commodity Studies Working Group

The Commodity Studies Working Group (CSWG) invites proposals for papers for the 13th annual conference of the International Initiative for Promoting Political Economy.

³⁰<mailto:h.cross@westminster.ac.uk>

³¹<mailto:eligreco@yahoo.com>

³²<mailto:b.bonizzi@herts.ac.uk>

CSWG aims to bring together researchers from heterodox economic traditions and other related disciplines interested in developing and critically applying new methodologies and frameworks in the analysis of commodity production/extraction, exchange and consumption in the contemporary world economy.

We particularly welcome papers with a focus on one of the following four themes:

- Commodity chains and global hierarchies
- Macroeconomics for commodity-dependent economies
- Contemporary processes of commodification
- Towards a political economy of price

To submit a proposal, please go to the link.³³

The above link will take you to the submission page on our conference platform, Whova, which administers the proposals in the form of issuing a ‘ticket’. On the first page, please change the quantity of tickets to 1 and then click ‘next’ to proceed. On the second page, fill in the required information, select the Commodity Studies Working Group, and submit your abstract/proposal. You will receive a confirmation email as soon as completed.

Please contact the commodity studies working group coordinators – Sophie van Huellen sophie.vanhuellen@manchester.ac.uk³⁴ and Susan Newman susan.newman@open.ac.uk³⁵ with any enquiries. Further information is available online.³⁶

Themes include:

- Imperialism and its latest forms
- Globalization in question
- Imperialism, climate change and eco-socialist futures
- Moving beyond the blind spots of International Political Economy
- Capitalism and impoverishment today
- New forms of exploitation and labour organizing
- The intensification of international conflicts: NATO, US, EU, Russia, China, India, etc.
- The continuing rise of the far-right and new forms of fascism
- Racism, abolitionism and internationalism today
- Gender oppressions – local and international challenges
- New forms of geo-economic and geo-political conflicts
- Regional manifestations of capitalism' multidimensional crisis: Africa, the Middle East, Asia, Europe, North America, and Latin America
- Peasant and urban struggles and post-pandemic futures
- Anti-capitalism in an age of revolution and counterrevolution
- Labour, social, ecological, feminist, antiwar, and anti-systemic movements

We welcome panel proposals and single paper proposals. If you are proposing a panel, all papers need to be submitted individually via the link below and sent also by email to the working group coordinators with the titles of all papers. If you have any questions, please contact the working group coordinators.

To submit a proposal, please go to this link⁴¹, ⁴² and carefully follow the instructions. Please indicate you want your paper/panel to be part of the World Economy Working Group. Please find more information on the official website.⁴³

14th Annual Post-Keynesian Economics Society PhD Student Conference (London, May 2023)

12 May 2023 — University of Greenwich, London, UK

The Post-Keynesian Economics Society (PKES)⁴⁴ and the Young Scholar Initiative (YSI) Keynesian Economics Working Group⁴⁵ in collaboration with the Institute for Political Economy, Governance, Finance and Accountability (PEGFA)⁴⁶ at the University of Greenwich, is organising its 14 annual PhD student conference on the 12 of May 2023, 10:00-18:00 BST. The conference will be held in person at the University of Greenwich, London. The conference gives students the opportunity to present a chapter of their PhD dissertation and receive detailed and structured feedback from a senior researcher from PKES in a friendly environment.

We invite applications from students who are in a later stage of their PhD and who work on topics relevant to Post-Keynesian and heterodox economics more broadly. Amongst others, this includes topics such as inequality and stagnation, the ecological crisis, structural dependencies in the Global South, the care economy and financialisation. Submissions should qualify as a novel contribution to the literature and be at the stage of pre-publication. We usually do not consider dissertation proposals, literature reviews, or papers based on a master's dissertations.

We actively encourage submissions from people who are underrepresented in economics research. This includes – but is not limited to – individuals who identify as women, black or ethnic minority, those with disabilities, or members of the LGBTQ+ community. Should we receive more applications than we can accommodate, these students will be given priority.

Please submit your working paper and a cover letter of up to 300 words describing your research interest and how your dissertation topic relates to heterodox economics via this form⁴⁷. We accept applications on a rolling basis and aim to inform applicants whether they are accepted as soon as possible. Please keep in mind that the final deadline for submissions to present at the conference is the 26 of March. We will inform you about acceptance at the latest by the 11 of April 2023 and assign reviewers to you. (You will be able to submit an updated version of your paper at this point). To further debate and discussion, successful applicants will be assigned a paper from a fellow presenter to provide feedback on during the conference.

Mark Hayes Prize (Deadline 26 February)

Students can also submit their work to be considered for the Mark Hayes Prize. The prize will be awarded to an outstanding paper presented at the PhD ⁴⁸ conference that furthers the advancement of Post-Keynesian and heterodox economics. The prize is named after Mark Hayes (1956-2019), an exemplary Keynes scholar and former Secretary of PKES. The prize winner will receive a £200 and will be announced at the end of the conference. If you would like your submission to be considered for the Mark Hayes prize, you must submit your paper via the form in advance of the general deadline by the 26 of February. The prize selection committee consists of PKES committee members.

Funding and stipends

There is no participation fee for the conference. Lunch and refreshments will be provided thanks to generous funding by YSI. The conference will include a social dinner, sponsored by YSI, to give the opportunity to young scholars to come together in person, build their network and get involved with the heterodox economics community and YSI.

In addition, YSI will offer partial accommodation and travel stipends to selected young scholars who will present at the conference. This includes travel from Europe as well as the Global South. Scholarships are limited, and aimed at students who cannot obtain (sufficient) funding from their university or other academic funding sources. Travel via plane should be avoided if possible. We are also not able to reimburse taxis or rented cars. Please indicate in your cover letter should you wish to be considered for this and explain that you have exhausted funding from your university. Provided applicants are eligible, scholarships will be allocated on a first-come first-served basis.

Please don't hesitate to contact the organisers via email⁴⁹ should you have any questions. The link to the application form can be found <here>⁵⁰. Updates can be found on the event <website>⁵¹. Please also see information on the YSI website <here>⁵².

20th STOREP Annual Conference: Rethinking Economic Policies: The Role of the State in the post-Covid-19 (Bari, June 2023)

15-17 June 2023 — Bari, Italy

Both the Covid-19 pandemic started in early 2020 and the onset of the Russia-Ukraine war in 2022 have represented unprecedented shocks for the world economy, exacerbating pre existing inequalities and socio-economic crises inherited from the Global Financial Crisis and its aftermath. Since the outbreak of the pandemic, governments and central banks have taken swift and massive action to mitigate its economic and financial negative consequences. Welfare and labour market interventions in most countries have avoided dramatic further increases in unemployment, prompting a renewed debate over the need for more inclusive labour markets, increasing women and young participation, limiting the use of flexible work arrangements and setting minimum wage policies. The European Commission has suspended the Stability and Growth Pact (up to 2023), turning to strategies aimed at restoring economic growth. The International Monetary Fund has recommended focusing on public investments, both in infrastructures and research and innovation, to facilitate economic recovery by stimulating long-term and more inclusive economic growth.

The explosion of the Russia-Ukraine war in 2022 has however increased uncertainty, and depressed consumption and investment. The rising energy costs have led companies to reduce production and postpone investment, while inflation has strongly reduced the purchasing power of households, particularly those at the bottom of the income distribution. Such a new reality and the pressing need to tackle economic stagnation, inflation, increasing inequalities, labour market fragmentation and the rapid growth of non-standard forms of employment call for a radical change in the way public policies are to be formulated and interpreted. This requires a whole reconstruction of economic theories explaining public intervention, considering the essential role of the State and other policy-making institutions both in steering and orienting economic growth and addressing social, economic, and territorial disparities. The history of economic thought can provide relevant contributions helping to reflect on the role of the state in economic policy at times of crisis, through the tools of historical comparison, as well as on the role of the state in a historical perspective.

The 20th STOREP⁵³ Conference, “Rethinking economic policies: The role of the State in the post-Covid-19”, will be held at the University of Bari, Department of Political Sciences, June 15-17, 2023. The Conference will be preceded by the Young Scholars Initiative (YSI) pre-conference events (June 14-15, 2023). The Conference (General program) aims to catalyse a national and international debate on how the role of the State and policy-making institutions needs to be rethought to tackle current societal challenges by promoting a pluralist discussion, through historical multidisciplinary perspectives.

We are pleased to announce that distinguished colleagues Isabelle Ferreras (University of Louvain and Harvard Law School) and Pasquale Tridico (President of INPS, National Social Security Institute, and Roma Tre University) will join the conference as keynote speakers. Maria Pia Paganelli (Trinity University, San Antonio, Texas) will give the seventh “Raffaelli Lecture”. STOREP also organizes a joint initiative with the Institute for New Economic Thinking on “Public investment, Industrial Policies and the European Strategy” with the participation of distinguished colleagues Francesco Saraceno (OFCE-Sciences Po), Annamaria Simonazzi (Sapienza University of Rome), Gianfranco Viesti (University of Bari Aldo Moro).

Also this year, for the first time, we will have a GUEST DISCIPLINE that, for this year, will be Sociology. Therefore, we will welcome contributions and sessions from sociology and economic sociology.

The Review of Political Economy (ROPE) will consider selected papers presented at the STOREP Conference for publication. Participants have to submit their papers to ROPE within six months after the Conference. Manuscripts submitted through this procedure will go through peer review as usual. STOREP is also pleased to announce that a series of academic journals have expressed interest in considering Conference papers for publication.

27th FMM Conference: Inflation, Distributional Conflict and Just Transition (Berlin, October 2023)

19-21 October 2023 — Berlin, Germany

This conference is organized by the Forum for Macroeconomics and Macroeconomic Policies⁵⁵ (FMM).

After years of “Great Moderation” and efforts by central banks to fight deflation, inflation is back with a vengeance. The causes of inflation, its impacts and how to fight it have come to dominate the public discourse. These themes interact in complex ways with distributional concerns and the ecological transformation. The causes of the current inflation remain controversial. What are the relevant weights, in different countries, of supply-side constraints, demand-side factors, mark-up power of firms, or speculation in commodity markets? What is the interaction between these factors and the role of distributional conflict between societal groups, both in driving inflation and in responding to it? Is the green transition itself a source of inflationary pressure or part of the solution? How can a just transition be achieved? What are the likely prospects for inflation given structural changes in emerging markets and demographic trends? These questions will be at the core of the FMM Conference 2023 under the title “Inflation, Distributional Conflict and Just Transition”.

The submission of papers in the following areas is particularly encouraged:

- Causes of inflation
- Anti-inflationary policy measures
- Monetary and fiscal policies and their impact on inflation
- Inequality and distributional conflict
- Wage and labour market policies in the context of high inflation

⁵⁴<https://www.storep.org/wp/en/20th-storep-annual-conference-15-17-june-2023/storep-2023-venue/>

⁵⁵<https://www.fmm-macro.net/index.htm>

- Industrial policy
- Green transformation and its macroeconomic impacts

Submissions on the general subjects of the FMM, macroeconomics and macroeconomic policy analysis and modelling, are encouraged as well. Women are strongly encouraged to apply. We particularly welcome submissions for graduate student sessions. Those who have already presented a paper at a student session in previous FMM conferences should submit to the regular sessions to improve chances for newcomers. There will also be a day of introductory lectures for graduate students prior to the opening panel on 19 October. Hotel costs will be covered for graduate student presenters (max. four nights).

Submissions – an extended abstract of max. 400 words, clearly outlining the research question, method and results – are to be made electronically via this web application⁵⁶. The deadline is 31 May 2023. Decisions will be made by mid-July and will be based on clarity, relevance and originality of the abstracts. After acceptance, full papers are due by 30 September and will be posted on the conference webpage.

The conference language is English and will take place as an in-person event

Submission deadline: 31 May 2023

31st IAFFE Annual Conference (Cape Town, July 2023)

5-8 July 2023 — Cape Town, South Africa

Conference Theme: Envisioning Feminist Economics Strategies for an Equitable and Sustainable World

The 2023 International Association for Feminist Economics \(IAFFE\) Conference⁵⁷ theme recognizes the contributions that feminist economists have made to developing and advancing our understanding of alternative economic frameworks and strategies that are aimed at reducing inequalities within and between countries, achieving gender and social justice and environmental sustainability. Many countries are experiencing economic turmoil, social tension due to worsening inequality and poverty and environmental stress. In addition, there is a backlash against feminist issues. The current situation raises the question of what can be done to attain an equitable and sustainable world. This conference brings together academics, practitioners, advocacy groups and policy makers from around the world to present their visions of what a world defined by the principles of feminist economics would look like. The conference will facilitate deliberations on alternative theoretical frameworks and empirical evidence regarding strategies adopted by feminists. It will provide a space for debates on policy proposals on what steps are and could be taken to realise these visions.

