

Forum for Social Economics

Now published with Springer

Editor-in-Chief:

John Marangos, Department of Economics, Colorado State University

Aims & Scope

The Forum for Social Economics is an international journal sponsored by the Association for Social Economics.

For 35 years the Forum has published high quality peer-reviewed papers. The primary focus of the Forum is on applying social economic analysis to practical policy issues and/or the implications of alternative policy perspectives encompassing the social economy.

The Forum is a pluralistic journal publishing work that addresses economic issues within wider ethical, cultural or natural environmental contexts, and is sympathetic to papers that transcend established disciplinary boundaries. Papers should make a contribution to past or current socioeconomic issues that have contemporary relevance to economists, social scientists, policy makers and business.

The journal welcomes stimulating original articles that are clearly written and draw upon contemporary policy-related research. Preference is given to non-technical articles of topical and historical interest that will appeal to a wide range of readers. The journal is also interested in serving as an avenue for issues regarding teaching economics, in particular teaching approaches to social and heterodox economics.

The Forum invites graduate students to submit research papers. Proof of graduate student status should be provided with the submission. While the students' papers will go through the regular review process and be held to the same standards for acceptance as other submissions, the panel of reviewers will serve a mentoring role to advise the student to strengthen the paper.

Associate Editor:

Mark D. White, Department of Political Science, Economics, and Philosophy, College of Staten Island/CUNY, Staten Island, NY, USA

Editorial Board:

Adelheid Biesecker, Professor for Economic Theory at the University of Bremen, Germany
 Elissa Braunstein, Department of Economics, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, CO, USA
 Grainne Collins, Employment Research Centre, Department of Sociology, School of Social Sciences and Philosophy, Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland
 Wolfram Elsner, Institute for Institutional and Innovation Economics - iino, Department of Economics, University of Bremen, Germany
 Alan Hutton, Division of Public Policy Group, Caledonian Business School, Glasgow Caledonian University, Scotland, UK
 Roel Jongeneel, Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Policy, Wageningen University, The Netherlands
 Anne M. de Bruin, Department of Commerce, Massey University at Albany, Auckland, New Zealand
 Ellen Mutari, General Studies Division, Richard Stockton College, Pomona NJ, USA
 Paul P. Wojick, St. Olaf College, Northfield, MN, USA

Submit your paper now!

Papers should be submitted via Editorial Manager: <http://www.editorialmanager.com/ffse>

Annually the Editor-in-Chief will select the best paper submitted to the Journal, and the author of that article is granted the "Springer Best Paper Award" a financial contribution of US$ 500,--.

Bibliographical and Pricing information:Forum for Social Economics

Sponsored by the Association for Social Economics
 Editor-in-Chief: John Marangos
 ISSN: 0736-032 (print version) / E-ISSN: 1874-6381 (electronic version)
 Journal nr. 12143
 Springer Netherlands
 Institutional subscription: USD 295,00/volume/year
 Vol. 36, 2 issues

Members of the Association for Social Economics (ASE) receive the Journal as part of their membership.

Available in print and online on Springerlink (www.springerlink.com)