⁵⁶<https://express.converia.de/frontend/index.php?sub=1094>

⁵⁷<https://www.iaffe.org/annual-conferences/2023-annual-conference/>

This conference will provide a forum for scholarship and inquiry that recognises the methodological pluralism of our field. We define our field broadly and welcome research that brings a feminist lens to topics both micro and macro, local and global. We invite you to join us for this in-person (with hybrid access) conference, hosted by IAFFE and the African Centre of Excellence for Inequality Research (ACEIR), Cape Town, South Africa

We accept paper, poster, session and panel proposals that engage with links between theory and action on these topics as well as on a broader range of feminist inquiry into economic phenomena. Proposals with an interdisciplinary lens are especially welcome.

Submission

The submission portal will open in mid-December 2022. Abstracts (400 words max.) must be submitted online via the IAFFE website (www.iaffe.org⁵⁸). Submissions can be made for individual papers, posters, organised sessions of papers, or panels and roundtables. Submissions can be made in English, French or Spanish. We expect to have simultaneous interpretation provided for conference plenaries and selected sessions. Participants are limited to one paper presentation and one roundtable/panel appearance. Additional co-authored papers are allowed only if they are presented by the co-author. These limitations allow maximum participation by all members wishing to participate.

Please contact Andrea Collins, acollins@iaffe.org⁵⁹ , with any questions or concerns. For more information and application please visit the conference website⁶⁰ or the official website.⁶¹

The Social Logics of Economics

The cognitive as well as the institutional structures of the academic discipline of economics differ significantly from those in the other social and cultural sciences. Its internal modes of organization are characterized by a rather strong hierarchy and dense integration, with, for instance, a concentration of cognitive and institutional power. The same holds true for its impact on society: Economic knowledge often dominates political and public discourses due to its hegemonic position in respect of defining problems and delivering proper solutions, outshining non-economic forms of expertise by far. Reflections on the epistemological and (to a lesser degree) institutional characteristics of mainstream economics have traditionally been carried out by economic methodologists, historians of ideas, or philosophers of science. During the last two decades, these studies of economics and the power of economic knowledge have been supplemented, and sometimes challenged, by more empirically oriented investigations, originating from research areas like the sociology of economics or the social studies of finance. The session is open for all kinds of investigations into the social and cognitive structures of economics and is envisaged as a forum to discuss the relationships between these various strands of reflection.

Economic Sociology and Heterodox Economics

Heterodox economics as well as economic sociology are critical of standard neoclassical economics and try to elaborate and push forward alternative approaches. This does not only concern different foundations and research topics, but also questions of legitimate scientific methods and reasonable forms of inquiry. While mainstream economics almost exclusively proceeds along the pathways of mathematical modelling and econometrics, both economic sociology and heterodox economics exhibit a broad spectrum of methods (ranging from network analysis to ethnographic field work to agent-based-modelling, to name but a few). The session is devoted especially to work at the intersections of economic sociology and heterodox economics. This includes case studies and empirical work as well as more conceptual reflections. What are – beyond mere pluralism – meaningful forms of interaction, communication, and mutual understanding between the various schools of heterodox economics and the strands of economic sociology?

5th London Workshop on Institutional Issues (London, June 2023)

19 June 2023 — School of Slavonic and East European Studies, University College London, UK

Workshop Theme: Institutions, Inequality, and (Un)Happiness

The World Interdisciplinary Network for Institutional Research (WINIR⁶⁶) is pleased to sponsor the 5th London Workshop on Institutional Issues organised by the Friday Association for Institutional Studies – a collective including members of the Birkbeck Centre for Political Economy and Institutional Studies (CPEIS), the Centre for New Economic Transitions at the UCL’s School of Slavonic and East European Studies (CNET) and the Institute for International Management at Loughborough University London.

Theme

Happiness, as an explicit measure of wellbeing, good institutional quality, as a pillar of development, and low level of inequality, as a driver of social harmony are all increasingly seen as important metrics of societal success. With this call, we aim to invite researchers from any social science discipline to submit their research engaging with at least 2 of these notions to contribute to a critical and constructive debate on their complex interrelations and their relevance to our understand of development in a broad sense.

During the first two decades of the 21st century, inequality has become a political buzzword and an increasingly prominent topic for academic research. The relationship between economic and political inequality and societal and individual outcomes, such as happiness and life satisfaction, has kept scholars across various disciplines busy. Institutions, it turns out, often play a key role in many of these studies, but a lot remains to be clarified about the complex relationships between all the above aspects.

Inequality, for instance, can be viewed from a social deprivation perspective as having a significant impact on individual and societal happiness. Income shapes individuals’ and households’ lives by creating opportunities of “choice” (Sen 1970), as opposed to being bound to poverty and the cage of lack of such liberty. Citizens living in richer and institutionally more advanced countries tend to be happier, confirming the positive association between income and subjective wellbeing. However, an individual’s income is only one of theseveral determinants of happiness and life satisfaction as other factors such as the distribution of resources or institutional quality might impact individuals’ self-evaluation of their live conditions. Specifically, explicit criticism has been made to the assumption that a rise in income can be a primary driver of happiness. However, unlike income, inequality is a comparative measure, looking at the distribution of resources within a specific socio- economic context. Individuals tend to compare their economic and living conditions to fellow citizens within their surrounding environment. This may mean that in context where nearly everyone experiences a rise in income, those experiencing a relatively lower pace of improvement may feel deprived vis-à-vis their neighbours; while rising inequality can be interpreted as either negative, due to increase disparities, or positive if it is interpreted as an opening of opportunities.

Recent works have also focused on the relationship between life satisfaction and institutions, being formal or informal. Evidence suggests that better political institutions which can guarantee compliance with the rule of law and reduce corruption may increase happiness while living in an institutional context that is markedly different from one's own preferences reduces life satisfaction. Life satisfaction is also a crucial cognitive aspect driving individuals to be more civically engaged and to be more averse to rent-seeking behaviours such as corruption. Shedding lights on the mechanisms linking happiness and institutions might enhance our understanding of citizens' revealed preferences in terms of institutional compliance as well as in terms of individuals' contribution to the welfare of the society where they live.

While institutions influence inequality, the converse is true as well. Thus, inequality impacts the quality and stability of political regimes. Political scientists have found that income inequality may be one driver for support for anti-system populist parties, although the precise mechanism for this association is not clear. Indeed, the relationship between inequality and institutions is a complex one. For instance, the relationship between inequality and institutional quality may be a 'double causality', with initial income and political inequality affecting institutional quality, reinforcing inequality. Some have also demonstrated that citizens' tolerance for inequality is mediated through institutional quality, with good governance being associated with a greater perception of inequality as possibly fair. Moreover, there is evidence that inequality can lead to institutional change that establishes exploitative political systems, which redistribute in favour of the dominant class.

Inequality is also associated not just with political institutions, but also with various economic institutions. For example, the financialisation of Western economies – i.e. the expansion of the financial sector and increasing dominance of a 'financial logic' even in non-financial corporations – is commonly considered a key driver of increased income and wealth inequality, as the decline of the labour share and the increase of wages' inequality. However, political economists have also found that institutions play an important moderating role. For instance, countries where labour power is more strongly institutionalised experience a less marked increase in inequality than countries with weak labour. Indeed, changes in institutional arrangements of collective bargaining have been shown to lead to changing power relations between trade unions and employers, which in turn affects the extent to which inequality increases in a country during industrial transformation.

In short, inequality, institutional quality and life satisfaction are inter-connected, related, mediated, associated in many ways, and we propose to explore and embrace that diversity of relations during our 1-day workshop. Thus, questions of interest include – but are not limited to:

- How is the quality of life impacted by the quality of institutions?
- How do institutions influence the impact of inequality on economic and non-economic wellbeing?
- How does inequality and or subjective wellbeing impact institutional trust?
- What is the relationship between inequality, quality of institutions and public good contributions?
- How does inequality influence subjective wellbeing and sustainability?
- Societal wellbeing between formal and informal institutions
- How do formal institutions mediate the relationship between inequality and aspects of subjective wellbeing?
- What are the organisation- and industry-level determinants of societal inequality?
- What are the “institutional drivers” behind the decline of labour share and increase of wages’ inequality?

Submission

Please send an abstract (max. 500 words) or a full paper (if available and preferred by the submitters) by 12 March 2023 to ssees-events@ucl.ac.uk⁶⁷. The submission should be sent with “2023 Friday Association Workshop” in the subject line. Please note that the format of the submission (abstract or full paper) will not affect the chances of being accepted. Researchers submitting structured abstracts will not be treated less favourably than authors submitting full papers, as long as their key contribution and approach are made clear.

Authors of accepted submissions will be notified by 31 March 2023 Structure of Presentations. Every paper presentation will be assigned a discussant. It is thus important to submit full papers at least two weeks before the workshop, i.e. 5 June 2023 at the latest. 6th Foundational Economy Conference (Vienna, Sept 2023)

14-16 September 2023 — Vienna, Austria

From the 14 to 16 of September 2023 the 6 Foundational Economy Conference “Exploring the Foundational Economy for a Just Transition”⁷² will be held in Vienna. During the course of the conference, there will be keynote speakers and plenary sessions, parallel sessions as well as working groups and city walks. Keynotes will be given by Julie Froud from the University of Manchester, Corinna Dengler from the Vienna University of Economics and Business and Adrienne Buller from the Common Wealth Think Tank.

Multiple crises – war, global warming, natural disasters, famine and social injustice – are generating heightened insecurity among populations and trigger the search for security and stability. Defending, strengthening and expanding accessible, affordable and sustainable foundational goods and services is thus a cornerstone of an eco-social transformation that can secure everyone’s basic needs. This conference brings together academics and practitioners to critically engage with the concept of the Foundational Economy and explore potentials for strengthening and building better foundational systems. A key concern thereby is to put approaches to the Foundational Economy in conversation with feminist and intersectional perspectives on social provisioning and eco-social transformation. We invite researchers, practitioners and organisations to submit

- individual or co-authored academic (theoretical-conceptual, methodological and/or empirical) papers
- individual or co-authored policy papers
- self-organised thematic sessions with 2-3 academic and/or policy papers as well as
- self-organised panel sessions focussing on practice

Abstracts should be between 500 and 1000 words. We strongly encourage the submission of parallel sessions that include different kinds of input (e.g. a combination of scholarly research, policy papers and contributions from practitioners) and actively create the space for interactive debate and mutual learning. We also strongly encourage early career researchers to submit their work.

⁷⁰<mailto:e.douarin@ucl.ac.uk>

Themes & Issues for papers and contributions to parallel sessions

While we welcome papers and proposals for self-organised panel sessions on all topics relating to the Foundational Economy, we particularly welcome submissions addressing the following themes and issues:

- Feminist perspectives on care and the Foundational Economy
- Industrial ecosystems in support of the Foundational Economy
- Digital infrastructures and the Foundational Economy
- Energy infrastructures and systems, including issues of governance and regulation
- The dialectics of growth and shrinking: the Foundational Economy and post-growth approaches
- Challenges for public budgets & finance in enabling the transformational potential of the Foundational Economy
- Intersectoral and cross-sectoral approaches for the Foundational Economy

Submissions of academic papers will be reviewed by an academic committee; submissions by practitioner for panel discussions will be reviewed by the organising committee. For further details on the call for papers and information regarding contributions & sessions please visit the conference website.

The conference language is English. The conference will be held at the Vienna University of Technology (TU Wien). Further information on registration, the conference programme and other organisational issues will be made available on the conference website in due course. We invite researchers, practitioners and organisations to submit papers and contributions. Please find enclosed the call for papers and contributions or visit the conference website⁷³.

Deadline for submissions: 15 April 2023

71th Annual Conference of the Japan Society of Political Economy (Sendai, November 2023)

4-5 November 2023 — Tohoku Gakuin University, Sendai, Japan

International sessions of the 71th Annual Conference of the Japan Society of Political Economy (JSPE)

General Theme: “How to Understand Contemporary Price Fluctuations: Their Structure, Reality, and Impact”

The Japan Society of Political Economy⁷⁴ celebrated its 60th anniversary four years ago. Over the six decades, the JSPE has endeavored to expand the scope of explorations, from the basic theory of capitalism to the analysis of contemporary capitalism. The JSPE has committed to a critical standpoint against capitalism and mainstream economics and directed its theoretical investigations toward elucidating various issues of capitalism. Nowadays, Marxian economics and the other schools in the heterodox political economy attempt to exert ever more influence in building analytical frameworks to address real-world issues of contemporary capitalism, such as the financial crisis, globalization, and the analysis of class and inequality.

After the outbreaking of the pandemic COVID-19 and in particular, since 2021, a general increase in prices has been observed around the world: the revival of a high inflation problem after a long period of progressed economic globalization and the low inflation prevailed in the advanced countries since the 1990s. Even Japan cannot be exceptional, though it has been recognized as being suffered from long stagnation and deflation during the recent 30 years. Indeed, the consumer price index grew by 4.0% in December 2022, which is the highest growth since the 2nd oil crisis. As these trends in prices are significant and had never been observed before in nearly half a century, they have attracted great attention from both mainstream and heterodox economists.

It was also over the half-century that the great transformation of the capitalist economy has been observed, such as the regime shift from Keynesianism to neoliberalism; globalization; and informatization and financialization of capitalism. Nowadays, the worldwide supply chain conducted and operated by multinational corporations becomes dominant in major sectors of production, which has been supported by the significant development of information and communication technologies, including the Internet. Moreover, the economic transactions in financial sectors are much more significant and expand faster than those in the real economy, which leads to economic crises frequently occurring due to financial shocks. Correspondingly, new idiosyncratic policy schemes, such as Quantitative Easing and expansionary physical policy, have been regularly applied to rescue such crises and even the recent shocks of the global pandemic of COVID-19 and the

⁷⁴<https://en.jspe.gr.jp>

Russian invasion of Ukraine.

Given this recent transformation of the capitalist economy, one of our goals in the 71st Annual Conference of JSPE is to promote the analysis of the present worldwide high inflation from the perspective of political economy, which would encourage a comprehensive understanding of the present regime of the capitalist economy. We aim to deepen discussions about the price fluctuations in the contemporary capitalist economy, in particular, regarding the real features as well as the structural mechanism of these price movements, and their impacts on citizens' lives, from both theoretical and empirical perspectives.

Proposals

JSPE invites proposals for its international sessions – topics relating to the general theme for the plenary session and reflecting the tradition and analytical perspective of JSPE which includes:

- Critical accounts of the current situations of “deadlocks” of capitalism: neoliberal globalization, the global financial crisis, economic development, inequality, socialism, gender, environment, and global climate change;
- The future of the capitalist system and alternatives to capitalism: major conceptual challenges for critical political economy
- Critical analysis of current political-economic problems and policy challenges,
- Basic theories of political economy

*Proposals of other topics are also welcome. The international session(s) will be held in a hybrid of face-to-face and online. Language: International sessions will be held mainly in English. * If you hope other languages, please let us know for advice.

Submission Procedures and the Deadline

Proposals should reach the JSPE International Committee at the latest by May 8, 2023, by e-mail to: jspeintl\(at\)googlegroups.com

When submitting your proposal, please include:

- The title of the proposed paper;
- Your name and academic affiliation;
- Your e-mail and postal address;
- An abstract (up to 500 words).

- Desired language other than English, if any.
- Desired style of participation: online or face-to-face.

* Notification of acceptance will be sent by 30 June. The full paper and the extended abstract (A4, 1 page) must be submitted by September 19, 2023 via e-mail to: jspeintl\(at\)googlegroups.comgooglegroups.com) Participation Fee.

The way to pay a fee for participation will be announced later on the official website.⁷⁵

Erasmus Journal for Philosophy and Economics: Special issue on "Intra- and interpersonal dilemmas in ethics and rational choice"

The Erasmus Journal for Philosophy and Economics invites submissions for a forthcoming special issue devoted to intra- and interpersonal dilemmas in ethics and rational choice.

Invited Contributors:

- Chrisoula Andreou (University of Utah)
- Luke Elson (University of Reading)
- Frank Hindriks (University of Groningen)
- Sergio Tenenbaum (University of Toronto)

Description:

Over the past few decades, a problem has occupied both rational choice theorists and ethicists alike. The problem can be represented in the respective literatures by Warren Quinn's (1997) 'Puzzle of the Self-Torturer' and Derek Parfit's (1984) 'Drops of Water/Harmless Torturers' examples. In both cases, many acts lead to a significant moral or prudential outcome, yet each act is insignificant with respect to that outcome. Call these cases intra- and interpersonal dilemmas.

Intra- and interpersonal dilemmas remain problematic. Furthermore, despite their startling similarities, the two cases are often treated in isolation. By bringing together work from varying fields—in both philosophy and economics—we hope to gain further insight and understanding into the problem.

⁷⁵<https://en.jspe.gr.jp>

We are particularly interested in work which lies at the intersection of the issue (e.g. Tuck, 1979; Jackson, 1987; Arntzenius and MaCarthy, 1997; Andreou, 2006, 2022; Tenembaum & Raffman, 2012; Soon, 2021). For example, on whether the structure of the two dilemmas is the same, such that one solution applies to the other. Or whether these dilemmas are distinct phenomena requiring different treatment. If so, what is the relation between them? And what does this imply for the opposing dilemma?

We also welcome work which addresses one of the dilemmas in its own right. For example, in rational choice, the problem of intransitive preferences, self-destructive behaviour, and synchronic/diachronic rationality. In ethics, the problem of instrumental vs. non-instrumental reasons for action, the distinction between threshold and non-threshold cases, or various issues surrounding causation and difference-making. Of course, these are just a few topics that contributors may wish to address and we invite submissions in a broad range of different areas.

Procedure:

Deadline: Texts should be submitted by: 30October, 2023.

Length: Texts should be in the range of 4,000–8,000 words. We may consider shorter pieces (2,000-4,000) submitted as critical comments.

Peer-Review: Submissions will go through the journal’s standard peer-review process. Please make a submission through the journal’s standard submission system⁷⁶. The special issue is scheduled for publication in the summer of 2024.

Questions: If you have questions, feel free to contact the editors at editors@ejpe.org⁷⁷.

Application Deadline: 30 October, 2023.

IAFFE @ ASSA 2024 (San Antonio, Jan 2024)

January 5-7, 2024 — San Antonio, TX USA

The International Association for Feminist Economics (IAFFE)⁷⁸ invites members to submit panel proposals, session proposals, and individual papers on any area of feminist inquiry into economic issues, including (but not limited to):

- Economic issues by gender, class, race/ethnicity, sexual orientation, gender identity, migrant status, other origin

⁷⁶<https://ejpe.org/journal/about/submissions>

⁷⁷<mailto:editors@ejpe.org>

⁷⁸<https://www.iaffe.org/assa-annual-meetings/2023-assa-meeting/>

- Reproductive rights, the care economy, caring labor, unpaid labor, time-use
- Employment and education
- Gender and macroeconomics, economic development, or the environment
- Intra-household dynamics and decision-making
- Authoritarian regimes, economic and social policies/discourses, challenges to gender equality and human rights
- Feminist economics, history of economic thought, economic history and economic policy

IAFFE also co-sponsors sessions with other organizations, and we particularly welcome proposals that would be of interest to the organizations that we have often collaborated with: Association for Evolutionary Economics (AFEE), Association for Social Economics (ASE), Association for the Study of Generosity in Economics (ASGE), History of Economics Society (HES), Middle East Economic Association (MEEA), Labor and Employment Relations Association (LERA), National Economics Association (NEA), and the Union for Radical Political Economics (URPE). Papers that cannot be included on the IAFFE@ASSA panels will be considered for IAFFE panels at the ICAPE conference that immediately precedes the ASSA conference in San Antonio on January 4, 2024.

PAPER AND SESSION/PANEL SUBMISSIONS

- Proposals for complete sessions and panels are especially welcome.
- We are particularly interested in high profile panels that will generate interest beyond current IAFFE members.
- Current membership in IAFFE is required of all persons presenting papers in IAFFE sessions at the ASSA.

To submit your paper/abstract, session or panel, click HERE⁷⁹ to go to the IAFFE@ASSA 2024 webpage.

IAFFE only considers submissions that are not under consideration elsewhere for the same meeting. When you submit your paper or panel proposal, please confirm your submission is not under consideration for presentation at the ASSA meetings by another organization. The submission form includes a question about whether you would like your paper or panel to be considered for a co-sponsored session.

INEM Sessions at ASSA 2024 (San Antonio, January 2024)

5-7 January, 2024 — San Antonio, Texas, US

As a cognate society, INEM⁸² will organize two sessions at the ASSA Annual Meeting⁸³ in San Antonio, TX, January 5-7, 2024. INEM invites session proposals on any topic in philosophy and methodology of economics to fill the sessions.

If you are interested in organizing a session, please send a proposal by June 1, 2023 to malte.dold@pomona.edu⁸⁴. The decision will be communicated by June 15, 2023.

Either of two types of sessions can be proposed:

- Paper session – Paper sessions usually contain 3-4 papers and must always have discussants. Authors are listed with each paper.
- Panel session – Panel sessions do not have individual paper titles, authors, and discussants. This format is for topics of special interests, such as book panels or roundtables. Sessions should include the speakers and topic title.

Session proposals must include:

- Title and summary of the proposed session (about 300 words).
- For paper sessions: (1) Titles and abstracts of all papers (max 300 words for each abstract); (2) key words and two JEL codes for all papers; (3) the name, email address and affiliation of each paper presenter; (4) the list of discussants.
- For panel sessions: An explanation of the importance of the topic and of the choice of the panel format (max 500 words).

MOSEC Conference: "The State and Planetary Boundaries" (Ostrava, May 2023)

18-20 May 2023 — University of Ostrava, Ostrava, Czechia

Conference Theme: "The State and Planetary Boundaries"

MOSEC 2023 or Modernization by the State and its Ecological Consequences Conference 2023 is an interdisciplinary online conference for the environmentally focused humanities and social sciences, organized by the Center for Economic and Social History⁸⁶ , University of Ostrava, Czechia. MOSEC 2023 aims to explore, discuss and disseminate new cross-disciplinary scientific knowledge about the global environmental crisis with a particular focus on the role of the state and state institutions.

Keynote Speakers:

- BART ELMORE, Associate professor of Environmental History at the Ohio State University. Author of the praised Citizen Coke: The Making of Coca-Cola Capitalism and Seed Money: Monsanto's Past and Our Food Future. Recipient of the Dan David Prize in 2022.
- ZSUZSA GILLE, Professor of Sociology at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Prize winning author of the highly influential From the Cult of Waste to the Trash Heap of History most recently co-editor of the Routledge Handbook of Waste Studies.

Anthropogenic forces have reduced ecosystem resilience by decreasing biodiversity, altering the physico-chemical environment via climate change, pollution, and land clearance. Today, the global environmental crisis is the single most important challenge humanity faces. Regarding sustainable development, the sovereign nation-state has been the most important actor and stakeholder. Essential part of state sovereignty is the ownership of resources, which often have been sources of conflict and violence, as well as ecological degradation.

Critics of the modern state pointed out that the ecological impact of bureaucratic regimes has been substantially contributing to the worsening of the global environmental crisis.

⁸⁵<http://malte.dold@pomona.edu>

⁸⁶<https://ff.osu.edu/chsd/>

Modern states organized their societies according to the technocratic principles of “high modernism” and have failed to take local knowledge into account thus amplifying the forces of ecological homogenization and uniformity.

In 2023, the Center for Economic and Social History at the University of Ostrava cordially invites contributions from all social sciences and humanities disciplines as well as adjacent scientific fields to explore, discuss and disseminate new cross-disciplinary scientific knowledge about the global environmental crisis with a particular focus on the role of the state and state institutions. MOSEC 2023 welcomes papers with all geographical-, and thematic focuses.

Recommended themes, however include to explore and reflect on the role of the state with regard to climate change, biodiversity loss, resource-, and energy scarcity, toxic emissions, environmental diseases, marine pollution, urban congestion, and sustainability from the perspective of human values, stories, qualitative reasoning, case studies, and traditional-, and sensory knowledge.

Submission

- Individual paper proposals should consist of 300-word abstracts accompanied with brief, approximately 50-word long bios of the contributor.
- Complete panel proposals consisting of three to four papers should consist of a 500-word panel-abstracts which include the overall themes of the panel and papers presented as well as brief, approximately 50-word long bios of all contributors.

Roundtables, posters and unconventional formats are also welcome. For details please contact organizers. All proposals should be sent by 31 March 2023 to organizers at cesh@osu.cz⁸⁷.

Submission Deadline: 31 March 2023

Review of Radical Political Economics: Special issue on “Covid and Capitalism”

Special issue on Covid and Capitalism

The COVID-19 pandemic has not only shown inherent flaws in the capitalist system but also deepened them. It has had major political-economic effects around the world. Millions of people have lost their jobs, the number of people living in extreme poverty has grown substantially, and the already heavy burden of unpaid work borne by women has increased. At the same time, the wealth of the ten richest billionaires doubled since the start of the pandemic.

⁸⁷<mailto:cesh@osu.cz>

RRPE⁸⁸ is looking for articles that provide radical political-economic analysis of the pandemic. The following is a list of possible subjects for the special issue, although any submission that is related to the topic is welcomed:

- The COVID-19 pandemic and its high costs are not simply an act of nature. How has neoliberal capitalism promoted the emergence of pandemics and made society less able to respond effectively to pandemics?
- The pandemic has highlighted the severe underproduction of public goods and services in the Global North and South. How has it demonstrated the importance of public policy as evident in different policy responses and recovery patterns (e.g., across Latin America, East Asia, and Africa)?
- How has the pandemic produced macroeconomic dynamics different from the usual under capitalism, including an unusual business cycle and a burst of inflation in the Global North (especially the United States) whose causes appear to be different from prior inflationary episodes since the late 1940s?
- What has the pandemic shown regarding the realities, potential, and limitations of monetary policy?
- What are the dynamics behind the changing income inequality and employment during the pandemic? For instance, how come the pandemic appears to have increased wealth inequality while simultaneously leading to rising real wages for some groups of low-wage workers in the Global North (especially in the United States)?
- What are the differential impacts of the pandemic across social classes, demographic groups, countries, and regions, and how has it contributed to the global imbalances between the Global North and South?
- Foreign debt had reached alarming levels in the Global South even before the pandemic. How has the slowdown of the capital flows to these countries affected the subordinate financial position of the Global South?
- How has the intensification of care work during the pandemic affected the social reproduction of the capitalist system and gender inequality?

If you intend to submit a paper, or have questions, please contact Elif Karaçimen as soon as possible at elifkaracimen@gmail.com⁸⁹.

Review of Radical Political Economics: Special Issue on "Climate Change and Capitalism"

Call for Papers: Special issue on Climate Change and Capitalism

Special Issue Collective: *Ron Baiman, Benedictine University; *David Barkin, Metropolitan Autonomous University-Xochimilco; Jacob Blumenfeld, Carl von Ossietzky Universität Oldenburg; Ying Chen, New School for Social Research; Steve Keen, University College London; *Kirstin Munro, University of Texas-Rio Grande Valley; Sirisha Naidu, University of Missouri-Kansas City; Bob Williams, Guilford College (*RRPE Editorial Board member)

Climate change poses an existential threat to the flourishing of all life on earth. While addressing environmental crises has been an urgent task of the left for decades, there appears to be little agreement on either the root causes of climate catastrophe or the best approaches to mitigate environmental destruction. As RRPE is a radical and pluralist journal, the Special Issue Collective is looking for manuscripts that provide a range of critical political economic perspectives on capitalism and the environment, as well as a range of methods, approaches, and geographic focuses. We would especially like to encourage submissions from climate activists, scholars in the Global South, early career researchers, and scholars from groups that have been historically excluded from academia. Although any submission that provides critical political economic analysis of the topic from a class perspective is highly encouraged, the following is a list of possible subjects for the special issue:

- Theoretical and empirical interventions into climate debates from critical Global South, Decolonial, Peasant, Indigenous, Feminist, Marxist, Anarchist, Political Ecology, Disability, Queer, or Critical Race perspectives (not mutually exclusive);
- Historical or contemporary analyses of commons, enclosure, dispossession, expropriation, unequal ecological exchange, ecological imperialism, and/or the relationship between nature and capitalism;

⁹⁰<https://journals.sagepub.com/author-instructions/RRP>

⁹¹<mailto:editor.rrpe@urpe.org>

- Analyses of the role of technology in either mitigating or exacerbating climate change;
- Analyses that provide monetary estimates of human and more-than-human environmental damage, and/or estimates of the costs of proposals to mitigate environmental damage;
- Analyses of the “Green New Deal,” “green” finance/eco-investing, market-based solutions to climate change, and “green” capitalism in general;
- Critiques of neoclassical/bourgeois economic analysis of climate change;
- Analyses of the distinction between short and long-run policy prescriptions;
- Analyses of both desirable and undesirable forms of adaptation to a warming world;
- Presentation of alternative economic models from past and present that incorporate ecological, sustainable, and democratic metrics into their constitution;
- Analyses of efforts to mainstream climate change into development frameworks;
- Models of climate justice, environmental social movements, and anti-capitalist struggles and visions.

Submission

Please submit your manuscript to <https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rrpe>⁹². When asked what “type” of manuscript you are submitting, please check the box that says, “Climate Change and Capitalism.” If you intend to submit a paper, or have questions, please contact Kirstin Munro as soon as possible at kirstin.munro@gmail.com⁹³.

All submissions will undergo RRPE’s regular peer review procedures and must not be under review with any other publication. Submissions must conform to the Instructions to Contributors posted on the RRPE website (<https://journals.sagepub.com/author-instructions/RRP>⁹⁴), or available from the Managing Editor (editor.rrpe@urpe.org⁹⁵).

The Economists' Philosophy Day (online, Nov 2023)

16 November 2023 — online

Call for a Symposium on the Economists' Philosophy Day, 16 Nov. 2023, 2nd edition.

In deference to the work of all inquisitive minds, past and present, who have assiduously embraced philosophical reflection to find a path to understanding the consequential events for a life worth living, the Journal of Philosophical Economics announces a second edition of

The Economists' Philosophy Day – A Journal of Philosophical Economics celebration of philosophical reflection in the economic science

In October 2005, the UNESCO General Conference proclaimed the third Thursday of November every year “World Philosophy Day” recalling that “philosophy is a discipline that encourages critical and independent thought and is capable of working towards a better understanding of the world and promoting tolerance and peace.”

It is in this spirit that J Philos Econ⁹⁷ proposes to celebrate the Economists' Philosophy Day by organizing an online plenary session of scientific communications dedicated to the philosophical landmarks through which the economic science has been challenged, for better or worse. Our call invites all those interested in the study of social sciences to contribute not only to the thinking inspired from enduring ideas of philosophy, but also to the way in which they have been adopted, adapted, or made known to advance theoretical and applied research. Please visit the journal web page to see agenda and the published papers of the first edition.

Proposals of approx. 500 words are expected by April 28, 2023. After acceptance, authors are invited to submit the full version of their study for peer-review by August 28, 2023. Proposals will be sent to editor@jpe.ro⁹⁸.

Workshop on "The Metrics of Energy" (Vienna, June 2023)

15-16 June 2023 — Vienna, Austria

Workshop Theme: The Metrics of Energy: Accounting for Nature in the History of Social Science and Ecological Economics

⁹⁷<https://jpe.episciences.org>

⁹⁸<mailto:editor@jpe.ro>

International workshop, organised by Anna Echterhölter and Marco Vianna Franco, University of Vienna⁹⁹ (Key Research Area History of Science) in cooperation with the Institute for Advanced Studies IHS Vienna¹⁰⁰ (research group Energy, Environment, and Sustainable Economic Structures)

During the 19th century, several socio-economic thinkers considered energy as a unit of account. In Habsburg countries, Belgium, Rumania and beyond, accounting for economic demand and supply as well as stocks and flows of resources was tentatively rendered in metricized forms of energy. Consequently, this type of calculation began to rival monetary units of account, not without leading into comparable problems. Some argue that these initiatives were closely related to the consolidation of thermodynamics, with social dynamics being framed from the standpoint of the natural sciences. Thermodynamics has especially been discussed with regards to economic theory and, within ecological economics, with a focus on degrowth.

The role played by energy in the cultural development of human societies was seen as the basis for further theory- and policy-making. Social energetics, for example, applied energy-based theoretical frameworks and empirical data to social systems. It emerged in the early 1880s as a distinct scientific approach to understanding the interconnections between biophysical and economic issues by means of the study of energy stocks and flows. Similar developments have taken place in different branches of social science and represented the subjects of different historiographical threads, from ecological anthropology and currents within sociology and geography to social ecology and ecological economics. However, with regard to the history of social science, this topic can still be seen as underexplored, particularly in the face of the aggravation of contemporary environmental challenges associated with the Anthropocene.

Notably, there is an early strand of discussions around energetics emerging from Central Europe which will be central to the conference. Within an Austrian context, for example, social energetics was taken up at the turn of the twentieth century by figures such as Otto Neurath, Josef Popper-Lynkeus, and Rudolf Goldscheid. As early as the 1880s, Eduard Sacher developed a comprehensive theoretical framework in political economy centred on social energetics—roughly at the same time as Ukrainian physician and Marxist thinker Sergei Podolinsky published his landmark article on the topic ([1881] 2004). The application of resource accounting to the economy encompassed issues related to labour, cooperatives, moral and economic values, and various novel ideas on the role and method of economic planning. Nutrition represents another vital topic for a history of the metrics of energy. Ever since Wilbur O. Atwater measured the metabolism of a student in one of his calorimeters, the unit of calorie took on a nutritional meaning. Poverty, seafaring and war were specific fields of emergence in which vital minima and personal energy budgets were meticulously calculated. In times of environmental peril and energy insecurity, the history of these calculations suddenly appears in a new light.

⁹⁹<https://www.univie.ac.at/en/>

¹⁰⁰<https://www.ihs.ac.at>

In a scenario of political instability, social energetics looks less hopelessly holistic and new types of metricizing energy or entropy seem increasingly prudent.

Against this backdrop, the workshop sets the stage for a reappraisal of the biophysical, cultural, social and/or economic aspects of measurements, accounting techniques, and theories related to energy as a relevant issue in the history of social science and the social history of quantification. This workshop will bring together scholars from different fields of knowledge interested in quantitative or qualitative assessments of energy from the standpoint of the history of social science. The two-day workshop will be composed of paper presentations of 25 minutes, which will leave time for discussions.

The keynotes will be given by Joan Martínez-Alier (Universidad Autónoma de Barcelona) and Oliver Schlaudt (Cusanus Hochschule für Gesellschaftsgestaltung Koblenz). Confirmed presenters and discussants include Federico D’Onofrio (University of Vienna), Verena Halsmayer (University of Lucerne), Elisabeth Nemeth (University of Vienna), Daniela Russ (University of Leipzig), and Monika Wulz (ETH Zurich). The workshop is organised by the Key Research Area History of Science at the University of Vienna and hosted by the Institute for Advanced Studies (IHS) Vienna (research group Energy, Environment and Sustainable Economic Structures). We aim to publish presented papers in a special issue of a peer-reviewed journal. Researchers are invited to submit proposals for a presentation on subjects related to this call. Please submit a short description of about 250 words no later than March 30th, 2023 via e-mail (wissenschaftsgeschichte.hkw@univie.ac.at). Decisions regarding invitations (including coverage of travel and hotel costs) will be communicated in mid-April.

2023 Marxist Summer School (Kasos, June 2023)

21 June - 5 July 2023 — Kasos, Greece

The Institute for the Radical Imagination¹⁰⁶ is pleased to announce the 2023 Marxist Summer School. The Summer School will take place from June 21st through July 5th on the Greek island of Kasos. The Marxist Summer School is designed to enable those who are new to historical materialism as well as more advanced participants to address fundamental questions, concepts, and texts in an intensive way and in an inclusive, non-sectarian, and congenial setting. There will be two daily seminar sessions (held in the Kasos municipal library) where participants will collaborate on close readings of texts and address some of the core political problems of our times: from ecological devastation, war, the transformation of desire and subjectivity, the struggle against work and the liberation of creative spirit, and the crisis of the capitalist state.

The Marxist Summer School is open to everyone with intellectual drive and revolutionary zeal and does not require any previous preparation. Students can register on the Institute website. There is a non-refundable registration fee of $300 and an additional $1100 is due by the end of May. The tuition includes a single occupancy hotel room (there can be reduced rates for those who want to share a room) and one communal meal each day. There will be a maximum of 30 students in total, some financial aid may be available for students on a need basis.

Kasos is a very small island with about 800 residents. It has very little tourism and is an ideal location for engaging in collaborative study and radical thinking. There are a few beaches in walking distance from where you will be staying as well as various small cafes, bars, and tavernas. There are daily flights to Kasos from Rhodes and Karpathos as well as multiple ferry boats from Piraeus each week (connecting through the islands of Crete, Rhodes, and Karpathos), ferry boat tickets from Piraeus start at about 60 euros.

Schedule for Summer 2023:

- Week 1 (June 22 – June 28)
- Opening Dinner, June 21st
- Neoliberalism, War, and the Question of Crisis
- Poetry and Revolution
- Week 2 (June 29-July 5)
- Capitalist Asphyxia: Ecology, Colonialism, Murder
- Living Labor, Sabotage, and the Refusal of Work
- Closing Dinner, July 5th

1st International Young Scholars Workshop at the Universidad de la República (Uruguay, September 2023)

7 - 8 2023 — Universidad de la República, Montevideo, Uruguay

Political tensions associated with rising inequality, geopolitical rivalries weakening the multilateral system, financial instability, environmental issues, and persistent technological and productive asymmetries among developing and developed countries, are the current challenges of the international economy. Different paradigms in economics are trying to explain these crises and design policy responses to move towards sustainable development in its three dimensions, economic, social and environmental. Post-Keynesian, Structuralist, Institutionalist, Evolutionary, and Schumpeterian economists, among others, have contributed to the debate and expanded the opportunities for a pluralist conversation and cross-fertilization. This workshop aims to bring together researchers from different intellectual traditions and countries to discuss their research results and ongoing research advances on these major topics.

This workshop aims specially to promote the participation of Phd students and young scholars (3 years since earning a PhD degree) working in the following areas:

- The political economy of structural change and income distribution
- Economic, industrial and technological policies for a fair transition
- Models and empirical analysis on gender, caring society and development
- Center-periphery and the reshaping of the international insertion of the periphery
- Macroeconomic policy effects on structural change and income distribution
- Historical interpretations on structural change and multidimensional inequality
- Financial instability, debt and the financing of sustainable development
- How to combine different insights from different schools of thought, highlighting their complementarities and / or points of discordance
- Multidimensional poverty and the Sustainable Development Goals

Extended abstracts and full paper submissions: Interested scholars are invited to apply to the workshop by submitting an extended abstract (1500-2000 words). The paper selection follows a blind review method. The major prerequisites for acceptance are completeness and relatedness to the required topics. Submitted work will most likely be considered if it is fully readable and does not lack substantial sections. We encourage authors to send their abstract in English, Portuguese or Spanish. Full paper submissions are accepted written in English, Spanish or Portuguese.

Workshop presentations: In the workshop, mentors will give feedback to the participants. The workshop will be organized in different sessions according to the research topic.

Possibility of publication: A selection of the papers submitted for the workshop will be published in a special issue of PSL Quarterly Review (www.pslquarterlyreview.info)¹⁰⁹

¹⁰⁹<http://www.pslquarterlyreview.info/>

Financial support: Financial support is available, although resources are scarce. In this sense, it will only be given to scholars who are based in the region. Please indicate the need for funding in the application. In case of acceptance, organizers will contact details about the amount granted. Important deadlines:

Important dates

Reception of extended abstracts (1500-2000 words): From 1st January until 31st March

Beyond the Optimising Agent - Summer School in Advanced Methods for Economics and Political Economy (London, June 2023)

5-9 June 2023 — University of Greenwich, London, UK

Beyond The Optimising Agent - Summer School in Advanced Methods for Economics and Political Economy

This summer school provides advanced training in methods for Economics and Political Economy with practical applications. It focusses on theoretical and empirical methods beyond constrained optimisation that capture features such as uncertainty, instability, complexity, institutions, and historical change. In this way, the school provides methods that receive less attention in standard economics programmes but are essential to analyse real-world issues such as financial cycles, climate change, income and wealth inequality, and much more. Please see the Call for Applications, including the programme, here.¹¹²

What will be covered? The school covers both analytical foundations in the form of lectures as well as applications in the form of hands-on computer-lab exercises and interactive group work. A variety of different methods are introduced, both quantitative and qualitative. Concrete applications illustrate how participants can apply these methods in their own research.

Who can participate?

The summer school is targeted at PhD students (or PGRs) and Early Career Researchers (up to 3 years since completion of PhD). In exceptional cases, we will also consider applications from postgraduate students.

Organising Team and Support

The summer school is jointly organised by the Institute of Political Economy, Governance, Finance and Accountability (PEGFA) at the University of Greenwich and the Department of Economics at the University of Leeds. We are grateful for financial support from the Young Scholars Initiative (YSI) at the Institute for New Economic Thinking (INET).

- Coordinator Greenwich: Rafael Wildauer (r.wildauer@gre.ac.uk¹¹³)
- Coordinator Leeds: Karsten Kohler (k.kohler@leeds.ac.uk¹¹⁴)

How to apply

Send a CV and a 1-page motivation letter (covering, e.g., research interests / PhD topic, supervisors if applicable, methods used, and how you would benefit from attending) to beyondoptimization@gmail.com¹¹⁵ . We will notify successful candidates by 12 April 2023.

Costs

- Participation fee with accommodation (5 nights, Avery Hill Campus): GBP 150

CREF Economic Fitness and Complexity Spring School (Rome, June 2023)

5-9 June — Rome, Italy

The Enrico Fermi Research Centre - CREF \(Rome\)¹²³ and UNU-MERIT¹²⁴ (Maastricht), in collaboration with the Young Scholar Initiative¹²⁵ of the Institute of New Economic Thinking are now calling for submissions to the first Economic Fitness and Complexity spring school, which will be held on June 5-9, 2023 in Rome, Italy. The school is an extensive introduction to the economic complexity framework, with theoretical and practical lessons. The first three days will focus on theoretical and practical classes covering the following topics: economic complexity measurement, network theory, machine learning, measurement of relatedness. Theoretical lectures will be followed by coding labs, where participants will have the chance to apply the methodologies introduced in class, and to carry out assigned group projects, focusing on the school core themes. For the last two days of the school, many world-wide renowned scholars have been invited to present their frontier research linking economic complexity with economic development, economic geography, labour economics, sustainability, economics of science, and innovation policy.

HOPE Annual Summer Institute (Duke, June 2023)

19-22 June 2023 — North Carolina, USA

The Center for the History of Political Economy at Duke University¹²⁷ will run its annual Summer Institute using a research workshop format on June 19-22, 2023. We invite young scholars (doctoral students and those with recently awarded PhDs) to apply.

The goal of the Summer Institute is to allow young scholars working in the history of economics (broadly defined) to improve their manuscripts and to get practice presenting their work. Participants will arrive on Monday June 19 in time to attend a welcome dinner. Sessions will take place on Tuesday and Wednesday. Participants will depart on the morning of Thursday, June 22. This will allow those who wish to attend the History of Economics Society meeting in Vancouver, which run from June 22- 25, to attend it as well.

Depending on the number of accepted applications, we will run from four to six individual paper sessions each day. Successful candidates will present their papers for 20 minutes, and then the group will discuss ways to improve both the substance of the paper and its presentation. The group will include the Summer Institute participants, HOPE faculty members Bruce Caldwell and Steve Medema, Jeff Biddle of Michigan State University, and Beatrice Cherrier of CNRS & CREST, ENSAE-Ecole Polytechnique. Other HOPE faculty and affiliates of the Center, including Kevin Hoover, Roy Weintraub, Jennifer Jhun, Jason Brent, and Paul Dudenhefer, may also sit in on select sessions.

Applicants should send in their vita and either a paper proposal or an initial draft by April 1, 2023. Successful candidates will be notified by April 10. Successful applicants will receive a stipend to cover their costs of travel to Duke, as well as lodging while on site.

Whether one has been accepted on the basis of a paper proposal or of an initial draft, participants will be expected to present a paper at the Summer Institute. Participants should submit their final drafts by June 10, 2023, which will allow us time to distribute them and for all attendees to have read everyone's papers before the Summer Institute.

Please send proposals to chope@econ.duke.edu¹²⁸ .

Workshop on "Ecologizing Economics: Reflexivity, Methods and Interdisciplinarity in the Age of Anthropocene" (Lille, June 2023)

28 June 2023 — Lille, France

In the context of a multidimensional ecological crisis, economic analysis is challenged to adapt its methods so that it can remain relevant to contemporary issues. In particular, calls to strengthen the consideration of biogeophysical dynamics are becoming more and more pressing. The orientation of economics towards these issues is therefore an invitation for a certain number of economists to build interdisciplinary forms of research, open notably to natural and other social sciences. However, achieving such coherence is far from obvious.

The aim of this workshop is to bring together young researchers to question the place of economics in the ecosystem of disciplines in the context of ecological emergency. With questions at the level of economics itself (e.g. what aspects of the discipline provide a useful and singular point of view in a context of ecological crisis?) and at the level of interdisciplinarity (e.g. how to investigate emerging interdisciplinary practices?).

To help us in our reflection, we will have the pleasure to welcome prof. Michiru Nagatsu from the Helsinki Institute of Sustainability Science. Prof. Nagatsu is a specialist in the philosophy of economics and sustainability sciences, and will be able to enlighten our discussions with a more experienced eye.

We encourage young scholars (widely defined) researching in economics, philosophy, sociology, history of economic thought, or any related discipline to apply to this methodological workshop, either as a speaker or as a simple participant.

Please apply by filling out the form on the workshop webpage¹³⁹.

Some travel and accommodation stipends are available. The conference's registration fees will be free for the workshop participants.

This workshop is organized by the Institute for New Economic Thinking¹⁴⁰'s Young Scholars Initiative¹⁴¹ (INET YSI).

The language of the workshop will be English.

The Greenwich Business School at the University of Greenwich is seeking to appoint a Lecturer/Senior Lecturer in Economics.

We are looking for an enthusiastic candidate who will demonstrate innovation in their teaching. Applicants need to be confident in developing inspiring module materials and learning activities.

The successful candidate will demonstrate emerging leadership in their subject area and a growing reputation and impact across the Greenwich Business School, University of Greenwich, and beyond.

The position offers opportunities for teaching at undergraduate and postgraduate levels and enables an ambitious candidate to play an important role in the shaping of the future development of the School of Accounting, Finance and Economics' high quality, effective and innovative approach to its curriculum design including inclusive approaches to setting and marking assessment. The role will focus on delivering high-quality education in a variety of formats.

Candidates would enjoy working with diverse cohorts of students and challenging them to fulfil their potential and are capable of teaching either or both qualitative and quantitative subjects.

There are strong research teams within the School of Accounting, Finance and Economics which provide research that is of significance to businesses. A successful applicant would form part of a research group, contributing to REF submissions and overall research activities while at the same time receiving support and mentoring to enhance their skills and overall standing in the research community.

The successful candidate must hold a Master's in Economics or related field.

The Greenwich Business School is located in the Old Royal Naval College at Greenwich - a UNESCO World Heritage site - and has a strong commitment to diversity and inclusivity which is reflected in our staff and student profiles.

For more information on why it's an exciting time to join the Greenwich Business School, please see the Greenwich Business School brochure attached to this job advert.

For an informal discussion about the post please contact Aleks Stojanovic, Head of School – Accounting, Finance and Economics at a.stojanovic@gre.ac.uk¹⁴⁹ .

Aalborg University Business School is situated at Aalborg University, a university with world-class research in many disciplines. Aalborg University is a founding institution in Problem-Based Learning. With this as a guiding principle, the Business School plays a major role in bridging the gap between business and science that helps commercialise inventions and generate business growth. The prerequisite for this is relevant research of the highest quality. We have a strategy of publishing our research in leading journals in our fields. We consider current trends and issues in all the knowledge we produce. Only then can we contribute with business-critical insights that make a difference in society.

As an applicant for this position, you are expected to have a strong research potential within economics. You will be expected to actively participate professionally and socially in the economics research group. Your research must cover one or more of the following research fields:

- Microeconomics, econometrics and time-series analysis, for example relating to financial markets and instruments
- Macroeconomic modelling – empirically as well as theoretically
- Large-scale macro-econometric models
- Macroeconomic theory covering different paradigms in macroeconomics
- Innovation economics

Applicants are expected to have strong methodological skills, and the position will mainly contribute to the economics degree in terms of teaching but also other relevant courses at the business school and in adjacent departments.

Applicants are to indicate in their application whether they are applying for the assistant professor or associate professor position.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR

A position as assistant professor is a fixed-term training position which includes an obligation to carry out research and teaching activities. To a limited extent, additional tasks may be defined by the University. The appointment includes a requirement to attend a course in university pedagogy for assistant professors organised by the University.

The employment as assistant professor must not exceed a total period of four years at the same institution (a maximum of six years at assistant professor level at AAU and a maximum of eight years at assistant professor level in Denmark).

The formal qualification requirement for the position as assistant professor is a PhD degree or academic qualifications at PhD level.

Tenure track option

Highly qualified candidates can be appointed as tenure-track assistant professors on a six-year contract with the prospect of performance-based advancement to a tenured position as associate professor. An internal assessment committee will conduct a mid-term evaluation after 3 years, and an external assessment committee will conduct a final review after 5.5 years. If the assessment is positive, the candidate will be offered a tenured position as associate professor.

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR

A position as associate professor is a permanent appointment which included an obligation to carry our research and teaching activities. To some extent, additional tasks may be defined by the University.

The formal qualification requirement for the position as associate professor is research qualifications corresponding to the level achieved from a successful employment period as an assistant professor/researcher or achieved otherwise. The applicant must document scientific production at an international level. Furthermore, it is presupposed that the applicants have received supervision and pedagogical upgrading and a positive written evaluation of teaching qualifications.

Moreover it will be an advantage, but not a prerequisite, that applicants for the position as associate professor have experience with Problem Based Learning (PBL) which is Aalborg University's teaching philosophy.

THE APPLICATION

The application must contain the following:

- Motivated application.
- Current CV.
- Complete list of publications.
- List of publications that the applicant wishes to be considered. A maximum of 5 publications may be submitted.
- Co-author statements in relation to publications written with other authors must be enclosed with a declaration from each of the authors, stating the extent of the applicant's contribution to the total work. The declaration must be signed by the co-authors. Template co-author declaration¹⁵⁵ .
- Education (copies of documentation for degrees obtained).

- Documentation for teaching qualifications. Guidance Teaching portfolio¹⁵⁶ .

ASSESSMENT

Shortlisting will be applied. This means that subsequent to the deadline for applications the head of department supported by the chair of the assessment committee will select candidates for assessment. All applicants will be informed whether they will be assessed or not.

The selected candidates will be informed of the composition of the assessment committee, and each applicant will have the opportunity to comment on the assessment that applies to the applicant in question. Assessed candidates may be invited to an interview and/or asked to give a trial lecture.

When the employment process has been terminated, a final rejection will be sent to the candidates who are not considered for the position.

CONTACT INFORMATION

You may obtain further information about the academic contents of the position from Head of Business School Christian Nielsen, phone 99402702, e-mail head@business.aau.dk¹⁵⁷. Any enquiries relating to the application procedure should be addressed to Human Resources, email hs-hr@adm.aau.dk¹⁵⁸ .

AAU wishes to reflect the diversity of society and welcomes applications from all qualified candidates regardless of personal background or belief.

AGREEMENT

Appointment is in accordance with the Ministerial Order on the Appointment of Academic Staff at Universities (the Appointment Order) and the Ministry of Higher Education and Science's Job Structure for Academic Staff at Universities. Salary is in accordance with the agreement between the Ministry of Finance and the Danish Confederation of Professional Associations (AC) of Academics in the State. Workplace is in Aalborg.

Queen Mary University of London, UK

Job title: Lecturer in Risk Management in Business and Society

The School of Business and Management (SBM) seeks to recruit an inspirational researcher, teacher and educational leader to a lectureship in risk management in business and society. Candidates with a strong university research and teaching record as well as early career academics with promising research record are encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will be offered a teaching and research contract. We welcome hearing how you would best contribute to our research and education activities in line with SBM's values and mission. All applicants should have the ability to teach and supervise effectively across undergraduate and postgraduate programmes within the Department of Business and Society in SBM.

This permanent lectureship at the School of Business and Management, QMUL is relevant to political economists with an interest in a wide range of topics including:

- geopolitical risk
- sustainability transition risks at the level of firm and society
- digital transition risks
- supply chain sustainability and resilience
- organisational resilience, risk management and regulation,
- risk management and corporate social responsibility
- risk management in public governance

We welcome academics who analyse risk management in the wider context, with an interest in a wide range of topics including (but not limited to) sustainability transition risks at the level of firm and society, digital transition risks, geopolitical risks, supply chain sustainability and resilience, organisational resilience, risk management and regulation, risk management and corporate social responsibility and risk management in public governance. We therefore value the ability to contextualise risk management within megatrends in business and society (such as sustainability transitions, innovation and geo-political processes), and in relation to the role that national and international public and private institutions may play in shaping the landscape. This post offers an exciting opportunity to make a major contribution to SBM's research expertise in the broad fields of risk management, and to the teaching and research profile of the Department of Business and Society. Depending on their particular research field, the postholder might contribute to research units in the school such as the Centre on Labour, Sustainability and Global Production or the Public Management and Regulation Group or the Organisational Processes and Practices Research Group.

Winner Announcement: Routledge Inclusive Economics Prize

We are excited to announce the winners of the inaugural Routledge Inclusive Economics Prize!

Thank you to all who applied for our first annual Routledge Inclusive Economics Prize. The judges praised the high standard and quality of all the prize applications received. Our aim was to highlight research from diverse voices in the field of economics and finance—research that encompasses marginalized views and encourages equity and solidarity, in turn promoting inclusivity in both research and outcomes.

We were elated at the quality and diversity of the applications we received, and while it was a very difficult decision to choose a winner, we believe the chosen research application has the capability to make a significant impact on the growth of inclusivity within the field of economics.

Associate Professor Emel Memiş Parmaksız, Ankara University, Türkiye and Assistant Professor Ozge Izdes Terkoglu, Istanbul University, Türkiye for

“Elderly Care in a Non-caring Economy: How Far is a Caring Society”

Asso. Prof. Parmaksız and Asst. Prof. Terkoglu’s research is very original in its decolonization aspects by focusing on the elderly as a vulnerable, overlooked population, with a particular focus on unpaid elder care. Their innovative method of combining time use and socioeconomic conditions data as a means of criticizing conservative discourse and its influence on government a frame for its investigation proved a very strong aspect with our panel of expert judges. Their research gives non-mainstream attention to care, unpaid work, and informal health systems in contrast to a mainstream emphasis on market-based care systems, all of which are very consistent with the goals of the prize in highlighting diverse voices from marginalized groups.

What winning the prize means to our recipients—

“We were very touched and honored to learn that we have won the Routledge Award for Inclusive Economy. Above all, it is very encouraging and empowering to hear that our research has been awarded such a meaningful award. We received the news at a time when we needed solidarity the most in our struggle for decolonization in the field of economy on the one hand, but also solidarity for equality in all aspects of life on the other. We are full of mixed feelings. Just two weeks ago, one of the biggest earthquake disasters occurred in Turkey and Syria. We witness so much pain, suffering and loss around and near us. . . . Today, there could not be a more meaningful award in terms of both its purpose and content. We all know that all these devastating effects of disasters are human-made and that the main problem is the lack of diversity and inclusion that leads to deep inequalities and discrimination. At a time when the importance of diversity and inclusion has never been more important, it is invaluable to us to conduct and value research that combats discrimination, elitism and marginalization, just as the purpose of the award was explained.”

What the research means to our recipients—

“Our research proposal titled ‘Elderly Care in a Non-caring Economy: How Far is a Caring Society?’ aims to address the gendered consequences of the elderly care gap and care provided by families by taking into account the socioeconomic differences of elderly care providers. We are passionate about our research issue and believe that the topic covers highly relevant socio-economic issues that are critical to promoting a more caring and solidarity-oriented policy. We are living in an ageing society with growing care needs that are neglected. However, this neglect comes with its costs. It leaves a significant portion of the elderly with care needs unmet and levies a heavy burden on women who are most commonly unpaid care providers of families. We all observe that the impact of the economic burden of the absence of affordable services on households varies with socio-economic differences. We are highly motivated by the idea of contributing to the literature by generating a new data source on Turkey that combines time use and socioeconomic conditions data. Therefore, seeing our belief in the importance of the issue shared with many, including the members of the Routledge Included Awards Committee, motivates us to continue to do more work on these issues critical to promoting a more caring and solidarity-driven policy. We also find the idea of contributing to the studies that acknowledge the interconnectedness of life; either be in monetized or in non-monetized spheres of the economy. Our research is based on a combined time-use data and socio-economic conditions dataset to address gender-based and socio-economic inequalities, which we believe help explore the issues to be addressed more urgently today.”

1931: Debt, Crisis, and the Rise of Hitler

by Tobias Straumann — 2019, Oxford University Press

Germany's financial collapse in the summer of 1931 was one of the biggest economic catastrophes of modern history. It led to a global panic, brought down the international monetary system, and turned a worldwide recession into a prolonged depression. The crisis also contributed decisively to the rise of Hitler. Within little more than a year of its onset, the Nazis were Germany's largest political party at both the regional and national level, paving the way for Hitler's eventual seizure of power in January 1933.

The origins of the collapse lay in Germany's large pile of foreign debt denominated in gold-backed currencies, which condemned the German government to cut spending, raise taxes, and lower wages in the middle of a worldwide recession. As political resistance to this policy of austerity grew, the German government began to question its debt obligations, prompting foreign investors to panic and sell their German assets. The resulting currency crisis led to the failure of the already weakened banking system and a partial sovereign default.

Hitler managed to profit from the crisis because he had been the most vocal critic of the reparation regime responsible for the lion's share of German debts. As the financial system collapsed, his relentless attacks against foreign creditors and the alleged complicity of the German government resonated more than ever with the electorate. The ruling parties that were responsible for the situation lost their credibility and became defenceless in the face of his onslaught against an establishment allegedly selling the country out to her foreign creditors. Meanwhile, these creditors hesitated too long to take the wind out of Hitler's sails by offering debt relief. In this way, a financial crisis soon developed into a political catastrophe for both Europe and the world.

Central Banking, Monetary Policy and Income Distribution

By Sylvio Kappes, Louis-Philippe Rochon and Guillaume Vallet — 2023, Edward Elgar

Part of The Elgar Series on Central Banking and Monetary Policy, this book explores the relationship between central banking, monetary policy and income distribution. The usual central bank mandate – that of exclusively fighting inflation – is being increasingly questioned by policymakers and academics. Many countries are finding that there is a need for broader mandates that will have an impact on economic activity, unemployment and other economic issues.

The chapters present a multitude of theoretical views on this topic, from classical and Marxist views to mainstream and post-Keynesian approaches. They consider the democratic aspects of central banking, critically assess the distributional outcomes of inflation targeting regimes and explore policymaking implications.

Policy makers, academics and the financial press will appreciate the relevance of the material and state of the art discussions featured in Central Banking, Monetary Policy and Income Distribution.

Central Banks and Monetary Regimes in Emerging Countries Theoretical and Empirical Analysis of Latin America

By Fernando Ferrari-Filho, Luiz Fernando de Paula (Editors)— 2023, Edward Elgar

Responding to global events, including the international financial crisis (IFC) and the COVID-19 pandemic, central banks and the monetary regimes in many Latin American countries responded with actions to mitigate the worst impacts. The authors in this book focus on the recent trends of monetary policy in Latin America and analyze how the actions that were taken have affected the economic performance of these countries.

The book is composed of 11 chapters that analyze, theoretically and empirically, the central banks' actions and the monetary regimes of the following countries: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Peru, and Uruguay. As most of these countries implemented inflation-targeting regimes in the 1990s and 2000s, a special focus will be given on these experiences and how central banks dealt with the IFC and COVID-19 crises.

Academic researchers and students of economics will find a wealth of knowledge contained in these chapters, as will anyone looking for a better understanding of the economy of this important region.

Elgar Encyclopedia of Post-Keynesian Economics

By Louis-Philippe Rochon and Sergio Rossi (Editors) — 2023, Edward Elgar

This Encyclopedia is an invaluable reference book for post-Keynesian and heterodox economics. It consists of 300 entries, written by 180 different authors. The volume includes entries on key concepts of interest to post-Keynesians as well as descriptions of some of the seminal books in the post-Keynesian tradition. It will interest both students and scholars of heterodox economics, as well as policy makers around the world looking for a better alternative to mainstream economic policies at national and international levels in the aftermath of the global financial crisis that burst in 2008 and the COVID-19 pandemic crisis that began in 2020.

Key Features:

- Offers a non-conventional understanding of economic analysis on a number of key economic topics
- Provides a deep and convincing criticism of orthodox thinking

Finance Capitalism and Income Inequality in the Contemporary Global Economy A Comparative Study of the USA, South Korea, Argentina and Sweden

By Kuat B. Akizhanov — 2023, Springer

This book explores the causes of rising income inequality within industrialised, developing, and emerging economies. The development of finance capitalism over the last 40 years is charted to highlight how the neoliberal restructuring of national and global economies has driven income inequality. With case studies from the USA, South Korea, Argentina, and Sweden, a comparative analysis is presented to reveal how financialisation facilitates uneven capital accumulation and generates conditions that increase income inequality.

This book aims to outline an analytical framework for a financialisation-induced income inequality nexus. It will be relevant to students and researchers interested in the political economy and financial economics.

Foundations of Real-World Economics What Every Economics Student Needs to Know (3rd edition)

By John Komlos⁴¹⁹ — 2023, Routledge

The 2008 financial crisis, the rise of Trumpism, and the other populist movements which have followed in their wake have grown out of the frustrations of those hurt by the economic policies advocated by conventional economists for generations. Despite this, textbooks remain frozen in time, continuing to uphold traditional policies as though nothing has happened.

Foundations of Real-World Economics demonstrates how misleading it can be to apply oversimplified models of perfect competition to the real world. The math works well on college blackboards but not so well on the Main Streets of America. This volume explores the realities of oligopolies, the real impact of the minimum wage, the double-edged sword of free trade, and other ways in which powerful institutions cause distortions in mainstream models. Bringing together the work of key scholars like Kahneman, Minsky, and Schumpeter, this textbook takes into consideration the inefficiencies that arise when the perfectly competitive model is applied to the real world dominated by multinational oligopolies. The third edition has been updated throughout, bringing in new material on the financial crises, the rise of populism, racism, inequality, climate change, and the Covid-19 pandemic.

A must-have for students studying the principles of economics as well as micro- and macroeconomics, this textbook redresses the existing imbalance in economic teaching as John Komlos focuses on the paradigm of humanistic economics.

Macroeconomics after Kalecki and Keynes: Post-Keynesian Foundations

By Eckhard Hein — 2023, Edward Elgar

Presenting an in-depth overview of the foundations and developments of post-Keynesian macroeconomics since Kalecki and Keynes, this timely book develops a comprehensive post-Keynesian macroeconomic model with the respective macroeconomic policy mix for achieving non-inflationary full employment.

⁴¹⁹<https://www.routledge.com/search?author=John%20Komlos>

⁴²⁰<https://www.routledge.com/Foundations-of-Real-World-Economics-What-Every-Economics-Student-Needs/Komlos/p/book/9781032001722>

The different versions of the model for closed and open economies are concerned with the key areas of macroeconomics, such as full employment, constant inflation and external balance. Eckhard Hein expertly illustrates how to embed these post-Keynesian macroeconomics and macroeconomic policies into the post-Keynesian research programme more generally, whilst also providing a review of its methods and historical roots. Furthermore, the book links post-Keynesian short-run macroeconomics to long-run distribution and growth theories. Finally, it applies these theoretical approaches to the current research on macroeconomic regimes and regime changes within finance-dominated capitalism and on the macroeconomic challenges of the ecological crisis and of the required socio-ecological transformation.

This book will be a crucial read for academics and graduate students interested in post-Keynesian macroeconomics. Providing a thought-provoking alternative to orthodox economic policies, this will also be of interest to policy advisers and politicians.

Modern Monetary Theory: Key Insights, Leading Thinkers

edited by L. Randall Wray, Phil Armstrong, Sara Holland, Claire Jackson-Prior, Prue Plumridge and Neil Wilson — Edward Elgar, 2023

Providing an up-to-date account of Modern Monetary Theory (MMT) with contributions from the world's leading experts, each chapter offers new insights on the topic, building upon MMT's established body of work. This innovative book analyses key economic issues from a wide set of regions including the UK, Europe and the Global South, addressing previous concerns that MMT is too US-focused.

Alongside ground-breaking research written by MMT's original developers and leading academics, the book also includes contributions from economic historians and public policy campaigners, highlighting how MMT contributes to challenging neoliberalism and the hegemony of mainstream macroeconomics. Offering an examination of the existing legal, institutional and policy framework which governs the UK Exchequer in particular, it examines how the central claims of MMT map onto the financial activities of the UK government. This will be key reading for undergraduate and postgraduate economics students, as well as more advanced scholars of the discipline, particularly for those looking into theories of finance, money and banking. It will also have a wider appeal across the social sciences, including politics and sociology students.

Money for Beginners: An Illustrated Guide

by Randall Wray⁴²³ and Heske van Doornen⁴²⁴ — 2023, Wiley

Money is mysterious. We love it, we hate it, but few people can tell you what the heck it really is.

This book will help you understand both the way money works and how to leverage its power. The authors take you on an illuminating journey from your piggy bank to the Federal Reserve with no pesky jargon or complex math.

Once you see money clearly, life will never be the same. You will know what really goes on in banks and what the cash in your wallet represents. You will know how government really spends and why it cannot run out of money.

You will know what money can actually do — and how we can make it work for us.

The Behavioral Economics of John Maynard Keynes: Microfoundations for the World We Live In

By Ronald Schettkat — 2023, Edward Elgar

Keynes' macroeconomic revolution is based on his microfoundations of economic behaviour derived from 'casual' observations but impressively substantiated by rigorous research in Behavioral Economics and neurology. Ronald Schettkat argues that the allegation of the missing microfoundations in Keynes' theory is false. Instead, both Keynes' theory and Behavioral Economics relate to humans in 'the economy we live in', differing substantially in their fundamentals from the neoclassical model.

Showing that Keynes' micro has much in common with Behavioral Economics, the book starts with the fundamentals ranging from the methodological approach to economics as a real versus an axiomatic science and the consequences for knowledge building methods

Varieties of Capitalism Second-Generation Perspectives

By Thomas Palley, Esteban Pérez Caldentey and Matías Vernengo (Editors) — 2023, Edward Elgar

Over the past twenty years there has emerged a compelling new discourse on varieties of capitalism. That discourse has an appealing common sense which challenges the view there is no alternative to free market capitalism. The initial view had a microeconomic focus that made firms the fulcrum of analysis. It distinguished between liberal market and coordinated market economies. Subsequently, there has emerged a second-generation literature which adopts a macroeconomic perspective that emphasizes differences in drivers of growth. This book provides a collection of essays that engage those second-generation concerns and questions.

The new view emphasizes income distribution, which leads to a focus on institutional structures that are shaped by policy and power. A related feature is an emphasis on politics, which is the process by which policies are made. Furthermore, it asks whether economies should be understood as the product of national choices versus global capitalist system forces. That connects with the long-standing center-periphery distinction in development economics.

Economists, researchers, and students will find this volume an enlightening look at an important subject.

History & Political Economy Project 2023 Summer Research Grant

Call for applications: The History & Political Economy Project (HPE) invites applications from PhD students and early-career scholars for our 2023 summer research grant. This program will support awardees to undertake research in summer 2023 on topics related to our mission to understand how neoliberalism has been developed, implemented, and contested around the world. In support of our goal of producing historical scholarship that is strategically useful for addressing the challenges of social-political transformation in the present, HPE will support historical research that explores one or more of the following areas:

- the temporal development of neoliberalism, examining how neoliberal ideology and policy has changed over time;
- the scale of neoliberal thought and practice, taking seriously the variegated global instantiations of neoliberalism from the
- family and the workplace to the multinational corporation and the international institution; and/or
- the ideas-in-action of neoliberalism and its contestations, pushing beyond intellectual histories to investigate questions of policymaking, institution building, and especially political contestation.

Details:

HPE will award grants of between $3,000 and $4,000 each, for research to be completed in summer 2023. Graduate and early-career scholars are those studying for a PhD or who have obtained a PhD within the last 5 years. Field of study is open, and we welcome applicants from any discipline, but methodologies and research questions should be explicitly historical. Eligible expenses include travel and accommodation costs for archival or other historical research work; digitization and transcription costs; hiring of local researchers; or similar activities.

Timeline: Applications will be due on March 12, 2023, and we expect to announce the awardees in early April. Awardees will be required to submit a report detailing their research activities and outlining their findings by October 1, 2023, and may be invited to present their research at a future HPE conference.

For more details and to submit an application, please see here⁴²⁸. Questions about the grant should be directed to info@hpeproject.org

Application Deadline: 12 March 2023

PhD scholarships at the University of Hertfordshire, UK: Future Business Leaders

Applications are invited for fully funded PhD studentships in the Hertfordshire Business School at the University of Hertfordshire. The School is making a strategic investment to help develop the next generation of academic researchers in business and management research with a series of studentships designed to help train people aiming to develop a future career in higher education. It will combine doctoral research with an introduction to teaching and learning and an opportunity to develop a rounded career trajectory.

The studentships are offered on a full-time basis for three years (subject to satisfactory progress). They provide a tax-free bursary (currently £17,668 per annum for the academic year 2021-22) and includes a full domestic tuition fee waiver for three years. Additional research funding will be available to support fieldwork costs and appropriate conference attendance. There will also be opportunities to undertake teaching related activities in a relevant area for up to 30 hours per year, and to gain a Postgraduate Certificate in Higher Education and recognition from Advance HE as a Fellow of the Higher Education Academy. Any additional teaching undertaken will be remunerated separately.

Supported by a team of supervisors with experience and expertise on the selected topic of research, successful applicants will be part of a stimulating research community which will fully support them on their path towards academic excellence, reflecting the enhanced position of the School in the recent Research Excellence Framework in Business and Management. Ranked 1 globally for overall research student satisfaction for Business and Economics research degree programmes (2019 Postgraduate Research Experience Survey), the University of Hertfordshire is also ranked 10 globally for postgraduate research student satisfaction (2021 Postgraduate Research Experience Survey). Our ambition is to nurture and develop the next generation of Business and Management researchers alongside our ambitious and dynamic colleagues.

Candidates are encouraged to apply early as the closing date is on a rolling basis and open until filled.

About the Project

Applications are welcome on any research topic and specialism in the following disciplinary areas:

- Accounting

- Business analytics and technology
- Economics
- Finance
- Human resource management
- Management (especially small firms and entrepreneurship)
- Marketing
- Operations research
- Tourism and events

We also welcome interdisciplinary applications across those areas that connect with other areas of research such as health management, ageing, neurodiversity, sustainability, the circular economy, household debt and the standard of living crisis.

Applicants may find it helpful to look at the nature of current research in the Business School as represented at the website.

Applicant requirements

Applicants should have at least an upper second-class honours degree in a relevant discipline. A master degree in a relevant field will be advantageous.

The studentship is open to UK and international applicants.

How to apply

Applicants are required to provide the following documents:

- A completed application form, available for download at:the link⁴²⁹ ;
- A 2000 words research proposal;
- Two academic references;
- Copies of qualification certificates and transcripts;
- Certification of English language competence (minimum IELTS 6.5 or equivalent) for candidates for whom English is not their first language.

PhD scholarships at the University of Hertfordshire, UK: Future of Societies & pension systems

Editorial note: This post covers a general call and one specific proposal for a topically embedded application with a focus on the future of pension systems (details can be found further below).

DTA PhD Studentships in Future Societies

For these scholars

Applications are invited by Centre for Future Societies Research for three fully funded PhD studentships at the University of Hertfordshire. These research studentships will be part of the University Alliance (UA) Doctoral Training Alliance in Future Societies. The studentships are offered on a full-time basis for three years from September 2023 (subject to satisfactory progress) and provide a bursary of a minimum of £17,668 per annum, including a full tuition fee waiver for three years. Awards increase every year in line with UKRI recommendations.

Please note that the studentships are available and therefore applicable to UK nationals/UK resident applicants only, as result of the available source of funding. The University particularly welcomes applications from British Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic applicants.

Please check available project titles⁴³³ and corresponding details. Further particulars on specific projects can be obtained from the corresponding principal supervisors, to whom informal enquiries can also be addressed.

Applicant requirements

Applicants must have a UK good honours degree (First-Class Honours or Upper Second-Class Honours) in a relevant field or equivalent and additionally an appropriate Masters qualification would be beneficial.

How to apply

Applicants are required to provide the following documents:

- A completed application form, available for download from this link⁴³⁴
- A cover letter explaining their interest in the proposed project title and the relevance of their background to the proposed project title;
- An up to date CV;
- Two academic references;
- Copies of qualification certificates and transcripts;
- A copy of passport photo page.

Please send completed applications, choosing one of the available project titles⁴³⁵, to Doctoral College at email⁴³⁶, using the following format in the email subject line: Future Societies Research Studentships.

Application Deadline: 19 May 2023

Challenges addressed by this proposal

- Citizen Equality: poverty / education / justice / inequality
- Societal Challenges: health / ageing / housing / climate / security / transport

Description

Significance: Pension systems are important for social security in old age. They have been going through major overhauls in response to the challenges associated with demographic change and aging in Western Societies. Many governments undertook varieties of reforms, involving cutting down benefit levels, increasing pension age and the introduction of funded and/or additional voluntary pensions to address the so-called ‘sustainability problem’ of retirement schemes. Moreover, occupational pension systems have increasingly moved away from Defined Benefits (providing guaranteed income in retirement) to Defined Contribution under which retirement income depends on the rate of return to investment and the size contributions made by members and their employers. The knowledge gap: While these reforms aim to improve the financial sustainability of pension systems, their consequences with respect to poverty and inequality amongst old-age population has not been studied in a systematic way. Demographic change is not the only issue with significant impact on social security in old age. Transformations associated with digitalisation, automation and the gig economy are likely to have further impacts on the adequacy of accumulated contributions and the retirement income. While considerable research has been undertaken in the recent years addressing consequences of such changes for job security and employment precarity, to our knowledge, no research has yet addressed the consequences of automation for pensions. Originality and contribution to knowledge: This PhD studentship will facilitate a programme of research on the future of pension systems, especially, focusing on

1. consequences of the shift from defined benefit to defined contribution scheme for poverty and inequality in retirement
2. consequences of work in what is broadly known as the gig economy for poverty and inequality in retirement
3. policy suggestions for transforming social security for the better in old age

Data and analysis

The PhD student will use econometrics, possibly Recentered Influence Functions or Difference-in-Difference models, to estimate the impacts of pension reforms and automation and simulate the potential consequences of main scenarios proposed for the transformation of pension systems. The project will utilise longitudinal surveys (English Longitudinal Study of Ageing as well as Wealth and Assets Surveys). The proposers have access to these surveys and have been using them for their own research. Each of these datasets contain a wealth of information and data on pension contributions, pension benefits and pension wealth.

PhD-scholarship on Wealth Inequality at the University of Greenwich, UK

Project title: Wealth across the world: understanding cross country differences in wealth inequality project leader: Dr. Ben Tippet

About the project

Research on wealth inequality has grown substantially in recent years. Yet, as more data has become available, an interesting puzzle has emerged. Several authors have shown that wealth concentration over the last four decades is strongly driven by workers' declining bargaining power and the resulting rise in income inequality. In contrast, cross country differences in the level of wealth inequality are uncorrelated with income inequality and instead are strongly driven by cross country differences in housing markets. In other words, the factors that determine the time trajectory of wealth concentration are different to those that determine the level wealth inequality between countries. This has important implications for designing inequality reducing policies, as policy makers may require two different sets of measures to i) prevent further increases in wealth inequality (time trajectory) and ii) to reduce existing wealth concentration (level).

The current literature lacks a coherent framework to analyse both these dimensions in an integrated manner. Firstly, current theoretical stock-flow consistent (SFC) models of wealth inequality do not include a housing market, despite its importance driving cross country differences in wealth inequality. Secondly, cross country measures of wealth inequality based on survey data may partly be driven by differences in the design of surveys and their ability to adequately capture the most affluent households. Thirdly, the theoretical and empirical literature does not adequately account for institutional differences across countries, such mortgage markets, pension systems, taxation, labour market institutions and the welfare state.

⁴³⁸<mailto:h.dagdeviren@herts.ac.uk>

This PhD project aims to provide three novel contributions to the literature on wealth inequality structured around 3 sections. Firstly, it will develop a theoretical SFC model of wealth distribution, extending the existing literature's focus on the financial and firm sector, to include a housing and pension system. SFC models are uniquely positioned to analyse both the trajectory and the level of wealth concentration, as they track income flows and their accumulation into stocks of assets and liabilities, in addition to capital gains and debts. Secondly, the project will develop a novel dataset of standardized cross-country measures of wealth concentration based on the Luxembourg Wealth Study (a harmonised micro survey dataset of 15 countries) synthesizing recent methodological advances in modelling the non-observed part of the wealth distribution at the top of the distribution. This new dataset will be used to eliminate the bias due to cross country measurement differences and to assess the robustness of existing cross-country findings. Thirdly, the project will econometrically analyse the institutional determinants of wealth inequality based on cross-country panel data analysis. We will extend the dataset built for the first two sections to include sectoral and national institutional variables

Criteria (Essential)

- 1st Class or 2nd class, First Division (Upper Second Class) honours degree or a taught master's degree with a minimum average of 60% in all areas of assessment (UK or UK equivalent) in a relevant area to the proposed research project
- For those whose first language is not English and/or if from a country where English is not the majority spoken language (as recognised by the UKBA), a language proficiency score of at least IELTS 6.5 (in all elements of the test) or an equivalent UK VISA and Immigration secure English Language Test is required, if your programme falls within the faculty of Engineering and Science a language proficiency score of at least IELTS 6.5 overall with a minimum of 6.0 in all elements of the test or an equivalent UK VISA and Immigration secure English Language Test is required. Unless the degree above was taught in English and obtained in a majority English speaking country, e.g. UK, USA, Australia, New Zealand, etc, as recognised by the UKBA.
- Previous experience of undertaking research (e.g. undergraduate or taught master's dissertation)
- Strong quantitative research and analytical skills
- Strong skills in presenting research findings both orally and in writing (in English)
- Understands the fundamental differences between a taught degree and a research degree in terms of approach and personal discipline/motivation
- Able to, under guidance, complete independent work successfully

- This scholarship may require Academic Technology Approval Scheme approval for the successful candidate if from outside of the EU/EEA
- The scholarship must commence before July 2023

criteria (desirable)

- Demonstrable experience or interest in stock-flow consistent modelling
- An understanding and interest in research on wealth inequality
- Previous experience working with micro survey data
- Previous coding experience (e.g. Python/Stata)

Application

Please read this information before making an application. Information on the application process is available online⁴³⁹. Applications need to be made online via this link. No other form of application will be considered.

All applications must include the following information. Applications not containing these documents will not be considered.

- Scholarship Reference Number (Ref: GBS-PhD-2223-02)– included in the personal statement section together with your personal statement as to why you are applying
- a CV including 2 referees *
- academic qualification certificates/transcripts and IELTSs/English Language certificate if you are an international applicant or if English is not your first language or you are from a country where English is not the majority spoken language as defined by the UK Border Agency*

upload to the qualification section of the application form. Attachments must be a PDF format.*

Before submitting your application, you are encouraged to liaise with the Lead Supervisor on the details above. Submitting a detailed research proposal along with your application will potentially increase the chance of being shortlisted. Posts are open until 31st March but may be filled earlier if a suitable candidate is found.

Heterodox Economics in the Media

The online-magazine Makroskop seeks prospective authors

We are on the search for new authors to join MAKROSKOP – The online magazine⁴⁴¹ for alternative economic policy. In our opinion, all major political challenges are of an economic nature or have an intersection with economics. But economic policy in most industrialised countries is guided by very one-sided, mostly neoclassical, economics. On this conceptual basis, the bulk of journalists report on topics relevant to economic policy without being aware of the normative and theoretical foundations of their "reports". This is precisely where MAKROSKOP comes in. Striving for a realistic understanding of economic processes is the basis of our work.

Our magazine aims to provide an alternative to the economic mainstream, allowing for a different perspective.

Instead of leaving all needs and problems to "the market", we assume that a state must intervene in economic activity so that markets serve people. In particular, a proper spending policy by the state is necessary (and also possible) to prevent, or at least mitigate, distortions of capitalist dynamics. MAKROSKOP stands for the idea of social democracy. At the centre of this model of society is the common good - therefore "the economy" must be subordinated to the primacy of politics.

We are looking for writers who are passionate about economics, think critically, and have a deep understanding of the subject matter. This is an excellent opportunity to share your knowledge, engage with a community of like-minded individuals, share your unique perspectives and become an influential part of the economic discussion. Regular authors can also look forward to a fee of 200 Euro per article.

If you're looking to make your mark on the world of economics and finance, this is the perfect opportunity for you! We'd love to hear from you. Just write an e-mail to sebastian.mueller@makroskop.eu⁴⁴² or call us in our office (+49 (0) 611 / 8802 211 – 2).

Calls for Support

”The Economic Conditions for Peace”: An appeal

The Economic Conditions for Peace

A year has passed since the beginning of the conflict in Ukraine, and still nothing seems to indicate that the winds of war are fading. Which are the reasons why the war continues and international tensions rise? We do not believe in the narrative of the clash of civilizations. Rather, we find it urgent to investigate an aspect still neglected in the prevailing debate: the economic contrasts underlying military conflicts.

Today’s global flames of war draw nourishment from an imbalance in economic relations inherited from the era of free-market globalization and still unresolved. We refer to international net positions, where the United States, the United Kingdom and various other Western countries are in a situation of large external debt, while China, other Eastern countries and to some extent Russia are in an external credit position. A consequence of this imbalance is a tendency to export eastern capital to the West, no longer only in the form of loans but also of acquisitions: a ”centralization” of capital in eastern hands. To counter this trend, the United States and its major allies have for several years abandoned enthusiasms toward deregulated globalism and adopted a policy of ”friend shoring”: an increasingly pronounced protectionist closure against goods and capital from China, Russia and much of the non-aligned East. Albeit with differences among its Member States, the European Union too has been joining this American protectionist turn.

Nevertheless, if history is any guide, these uncoordinated forms of protectionism exacerbate international tensions and create favorable conditions for new military clashes. The conflict in Ukraine and other major hotbeds of war are no exception: they can be fully understood only if interpreted in light of these serious contrasts in global economic relations. Territorial issues are the most visible in peace negotiations but economic issues are the decisive ones. An international economic policy initiative is therefore fundamental to launch a realistic pacification process. Drawing from the preparatory work of the Bretton Woods agreements, a plan is needed to regulate current international economic imbalances and related capital flows. This new regulation should start from a double renunciation: the United States and Western allies should abandon the unilateral protectionism of "friend shoring," while China and other creditors should put aside the free-trade rhetoric that is the root to the problem and not the solution to it.

We are aware that we are evoking a solution of "enlightened capitalism" that was accomplished only after two world wars and only under the goad of the Soviet alternative. This is exactly the big issue of our time. We need to assess whether it is possible to create the economic conditions for world pacification before military tensions reach a point of no return.

Signatures Collection for Euro Memorandum 2023

We would like to inform you that we extend the deadline for signatures collection until the 8th of March for EuroMemorandum 2023:

Europe in Polycrisis: Struggles for Survival, Climate and Energy Justice

This EuroMemorandum draws on discussions and papers presented at the 28 Workshop on Alternative Economic Policy in Europe, organised by the EuroMemo Group, from September 2-4 2022 at King's College London.

This year's EuroMemorandum emphasizes that the neoliberal global and European order has entered a polycrisis, understood as multiple shocks feeding each other with growing complexity. Taking its cue from the UNEP Emissions Gap Report that the time for incremental change has passed, and that only a root-and-branch economic transformation can save humanity from disaster, the 2023 EuroMemorandum analyses the polycrisis Europe faces, critiques EU policy, and offers radical policy-alternatives. The EuroMemorandum 2023 will be published together with a list of signatories.

In case you are interested to support the EuroMemorandum 2023 plz write to info@euromemo.eu⁴⁴⁵ to request the full text and the relevant form.

Extended Deadline for signatures: 8 March 2023
